Hitler's Rule 'Stupid,' Due For Failure, Smith Says

Former Governor Asserts "No Land Can Live Under Ridicule."

Boycott Success, Untermyer Says

Jewish Rights League Also Hears Gerard Colby, Clinnin.

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Samuel Untermeyer, lawwyer-president of the American League for the Defense of Jewish Rights, led a verbal assault upon the Hitler regime tonight, Smith declaring no nation "can live under ridicule," and Untermyer calling for a Nation-wide boycott of German products.

Smith, recalling that his blood pressure had reached 190 and that he had melted a shirt and two collars when he spoke at the Jewish mass meeting in Madison Square Garden last spring, said:

"The thing about it that amazes me is its complete stupidity. No nation can stand that. No nation can live under ridicule.

Calls Regime Stupid.

"It can stand criticism, it can meet it and answer it; but it is impossible for it to survive for any length of time against well-directed ridicule, and the present German regime to my way of thinking is not only ridiculous but stupid."

Others speakers at the dinner tendered in Untermyer's honor by the league, included Bainbridge Colby, former Secretary of State; James W. Gerard, former U. S. Ambassador to Germany, and Gen. John V. Clinnin, Chicago.

Untermyer, declaring "that odious crowd" in Germany is reducing womanhood "to the most degraded state of servitude known in centuries," directed a special appeal to American women to support the boycott movement.

Boycott Winning, He Says.

Untermyer asserted the boycott "is going along famously," but efforts were being made to get around it by marking goods "made in Saxony" and other German provinces. He said he had notified the Secretary of the Treasury "Unless these frauds are stopped proceedings will be brought against him to compel the rejection of such goods."

Gerard said Untermyer was "right when he advocated the boycott as the only way to force Nazis to abandon the bitter persecution of that race which has given so many great names to the world." Colby praised Untermyer's campaign against "the insensate regime in Germany."

Sleep Plague Total Now 115

Disease Ravages Continue Though Scientists See Ray of Hope.

St. Louis, Sept. 10 (AP).—Sleeping sickness continued its deadly progress today, taking seven victims in a wide area about St. Louis, sending the death list to 115.

The epidemic continues despite encouraging developments in the scientific battle against its ravages.

Each day brings its quota of deaths and new cases, offset, however, by the discharge from hospitals of increasing numbers of cured patients.

The apparent establishment of the disease in monkeys, while still indefinite, has brought hopes to scientists, and it has revived confidence that knowledge of how the disease spreads will be learned and enable the scientists to work out a preventive and perhaps a cure.

A death was reported in Alton, Ill., today, the first east of the Mississippi River.

Dr. Josephine Neal, of the New York City Health Department, an authority on encephalistis, will aid in the St. Louis campaign.

In the course of her studies Dr. Neal has acquired a reputation as an epidemiologist and has been admitted to membership in many scientific societies which specialise on epidemics.

Nazis Leave Militia After Chilean Dispute

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 10 (U.P.).—All Chilean Nazis, who are also members of the republican militia, a semimilitary organization, formed a year ago to maintain a constitutional government in power, were ordered by their leader, Jorge Gonzalez, today to withdraw immediately from the militia.

The order followed a statement by the general staff of the republican militia that some disagreement of opinion existed between the ment of opinion existed between the Nazis and the militia.

Perry Net Winner; Nats Beat Tribe; Golfers Seek Title

For the first time in 30 years, an Englishman captured the United States tennis championship when Fred Perry yesterday thrilled a gallery of 14,000 at Forest Hills to come from behind and beat Jack Crawford, the Australian star. The scores were 6—3, 11—13, 4—6, 6—0 and 6—1. The loss prevented Crawford from making a grand slam, for he already has won the Australian, French and Wimbledon titles this year.

Both major league leaders were victorious on the diamond yesterday, the Nationals downing Cleveland, 7 to 3, while the New York Giants took a double-header from Cincinnati. As the New York Yankees won twice, they cut the Nats' leading margin to 8½ games, a full game larger than that enjoyed by the Giants in the National League.

Five Washington golfers today will compete in the qualifying round of the United States amateur golf tournament at Cincinnati. They are among a field of nearly 160 which is seeking to dethrone Ross Somerville, of Canada, who won the 1932 event.

40,000 Troops Guard Austria From Invasion

Dollfuss Ready to Repel Hitler's Nazi Force at Frontier.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

Vienna, Austria, Sept. 10 (U.P.).—Chancellor Dollfuss prepared tonight to proclaim victory over Hitlerism.

He has converted the Austro-German frontier into a wall of steel against the possibility of an Austrian Nazi invasion from Germany and was expected tomorrow to declare his victory in the fight against these elements.

The United Press is able to reveal the extent of Austria's military preparedness along a 200-mile frontier. Almost every goat path is guarded.

A few miles inland are concentration camps for motorized reserves ready for orders to rush their mountain artillery into action. At several points, barbed-wire entanglements have been erected.

40,000 Troops Massed.

It was estimated that 40,000 troops, including the gendarmerie and Heimwehr (home guards), have been massed along or near the Austro-Bavarian frontier.

Outposts on mountain peaks in this rugged region scan the German villages in the valleys below, over the line, for "signs of enemy" activity.

Twelve airplanes patrol the border, reconnoitering along the Austrian lines.

140,000 in Forces.

In his fight against the Nazis, Dollfuss has a combined force of nearly 140,000 men and youths.

These include 22,000 men in the regular army; 17,000 police and gendarmes, and 100,000 men in the so-called Schutz Corps, the backbone of which is the Heimwehr, led by Prince Ernst Starhemberg.

He also is planning to increase the army by 8,000 men, bringing its strength up to 30,000 effectives, permitted under the treaty of St. Germain.

French to Keep Arms.

Paris, Sept. 10 (AP).—Further indication that France intends to maintain her armed strength in the face of "troubled atmosphere" in Europe was given today by Edmond Miellet, minister of pensions, in a speech commemorating the nineteenth anniversary of the Battle of the Marne.

Declaring Germany had not renounced "imperialism," the minister suggested this is no time to disarm.

"It is necessary to redouble our precautions and assure with courage our material and moral defense," M. Miellet said.

The speech strengthened indications that France will oppose any agreement for disarmament at Geneva until assured of the success of her arms control plan, to which Germany is opposed.

Demented Youth Kills Man and Self

Bruno, Nebr., Sept. 10 (AP).—Ludvik Hasik, 38, Mayor of Bruno, was killed tonight by Louis Dolezal, 19, farmer boy. Dolezal then killed himself.

Hasik and his son, George, 15, had just finished playing in a dance orchestra. Dolezal slipped a letter into young Hasik's pocket, shot the elder Hasik in the forehead and then turned the gun on himself.

The letter, authorities said, indicated Dolezal was demented and that Hasik was killed because he allowed his son to smoke cigarettes and play for dances.

Forget Feuds, Uphold Code, Wagner Asks

Deplores Fights "Which Breed Hatred," Keep Plants Closed.

Johnson Sees Improved Spirit Now Ruling in Mine Parleys.

(Associated Press.)

Into the midst of the critical controversy over an NRA code for the bituminous coal industry, Senator Wagner, New York, chairman of the National Labor Board, yesterday appealed to employers and employes to "forget all feuds" and cooperate toward success of the recovery program.

Wagner deplored fights, "which breed hatred and keep plants closed.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson retained hopes of an agreed coal code.

"Statements offering objections, amendments, &c., were invited," he said in a statement. "In some of these that have been received there is a good deal of language of a professional legal nature and a few rather extreme statements not unusual in highly adversary briefs.

"From the cooperative, conciliatory and reasonable attitude now governing both sets of negotiations, I feel justified in saying that my confidence in our ability to get a proper agreed code and a satisfactory settlement has not been shaken."

Every clause of the code drafted by Gen. Johnson, with approval of President Roosevelt, has been attacked by mine operators, except those proposed by themselves covering fair practices.

Public Hearing Tomorrow.

They asserted flatly the code as submitted "is based on the fact it undertakes to regulate matters which are not committed to the control of the Federal Government, and which infringe upon the constitutional right of private contract."

This statement was coupled with reports from operators in the soft coal fields that the first direct test of the recovery act's constitutionality might come in an attempt by mine owners to overthrow the charter which Johnson has said would be "imposed" if an agreement could not be reached.

Making public last week the code drafted by him and Donald R. Richberg, the NRA's general counsel, after conferences with President Roosevelt, Johnson set a public hearing for this afternoon and then postponed it until tomorrow.

Ready to Make Concessions.

Still seeking an agreement and willing to make concessions to get it, Johnson told newspapermen the weeks of controversy must end and under the authority of the recovery act President Roosevelt would, if necessary, made the code effective for the coal industry without an accord.

With the bituminous coal operators dissenting so vigorously, officials generally were of the opinion that for the first time since code writing was begun by the NRA it might be necessary to use the full powers of the law.

Einstein Hides In Secret Spot

Developing New Theory on North Sea Shore, Safe From Nazis.

London, Sept. 10 (AP).—Prof. Albert Einstein, fleeing reported Nazi threats against his life, went from London today to a quiet spot on the east coast of England known only to a few persons. Already working on a new mathematical theory, he said he planned to lecture in America in October.

Sitting in a small hut in a garden facing the North Sea, the professor looked smilingly content as he puffed his pipe.

"All I want is peace, and where could I find a more peaceful retreat than here in England?" he asked a visitor.

"No one will know where I am until October, when I go to America to lecture. I can live quietly, working out my mathematical problems."

Siberian Bandits Derail Train and Capture 60

London, Sept. 10 (U.P.).—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Harbin, Manchuria, today said two Europeans were killed when bandits derailed a Vladivostok-Harbin passenger train 12 miles from the Manchurian frontier, in Siberia.

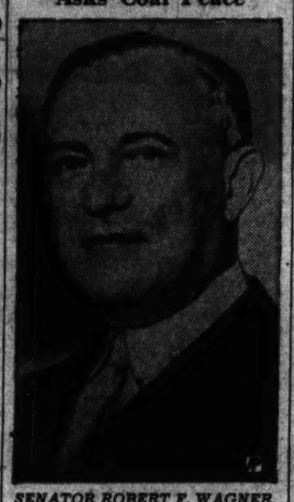
The bandits captured the train crew and 60 passengers, the dispatch said, including two Soviet officials and several Japanese.

Texas Bull Fighter Gored at Chicago Fair

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP).—Sam Stuart, of Fort Worth, Tex., bull fighter who expects to become a matador in Mexico, was gored through the thigh by a Brahma bull tonight, in view of a large crowd at the World's Fair Rodeo.

While baiting the bull with his red cape, Stuart slipped. It charged him. One of the bull's horns penetrated his right thigh.

Asks Coal Peace



SENATOR ROBERT F. WAGNER, chairman of the National Labor Board, yesterday asked operators and workers of the bituminous coal industry to "forget feuds." Wagner pleaded for cooperation in the recovery program.

Capital Deb's Car Kills Man On Riverside

Pedestrian Staggers Into Path of Elise Hume's Automobile.

An unidentified man was killed instantly last night as he stepped in front of an automobile driven by a Washington debutante on Riverside Drive near Titantic Memorial.

Driver of the car was Miss Elise Gardiner Hume, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Alan Phillips Hume, of Warwick, Hume Station, Alexandria. She was accompanied by her fiance, John Redman Walsh, jr., and her sister, Marian W. Hume.

Miss Hume and Mr. Walsh are to be married Saturday, and were entertained at a prenuptial tea yesterday. Miss Hume told police she and Mr. Walsh and her sister were out for an evening drive when the man stepped in front of her car.

Miss Hume was released in custody of her father by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald. Her companions were ordered to appear at an inquest at 11:30 a. m., Tuesday.

No identification could be found on the victim. He appeared about 30 years old, was dark, and wore dark trousers and a blue-striped shirt.

Miss Hume told police she was driving at a moderate rate. Suddenly the man appeared in front of her car. Before she sould apply the brakes, he was struck.

Witnesses said the man was staggering as if under the influence of liquor. Just before he lurched in front of Miss Hume's car, he brushed another automobile passing by.

Daughter Weds; Financier Dies

Heart Attack Blamed for N. Y. Man's Death.

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 10 (AP).—Edward D. Brandegee, 76, former Utica, N. Y., financier, died suddenly here today at Faulkner Farm within a few hours after giving his only daughter, Martina Louise, in marriage to James Lawrence, jr., New York broker and member of a socially prominent New England family.

Doctors said the excitement proved too great a strain on his heart.

It was at the Faulkner farm in 1912 that Theodore Roosevelt announced his willingness to be the "Bull Moose" candidate for President.

Paraguay Troopers Beat Back Bolivians

Asuncion, Paraguay, Sept. 10 (AP).—The ministry of war announced today that Bolivian attacks were successfully beaten back and counter attacks launched in the Campo Aceval, Herrera and Nanawa section of the Gran Chaco battlefront.

Horror Costs Sanity Of Witness at Blaze

Istanbul, Turkey, Sept. 10 (AP).—Istanbul lost another picturesque old quarter when fire today destroyed 25 buildings in the Asiatic suburb of Scutari. Two persons were killed and another became insane with horror.

9 Troopers Die, 28 Hurt In Nazi Truck Mishap

Bochum, Germany, Sept. 10 (AP).—A truck carrying 45 Nazi storm troopers overturned today and killed 9 of them, seriously injuring 28 others.

The truck tumbled down a steep slope.

Wanna Buy A Bear? Park Has Too Many

Yosemite National Park, Calif., Sept. 10 (AP).—Want a bear, anybody?

It's yours for the price of transportation. Bears have increased 50 per cent in the park since 1925, so Ranger Bill Reymann is trying to get rid of a few.

10 Lose Lives In 2 Floods; Three Missing

Two Families Wiped Out When Cloudburst Hits Home.

Thousands in Damage Done on Reservation in South Dakota.

(Associated Press.)

Ten deaths and thousands of dollars in property damage were charged to floods which swept a South Dakota Indian reservation and Denver and its suburbs yesterday.

Eight persons, comprising two families, were trapped in their beds by a 12-foot wall of water which swept down a creek near Fort Thompson, S. Dak. A 10-inch rainfall preceded the flood.

An 86-year-old farm woman and her grandson were drowned in the Denver area where a cloudburst flooded streams which in turn swelled the Platte River. Three other persons were missing.

2 Families Wiped Out.

Fort Thompson, S. D., Sept. 10 (AP).—A twelve-foot wall of water, sent down a creek by a cloudburst, swept eight persons to death early today after ripping apart a small frame house in which they were sleeping.

Two families were wiped out as the surging torrent, resulting from a ten-inch rainfall last night, smashed the three-room house into Soldier Creek without warning at 3 a. m. Five bodies have been recovered.

The victims were Fred Loudner, janitor of a school; Mrs. Loudner, and their four children, and a couple named Paplant, from Rosebud, in Todd County. The children, three girls and a boy, ranged in age from 2 to 16 years.

Floods Ravage Denver.

Denver, Sept. 10 (AP).—Two persons drowned, at least three were missing and damage estimated in the hundred thousands of dollars was caused by a series of floods that deluged Denver and suburbs today.

The known dead: Mrs. Elizabeth James, 66-year-old farm woman, and her 9-year-old grandson, Benny James.

Missing were a farmer living south of Littleton, Colo., and two boys who were reported to have driven their motor car into the flood swollen Platte River north of Denver.

3 Drown in Leap Off Flaming Boat

Overturned Gasoline Pail Causes Tragedy.

Warrensburg, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP).—The bodies of the three boys drowned in Schroon River last night when they leaped from a flaming rowboat, were recovered today.

The boys were Wilbur Stanley, 16; Howard Wells, 14, and John Wells, 12, all of Lewisville, near here. Reyburn Ross, 14, swam ashore.

The boys were lighting "cattails," which first were dipped in a bucket of gasoline in the boat. Wells overturned the bucket and the gasoline caught fire.

All of the boys attempted to swim, but three went down about 10 feet from a pier.

2 Ships Sink in Crash, 13 in One Crew Drown

Oporto, Portugal, Sept. 10 (U.P.).—Thirteen in the crew of the steamship Echano, 960 tons, were drowned today when both ships sank following a collision with the Spanish vessel Romeu, 3,070 tons, north of Leixoes.

Six in the Echano's crew, including the captain, were saved. All on board the Romeu were rescued.

Illinois Group Brings Relief Plea to Capital

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP).—A party of 40 Illinoisans headed by Gov. Henry Horner and Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago, left today for Washington, where they will present a plea for Federal funds with which to continue relief work in the State.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis will join the group in Washington.

Bird Boards Liner 300 Miles at Sea; Travels in Style

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—The liner Berlin docked this morning with a crested brown thrush traveling first cabin.

The thrush boarded the liner Saturday morning 300 miles out of New York and at once took possession of Cabin 27.

Steward Albert Steckman expressed the belief that since thrushes are not distance flyers this one must have flown to the Berlin from an outbound ship.

'Yankee Imperialism' Hit as Rebel Leader Becomes Cuban Ruler

Tension Relaxes as Junta Gives Way to New Chief Executive.

Recognition by America Will Await Evidence of Order.

(United Press.)

Tension created by the prospect of intervention in Cuba relaxed yesterday as the State Department watched to see whether Ramon Grau San Martin, new president of Cuba, would be able to establish a government strong enough to preserve order.

President Grau San Martin conferred by telephone with Manuel Marquez Sterling, designated American Ambassador by the fallen De Cespedes regime, and told him all was quiet throughout Cuba. Sterling will not have technical ambassadorial position here until a recognized Cuban government provides him with credentials.

Both at the Cuban Embassy and at the State and Navy Departments it was evident that fear of immediate American action in Cuba was lessening rapidly.

Fleet Still Assembling.

The growing fleet of American warships in and near Cuban waters continued to assemble, ready for whatever action proved necessary, and at Quantico the Seventh Regiment of Marines waited for marching orders. But at the Navy Department all was quiet and the State Department continued its watchful attitude.

No indications was forthcoming of this Government's viewpoint toward the new Cuban president, but it was felt that if he showed he could prevent violence to foreigners the State Department and President Roosevelt would be satisfied. The official viewpoint has been throughout the crisis that the United States would use every possible means to avoid intervention and would remain strictly neutral as between Cuban factions if some group established a stable regime.

Army Danger Seen.

The most serious danger, observers here felt, lay in the attitude of the officers of the Cuban army whose men rebelled against them to overthrow the De Cespedes government.

If the officers supported the new government, it was believed it would have a strong chance of maintaining order. On the other hand, if their influence over sections of the army remained sufficient, they might be able by opposing the government to precipitate a degree of confusion which would make United States action necessary.

Latin Attitude Watched.

The State Department watched with interest the results of President Roosevelt's friendly gesture in asking Mexico and the ABC powers of South America to lend their moral assistance in the Cuban crisis. Mexico responded by inviting the other nations to join in an appeal to Cuba to establish a stable government and Chile replied to that by proposing that the appeal be extended to all Latin American nations—a suggestion interpreted here as looking toward a demonstration of Pan-American solidarity. This, combined with Argentina's note to the United States yesterday strongly opposing intervention, offered some indication that the Cuban situation might lead to a precedent in cooperative Pan-American diplomatic action which would have far-reaching results.

3 Racers Killed In Auto Classic

Noted Trio Die in Italian Contest Won by France.

Monza, Italy, Sept. 10 (AP).—Three noted automobile racers — the Italians, Giuseppe Campari and Mario Borzachini, and the Pole, Czaichowski—were killed today during the annual running of the Grand Prix de Monza, automobile classic, in which the American, Whitney Straight, finished fourth.

When Campari skidded off the track, Borzachini's machine crashed into him. Two other cars smashed into the tangle.

Czaichowski was burned to death during the finals, when his car caught fire in the middle of the track. The race was won by the Frenchman, Lehoux, who averaged 177.6 kilometers an hour for the 62 kilometers.

Turks Hail Tsaldaris As Greek Peace Envoy

Istanbul, Turkey, Sept. 10 (AP).—A Turkish triumphal arch with a welcoming inscription in Greek greeted Premier Tsaldaris of Greece on his arrival today to sign an amity pact between the two countries.

The treaty, which contains military clauses for the defense of frontiers to reinforce an existing friendship accord, will be signed at Ankara where the Greek representative and his suite are proceeding tonight. The visit today coincided with a celebration by the City of Smyrna of the tenth anniversary of its deliverance from Greek occupation.

Maine Voters At Polls Today On Prohibition

Ratification Would Put Twenty-Six States in Wet Column.

Portland, Me., Sept. 10 (AP).—With its history of more than three-quarters of a century of prohibition, Maine will vote tomorrow to determine whether it shall be the twenty-sixth State to ratify repeal.

Repeal forces made their concluding bid for support in a rally in Portland City Hall last night, at which Postmaster General James A. Farley and Govs. Louis J. Brann expressed confidence in the outcome, warning the electorate, however, against indifference.

Robinson Verrill, chairman of the Maine division of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, estimated the sentiment was "two-to-one for repeal."

The Rev. Frederick W. Smith, superintendent of the Maine Christian Civic League, said "the majority sentiment of the State is with us, but discouraged by the defeatist attitude sown by the wets."

In the background of the contest lurked the shadow of the State's 50-year-old prohibition amendment.

Two French Fliers Out to Set Record

Reach Algeria to Arrange Hop to Far East.

Oran, Algeria, Sept. 10 (AP).—The French fliers, Rene Lefevre and Jean Assolant, arrived today from Le Bourget, France, in a plane they renamed the Canary Bird II, in memory of the machine in which they flew the Atlantic.

They began preparations for an attempt to beat the long-distance flight record held by their countrymen, Codos and Rossi. They announced that if conditions were favorable they would start in October on a flight to the Far East.

Codos and Rossi flew 5,657 miles from Floyd Bennett Field, New York, to Rayak, Syria.

Argentina Celebrates Anniversary of Coup

Buenos Aires, Sept. 10 (U.P.).—Five thousand well-drilled, uniformed members of the Argentine Civic Legion marched in perfect military formation through the streets of Buenos Aires today in commemoration of the third anniversary of the coup d'etat staged September 10, 1930, by Gen. Jose F. Uriburu. The paraders, led by Lieut. Col. Kinkelin, once Uriburu's right-hand man, were given an enthusiastic reception by huge crowds, which lined the bedagged streets.

3 Japan Cadets Facing Death

Life Sentences Demanded for 3 Others on Trial in Murder Plot.

Tokyo, Monday, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Death sentences for Naval Cadets Mikami and Uroiwa, who shot the aged Premier Inukai to death "for motives of patriotism," were demanded by the procurator at their court-martial today.

Death was also asked for Cadet Kiyoshi Koga, ringleader of the plot, who killed a policeman in the same uprising.

Life sentences were demanded for Cadets Nakamura, Yamagishi, and Murayama, prominent in the uprising. Sentences of six years imprisonment were asked for Cadets Ogi and Hayashi, and three years for Cadet Tsukano.

The sentences were recommended to the Naval court-martial trying the cadets as the result of the outbreak of September 5, 1932.

Navy and army cadets, scions of ancient Japanese families, combined in an attempt to overthrow parliamentary government in the empire, cause a breach between the United States and Japan, overthrow capitalism, and return Japan to "the kingly way" of by-gone centuries.

Train-Auto Crash Takes Toll of 3

Goshen, Ind., Sept. 10 (AP).—A mother and her two daughters were killed today when a New York Central passenger train struck an automobile stalled on a crossing.

The victims were Mrs. Kathryn Zollinger, 46; Lois Elizabeth, 18, and Esther Jean, 11.

Mrs. Zollinger's 14-year-old son, Joseph, was injured, but her husband, G. Clinton Zollinger, escaped unhurt.

The father and son jumped from the car as it stalled on the tracks. Mrs. Zollinger also had left the car but was struck and killed by the debris of the automobile.

Ramon Grau San Martin, University Professor, Made President.

Six Cabinet Posts Filled; Crowd Demonstrates Against U. S.

(Associated Press.)

Dr. Ramon Grau San Martin became President of Cuba yesterday.

Nine more United States destroyers approached the island.

A partial cabinet also was appointed before the new executive was hailed by a cheering crowd at the palace in Havana.

As the destroyers reached Cuban waters, the position of some other American ships was changed.

Washington studied the question of recognizing the new Cuban regime.

President Roosevelt was reported insistent on proof that the new government could maintain order.

As a protest against the presence of American warships, 5,000 persons gathered in Havana's Central Park at a Communist mass meeting. Speakers attacked the new government and there were cries of "Down with Yankee imperialism!"

(Copyright, 1933, by The Associated Press.)

Havana, Sept. 10 (AP).—Named president by the five-man commission controlling Cuba's turbulent affairs, Dr. Ramon Grau San Martin, tall, 48-year-old former university professor, today took office as head of the island's fourth government since one month ago.

No disorders accompanied his taking the oath at noon before magistrates of the supreme court at the presidential palace. But before dusk Havana's Central Park resounded to cries of "down with Yankee imperialism" in a gathering of 5,000 persons.

San Martin Attacked.

Assembled at a Communist mass meeting to protest the presence of American warships in Cuban waters, the crowd heard Dr. Grau San Martin's new revolutionary government scored by agitators for lending itself to "the machinations of Wall street's financiers."

Otherwise there was little indication in Havana of crystallized public sentiment either for or against the new regime. Some 300 officers of the old regime of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes had prepared a demand that he be returned to the presidency, even if only for a short

U. S. Mines Scene Of Strife in Cuba

One Dies in Strike Clash Near Santiago.

Santiago, Cuba, Sept. 10 (AP).—One man was killed tonight when strikers and miners clashed at American-owned manganese mines in Cristo, a nearby town.

Santiago was quiet, but armed bands continued moving about near Holguin, Juguani, and Palma Soriano, issuing threats of rebellion against the new Cuban government.

Information received here was that the gangs supported former President Mario G. Menocal. The Holguin band was said to number 300.

Army officers in Santiago continued in their refusal to return to their posts, following last Monday's rebellion of their troops.

Airplane Victim Is Hunted Here

Police Are Told Body Fell From Craft Over City.

A report that a body was seen hurtling from an airplane over Northeast Washington last night sent police and the rescue squad into an intensive search through a heavily wooded area.

The report was given by Mrs. Ella Perry and Adell Scrother, 4249 Grant street northeast. They told police they saw a plane flying low and a body fall.

Police used powerful searchlights to aid the search, and then summoned the rescue squad. The area searched is bounded by Minnesota avenue, Forty-fourth street, Sheriff road and Dean avenue northeast.

Four hours of beating through the district proved futile. Airports did not report an accident. Police continued the search.

Liquor Price Soars as Repeal Banner Unfurls

Distilleries Hold Stock for "Cutting" When Law Is Gone; Tax Studied.

(Associated Press.)

Confidently expecting repeal within a few months, distilleries have virtually doubled their prices for medicinal whisky, and even at such a level are, in many cases, refusing to part with their stocks of aged liquor.

The situation is such, in fact, that officials of the industrial alcohol division predict it may soon become necessary to import liquor to supply the demand of drug stores, which has increased many times since the Celler law removed the old limitation upon the number of prescriptions a physician may issue.

Waiting to "Cut" Supply.

The price has gone to such a height that Dr. James M. Doran, chief of the division, believes that importers could almost match the domestic price even after paying the tariff of $5 a gallon.

The purpose of the distillers in clinging to their prewar liquors, officials of the division say, is this:

If prohibition is repealed they will be free to multiply their stocks through "rectification," a proces that the bootleggers call "cutting." It consists of adding pure grain alcohol and other ingredients to aged liquor.

Using this method, the distillers could increase their supply, now between 4,000,000 and 4,500,000 gallons, many fold. The only limit, one official of the division said today, is "how much conscience and how much alcohol they may have."

Under prohibition, rectification is forbidden by the law under which medicinal whisky is produced.

Pondering the problem presented by the present shortage of medicinal liquor, Dr. Doran, in conjunction with two other Treasury officials, is preparing a compilation of the old laws, judicial decisions and administrative rulings that would automatically become effective if and when prohibition is repealed.

Asked by Roosevelt.

They—the others are Capt. S. D. Bliss, in charge of miscellaneous internal revenue, and J. D. Nevius, general counsel of the Customs Bureau—were given the task by Acting Secretary Acheson, at President Roosevelt's request.

They have already determined that, lacking further legislation by Congress, the internal revenue tax would be $1.10 a gallon and the tariff $5 for the same quantity. This tax figure is known as the "basic" rate. It was doubled and tripled during the war. After prohibition a tax of $6.40 a gallon was imposed upon liquor diverted for beverage purposes.

Special Session Possible.

The purpose of the compilation is to give President Roosevelt a basis upon which to work in making recommendations to Congress regarding liquor taxes, tariffs and administrative statutes.

Administration officials now expect prohibition to be repealed December 6, a month before Congress meets, and speculation is growing as to whether a special session will be called, so that the Treasury may benefit from the big consumption which could be expected after the thirty-sixth State ratifies.

It's Sure, Ritchie Says.

Baltimore, Sept. 10 (AP).—With both wet and dry leaders pleading for a heavy vote, the Maryland campaign for repeal of the eighteenth amendment will close tomorrow.

"There never has been any doubt about Maryland going for repeal next Tuesday," said Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, chairman of the State anti-prohibition committee. "The only question is the size of the majority.

"If Maryland goes wet it will be because the people fail to vote in great numbers," said George W. Crabbe, superintendent of the Maryland Antisaloon League.

Ritchie took the position that Maryland was the pioneer of repeal.

"Maryland will not be following the 25 States which have voted ahead of her," he said. "Those 25 States followed Maryland, because one by one they came around to the side which Maryland pioneered."

The Maryland polls will close at 5 o'clock. The voters will elect three delegates to the State repeal convention, to be held October 18, from each of the State's six Congressional districts. They also will elect six delegates from the State at large.

New Dry Crusade Begun.

(Associated Press.)

One strong prohibition organization making a determined drive for a new, but different prohibition amendment to the Constitution was advocated yesterday in a letter from Deets Pickett, research secretary for the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to weekly church papers.

Pickett frankly expressed the belief that the eighteenth amendment will be repealed, attributing a part of the difficulties of the dry forces to lack of funds for carrying on campaigns in the States; failure of the Federal Government to properly enforce the dry laws and to "an unfavorable press and the constant warfare of such agencies as the theater and the magazines."

Farley Sure of Maine.

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—On the eve of the prohibition repeal election in Maine, Chairman James A. Farley, of the Democratic national committee, said he had no hesitancy tonight in saying the traditionally dry New England State would vote "overwhelmingly" tomorrow in favor of repeal.

Farley spoke in Portland last night and said his audience manifested an interest in repeal that was "a pleasure to behold."

At the same time the Democratic leader announced the sending of telegrams to Colorado, Maryland and Minnesota, asking for a favorable vote on repeal when those States go to the polls Tuesday.

3 States Vote Tomorrow on Liquor Return

Wets and Drys Optimistic on Repeal Balloting; Others Due Soon.

(By Associated Press.)

Voters in Minnesota, Colorado and Maryland will decide the question of prohibition repeal tomorrow.

Gov. Ritchie of Maryland predicted that his State will vote for repeal while George W. Crabbe, State superintendent of the Antisaloon League, says the dry vote would "surprise the press and public generally."

In Colorado Superintendent Dexheimer of the State Antisaloon League said the antirepeal forces were "depending on the rural vote to offset expected wet majorities in Denver, Trinidad and Pueblo." On the other hand, Edward Nicholson, head of the Colorado Repeal League, forecast a plurality of more than 50,000 for repeal.

Two States will vote on ratification next week and six on November 7, bringing the total voting by that date to 39. The conventions will be held at a later date. The thirty-sixth convention is scheduled for December 6.

The States voting in the next few months and the dates follow:

Maine, September 11; Maryland, September 12; Colorado, September 12; Minnesota, September 12; Idaho, September 19; New Mexico, September 19; Virginia, October 3; Florida, October 10; Kentucky, November 7; North Carolina, November 7; Ohio, November 7; Pennsylvania, November 7; South Carolina, November 7; Utah, November 7.

Sides Sure in Colorado.

Denver, Sept. 10 (AP).—There was no lack of confidence in either wet or dry camps as Colorado arranged to vote on repeal.

Colorado was regarded as a traditionally dry State until the general election last November. At the 1932 election, however, the people voted by a plurality of 50,540 to strike the State prohibition amendment from the Constitution and wipe all liquor laws from the statute books.

The antirepealists will wind up their State-wide campaign tomorrow night with a rally in the Denver Civic Center. F. Scott McBride, national head of the Antisaloon League, is scheduled to speak.

Volstead in Dry Plea.

St. Paul, Sept. 10 (AP).—Andrew J. Volstead, father of the prohibition enforcement act, today made the final appeal for retention of the eighteenth amendment insofar as Minnesota voters are concerned.

Minnesota, which has legalized 3.2 beer, votes Tuesday on repeal.

All State prohibition laws, except the county option statute, have been repealed.

The beer bill contains the provision that will prevent any hard liquor being sold in this State, even if the necessary three-fourths of the 48 States ratify repeal, unless a special session of the Legislature is called and that proviso is stricken out.

New Chief

President Grau San Martin of Cuba Has Long Led Students.

Havana, Sept. 10 (AP).—Dr. Ramon Grau San Martin, who today was named President of Cuba, is one of the island's prominent surgeons and medical authorities. He has had practically no direct political affiliations, but has been leader of the student directory since 1930.

He was a professor of anatomy at Havana University, but left the island because of his opposition to the Machado regime.

Slightly over 6 feet tall and a bachelor, President Grau San Martin will be 40 years old next Wednesday. He was born in Havana.

Although very wealthy, he lives modestly. His black hair is streaked with gray.

He returned to Cuba with the overthrow of Machado and was named on the executive commission after Monday's coup.

How to Say It.

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—The new President of Cuba, Ramon Grau San Martin, can be called neither President Grau nor President San Martin. He is President Grau San Martin, pronounced Grau (to rhyme with "now") Sahn Mar-teen.

9 Destroyers Sent to Fleet Guarding Cuba

U. S. Refuses to Relax Its Watch as New Rule Inaugurated.

(Associated Press.)

Nine additional Navy destroyers approached Cuban waters last night while administration officials here studied the possibilities of recognizing the island's new revolutionary government.

From within high councils came word that recognition might be accorded quickly, but that President Roosevelt was determined to insist upon complete proof that the new government could maintain order.

Should disorders continue, or should Mr. Roosevelt consider that the Dr. Ramon Grau San Martin régime could not properly set Cuba's house in order, it was said, recognition would be delayed, if given at all.

"Recognition may come tomorrow, or it may come next week, or still again it might not come at all," was the way one administration adviser privately put it.

State Department officers said no reports had been received during the day on the fast tumbling events in Havana and elsewhere.

It was made increasingly plain, however, that the administration had no immediate intention of relaxing preparations for protecting American lives and property in Cuba should the need arise.

Latin-America Treaties Hang On Cuba Crisis

Effect of Intervention on Trade Pacts Cause Diplomats Concern.

(Associated Press.)

In the background of events that have led to talk of American intervention in Cuba, there has arisen before diplomats the question of how such a step would affect negotiations with South American republics for trade treaties.

At the White House and the State Department hours of thought have been given to the widely tangled aspects of such a situation.

The preliminary conversations already have started at the State Department. A conference soon will be held at Montevideo.

Difficulties in Way.

Both actions are designed to stimulate trade between the United States and the Latin-American republics. The separate negotiations are planned to open holes in the tariff walls for specified commodities; the conference will seek to bring all the countries south of the St. Lawrence together in a trade alliance.

The negotiations are delicate in nature. There are many difficult obstacles to overcome. A resentful feeling exists in some countries because of past American activities, and there are trade groups in this country to conciliate.

A desire to foster these negotiations lay behind the call by President Roosevelt for the Latin-American diplomats to come to the White House last week so that he could explain in advance what the Cuban situation was and what the United States intended to do about it.

Plan Antedates Crisis.

But, more than that, the President long ago had decided upon that course in his own mind—many months before the Cuban crisis arose or the trade negotiations started.

He began his study of Cuban affairs a year ago. Before his inauguration he told a friend and close adviser:

"If a situation arises in which it looks as if the United States will have to exercise its obligation under the Platt amendment, I shall call all of the South American countries in and put the situation before them."

Texas Levees Hold Raging River Back

No Cause for Alarm in Rio Grande Valley.

Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 10 (AP).—Flood control works of the lower Rio Grande Valley, packed solid by hard rains which accompanied a tropical hurricane last Monday, held today against battering of the swollen river.

"There is no cause for alarm," said W. E. Anderson, consulting engineer for the International Boundary Commission.

The crest apparently passed Hidalgo, Tex., late today. After reaching a stage of 21.5 feet, the river fell slowly. Hundreds of men were patrolling the levees watching for possible breaks, but none was expected to occur. South of the river, however, Reynosa, Mex., was cut off by water.

Baby Experiment Shows Athletic Training Value

Chicago, Sept. 10 (U.P.).—Dr. Myrtle B. McGraw, of New York, told the American Psychological Association today she has carried on an experiment with twin boy babies to determine the influence of athletics on early training.

Dr. McGraw said she selected the weaker of the twins as the "experimental baby" and used the stronger one as the "control." The "control" baby was subjected regularly to types of treatment recommended by pediatric experts. The experimental baby was given special athletics training.

At the end of one year the experimental baby was able to climb, roller skate and swim. The other baby still refuses to climb from a 2-foot pedestal. He can not skate and he makes very feeble efforts at swimming.

Gangsters Lose Court Fights As Legal Beer Ruins Racket

Former Bootleggers Turn Robbers; No Money for Lawyers.

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP).—Gangsters, gunmen and robbers in increasing numbers are coming into court with empty pockets.

High bonds and speedy trials have cramped the finances of scores of defendants during the current drive on crime. Their troubles began, State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney said today, with legalization of beer.

Minor hoodlums were driven from bootlegging back into their former trades of robbery and burglary, Courtney said. For a while these crimes increased, and then a half dozen judges passed up their vacations in order to dispense fast justice.

Bail bonds were set high. The public defender, Benjamin Bachman, defended 222 persons in August. Lawyers who have appeared with hoodlums in past years have been absent.

"In not one instance," Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker said, "has any gangster appeared in court with the type of lawyer that hoodlums employed in former days."

Criminal courts disposed of 258 cases in July and 472 in August. There were only 24 demands for jury trials in July and 116 in August. Only 66 defendants were sentenced to the penitentiary in July, 3 for life, as compared with 234 in August, 12 for life.

Transvaal to License New Stock Exchange

Johannesburg, South Africa, Sept. 10 (U.P.).—The financial district was aroused today when the Transvaal Provincial Government announced it would license the establishment of an "open-call" exchange, in opposition to the Johannesburg Stock Exchange.

Opponents contend such a move would permit unrestricted gambling.

Chicago Trade Breaks Record; Continues Gain

Boom Beginning Labor Day Sweeping Business to High Peaks.

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP).—The Chicago business man of the recent gloomy visage is wearing an expansive smile these days.

He has tossed his red ink bottle into a refuse can and from early morn until late at night can be heard thumping out a joyous symphony on his cash register.

The reason is economic—Chicago is booming and the boom is one of the greatest in the city's history.

The upturn which started with the opening of the Century of Progress Exposition has gathered momentum steadily, and the peak, leaders say, is not yet in sight.

All Business Boomed.

Practically every line of business has benefited by the stimulating flow of money accompanying the ingress of world's fair pleasure seekers and workers have likewise profited. Employment figures are at four-year highs.

During the past week $40,000,000 business was done by the city's hotels, theaters, restaurants, retail stores, the world's fair and amusement enterprises. It is estimated records in dozens of trade lines were broken.

The record-smashing volume was started Labor Day, when 500,000 visitors came to Chicago for the holiday. A total of $25,000,000 in business was done in the holiday week-end.

Other High Spots.

Other high spots for the week in which Chicago had the largest population in its history, include:

Loop theaters set new records for receipts. State street department stores reported largest numbers of customers in years. Loop hotels were crowded to capacity. Neighborhood hotels and lodging houses reported record business. Food and commodity brokers announced the best business volume in their memory.

U. S. "Imperialism" Assailed by Cubans period, and Horacio Ferrer, former secretary of war, left the Hotel National to present the demand to the new president.

Political circles regarded this move as indicating the differences between the officers and the new regime might be settled.

At noon today President Grau San Martin appeared on the balcony of the Presidential Palace before a crowd of 3,000 and pledged himself "to fulfill entirely the revolutionary program," with maximum respect "to all interests established here." Then he went to his home to rest.

Six Cabinet Posts Filled.

The commission controlling Cuba's affairs had accomplished its chief task, choosing a president. It then set about naming a cabinet and provisionally chose six members.

Col. Julio Aguado, secretary of war.

Jose Barquin, secretary of the treasury.

Eduardo Chibas, secretary of public works.

Carlos Finlay, secretary of sanitation.

Antonio Guiteras, secretary of the interior.

Sergio Carbo, secretary of agriculture.

It was learned the six men may be switched to other posts and there was said to be a possibility a woman might be named to the cabinet.

Three members of the junta, it was announced, will not participate in the new government. They are Guillermo Portela Jose Irizarri, and Porfirio Franco.

Shot Starts Commotion.

Until the park demonstration the only commotion following upon the President's inauguration was started at the National Hotel when someone fired a rifle in the lobby. The De Cespedes officers maintained headquarters at the hotel and on several occasions soldiers had surrounded the palace, presumably on orders from the government. The commotion was short-lived, however, and the officers proceeded with their meeting.

Reports from Santiago said a crisis had arisen when army officers supporters of former President Menocal, had refused to assume their posts in opposition to the new government. Business and traffic was said to be at a standstill.

At Camaguey, it was reported 21 army officers deposed by the recent revolutionary coup, returned to their posts tonight, swearing allegiance to the government of San Martin.

The meeting in Central Park was authorized yesterday by the government. Although originally intended to protest presence of American warships, paraders carried banners bearing such signs as "Death to Sumner Welles," "American Marines: Leave Cuban Waters," and "Long Live the Cuban Communist Party." One of the largest bore an inscription asking soldiers and sailors to join in a "new revolutionary movement."

Red Banners Waved.

Not one Cuban flag was displayed at the meeting, but scores of red banners waved. One speaker said Ambassador Welles "was sent down to Cuba to serve the interests of the filthy capitalists."

Finally, after an appeal made by a young student to the Cuban people, asking them not to buy American goods, the meeting broke up.

Students speaking from the palace balcony earlier in the day attacked American policies in Cuba and, by implication, but not by name, United States Ambassador Welles.

Guillermo Belt, secretary of education in the De Cespedes administration, characterized the new government as one created by "a minority of the minority."

10-Cent Suit

Magistrate Wears Clothes Made by Wife of Fertilizer Bags.

Windsor, N. C., Sept. 10 (AP).—J. P. Slade, Ulander magistrate, is displaying the latest style clothing while waiting for the end of the depression.

He conducted court last week in a 10-cent suit fashioned by his wife from fertilizer bags and bleached to look like ready-made cotton suits.

"The banks closed and made me a poor man, but as long as my wife and daughter can make suits from fertilizer sacks I'll not worry."

Miners Vote Strike if Code Is Not Signed

Southwest Pennsylvania Walkout Threatened Wednesday.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 10 (AP).—A strike of southwestern Pennsylvania bituminous coal mines is threatened unless the coal code is signed Tuesday by operators.

Culminating a series of mass meetings today, two large groups in Fayette and Greene counties voted to take a "holiday" Wednesday, after listening to Martin F. Ryan, insurgent United Mine Workers' leader, who played a large part in the August strike.

Ryan told the men that a "showdown" between the operators and the union is at hand. He asked that they lay down their tools Wednesday until they have won recognition of their union.

Ryan assured his listeners he has pledges from representatives in almost every mine in the area to join the walkout.

Nine hundred workers at the Mather mine in Greene County, decided to quit tomorrow. Already three of the Pittsburgh Coal Co. mines and one of the H. C. Frick Co. have been shut down by strikes.

The situation is made tense because a majority of the mines are "captives," owned by steel companies who use their entire output, and who have refused to take a part in formulation of the coal code.

Czechoslovakia Seeking American Films Again

Prague, Sept. 10.—Because of a shortage of German films suitable for exhibition in Czechoslovakia a move is afoot in the Czechoslovakian film-hiring business for the reopening of negotiations with the American film-producing industry to import American films to the country again.

For some months no American film has been imported, following a dispute between American and Czech film organizations. Czech film production is increasing, but is far from being in a position to fill the gap created by the surrender of the German film industry to Nazi propaganda.

Gandhi Sends Message To Faiths Fellowship

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP).—A communication from Mahatma Gandhi was read tonight before the World Fellowship of Faiths.

"What message can I send through the pen," Gandhi wrote, "if I am not sending any through the life I am living? Let me try to live as it may please God. When he wants me to send a written message he will tell me."

The message was read by Kedernath Das Gupta, of India, a Fellowship executive.

Lindbergh Disguises Self on Swedish Hike

Stockholm, Sept. 10.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who has been spending a few days hiking in the Swedish countryside, paying a short visit to the neighborhood where his family originated, resorted to disguise to escape public attention.

Today he returned and held conferences with Gen. Eric Virgin, chief of the Swedish air service, and Capt. Florman, a director of the Aerotransport Company.

San Francisco Socialite Found Shot to Death

Palo Alto, Calif., Sept. 10 (AP).—Alan Crocker Van Fleet, socially prominent San Francisco attorney, was found dead in his motor car near the Menlo Country Club today, a bullet hole through his head.

He had been missing since yesterday afternoon, when he told his wife, Mrs. Alice Van Fleet, he was going to the club to play golf. She notified police when he failed to return last night.

Roundup

Rapid Changes in Cuba's Government Tersely Outlined.

Havana, Sept. 10 (AP).—Today's events brought the fourth change in Cuba's government within a month.

The chronology:

August 12.—Gen. Gerardo Machado ousted by a military revolt in the fifth year of his second term as president. Escapes from the island by airplane.

August 13. — Carlos Manuel de Cespedes sworn in as provisional president. Appoints cabinet representing all parties opposed to Machado.

September 5.—De Cespedes government resigns, giving way to junta of five men after non-commissioned officers and students stage bloodless coup d'etat.

September 10.—Junta inducts Dr. Ramon Grau San Martin into the presidency.

Ford Remains Silent in Camp

One Report Says He Plans to Steal Away on Boat to Detroit.

Big Bay, Mich., Sept. 10 (AP).—There were no signs of activity today at Henry Ford's Huron Mountain camp, where he has been on vacation for three weeks, and nothing to indicate the motor manufacturer expected to be back in his Dearborn office tomorrow, as had been expected.

At Detroit, a Ford official said he had no definite word as to when "the chief" would return.

There was a report Ford was planning to slip away from camp on a boat of the Ford fleet that plies the Great Lakes. No early change in the Ford attitude toward the NRA, nor any immediate official elucidation of policy is expected even when Ford returns to his office.

Southern States Seek To Aid Rooming Needy

Atlanta, Sept. 10 (AP).—The National administration today opened its field efforts to improve the lot of wandering citizens in a conference here of Southeastern States' relief directors, representatives of the National Relief Administration, and others.

The meeting, continuing through tomorrow, will organize a correlated transient relief plan for the States represented—Tennessee, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida.

Pitman on Way Here With Silver Program

Reno, Nev., Sept. 10 (U.P.).—Senator Pittman departed today for Washington to confer with President Roosevelt on a plan, which, if carried out, may raise the price of silver to $1.19 an ounce.

The program contemplates an executive order directing all United States mints to coin silver into dollars and return the dollars to the producer after deducting 10 per cent minting costs.

Code Classing False Teeth as Drugs Assailed

Medical Journal Opposes Parts of Association Agreement.

Chicago, Sept. 10 (U.P.).—The American Medical Juornal made public today its opposition to some sections of the NRA code formulated by the National Association of Retail Druggists.

A possibility that eye-glasses, trusses and even false teeth might be classified as "drugs" under the code's provisions was expressed by the Journal, official publication of the American Medcial Association.

"There is danger that provisions involving the medical profession, hospitals, dispensaries and similar institutions may react to the disadvantage of the public," the editorial stated.

The Journal interpreted the code as meaning possibly that every hospital and dispensary would be classified as a "drug store" and thus require the constant presence of one or more registered pharmacists.

German Actress Missing; Reported Jail Suicide

Prague, Sept. 10.—The popular German soubrette, Heidy Eihler, who was recently arrested in Berlin, was reported in the Prager Mittag today to have hanged herself in her cell in Moabit Prison.

Fraulein Eihler quarreled with one of the stage directors at a recent rehearsal and unwisely shouted at him, "perhaps you're also one of the Reichstag incendiaries!" The director, who is also head of the Nazi cell in the theater, had her arrested immediately and for several days no news of her could be obtained.

Lost Balloonists Believed Safe By Officials

Confident of Their Rescue as Search Is Pushed; Poles Hold Lead.

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP).—While the search went on by land, water and air for Ward T. Van Orman and Frank Trotter, missing contestants in the twenty-first annual international James Gordon Bennett balloon races, officials here tonight expressed confidence that the pair was safe.

Cliff Henderson, director of the race in which six balloons took off September 2, said that the Goodyear IX, occupied by the two, had the best equipment of any of the entrants to cope with the dangers of forced descent either on land or water.

"Van Orman took along a rubber life raft that would enable him and Trotter to make shore if they were forced down on water," Henderson said. "And if they dropped in some uninhabited region, they've supplies enough for a month. Frankly, I believe they'll be found alive and well."

Last night the Polish contestants trekked into the Canadian village of Riviere a Pierre.

Apparently the Poles covered the greatest distance so far reported by the contestants. It is a little over 800 miles by estimate from Chicago to their landing place.

Their distance apparently exceeds the 750 miles negotiated by Lieut. T. G. W. Settle, pilot of the Navy entrant, who dropped Monday night on Long Island Sound.

Weather Grounds Macon.

(Associated Press.)

High winds sweeping over the Lakehurst, N. J., Naval Air Base yesterday held the dirigible Macon within its hangar, delaying for another day at least the Navy's search for the two James Gordon Bennett balloon racers who are still missing.

The Lakehurst commandant deemed it inadvisable to attempt even to pull the Macon from its protecting shed.

Admiral William H. Standley, in ordering the Macon to join in the search, said that the ship should take no undue risks.

The dirigible will search along the northern New England Coast for Ward T. Van Orman and his aid, Frank A. Trotter, since the finding of the Polish entry, Capt. Francizek Hynek, in Canada, indicated a northward drift for the two Americans.

Tammany Hall Getting Ready

Political Machine Buzzes With Excitement as Election Nears.

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—On the surface there seems to be no mayoralty campaign impending—beneath the surface Tammany Hall, practical political machine, is functioning at high speed.

Tammany, bent on reelecting Mayor John P. O'Brien, is preparing quietly to overcome the greatest obstacles it has faced since John Purroy Mitchel headed the fusion movement that thrust it out of power from 1914 to 1917.

Disregarding Loring M. Black and Jerome G. Ambrose, O'Brien's opponents in the September 19 primaries, Tammany is devoting its energies to the November campaign, when Fiorello H. LaGuardia, the fusion candidate, will be faced.

Economic conditions, the city's financial distress, memories of the Seabury revelations and the persistent attacks of many New York newspapers on O'Brien's fitness, all must be conjured with, and Tammany recognizes its problems.

Fusionists are talking about a house-to-house canvass for LaGuardia. Tammany leaders scoff at the idea. Their viewpoint is expressed by John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Brooklyn and Tammany's chief ally:

"In the 40 years I have been active in politics I have never seen a house-to-house canvass, nor do I know of any having been made. That is just political bunk."

Legion of Valor Opens Reunion in New York

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—A memorial service tonight at the eternal light in Madison Square opened the forty-third annual reunion of the Army and Navy Legion of Valor.

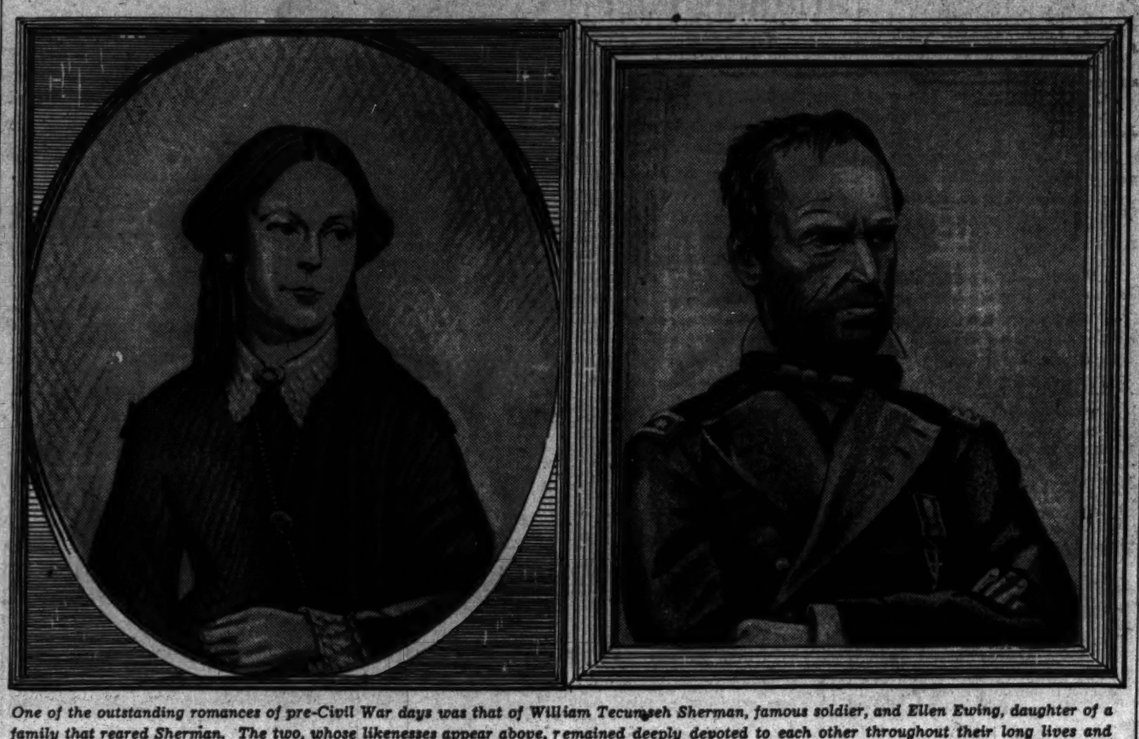
Half-Forgotten Romances of American History

Ellen Ewing and William Tecumseh Sherman



One of the outstanding romances of pre-Civil War days was that of William Tecumseh Sherman, famous soldier, and Ellen Ewing, daughter of a family that reared Sherman. The two, whose likenesses appear above, remained deeply devoted to each other throughout their long lives and died within three years of each other.

Famous Soldier Found His Romance in Family That Reared Him.

By Elisabeth E. Poe.

Romance, like success, sometimes may be found close at home, although each maid may dream of a prince charming from over the hills and every lad has visions of a princess he must rescue from evil on some distant quest.

There always is something peculiarly touching in the romance of those who have known each other from childhood or—even like Ellen Ewing and William Tecumseh Sherman—those who lived side by side in the same home during their childhood.

As Ellen Ewing Sherman said in her latter days: "There never was but one boy or one man in my life and his name was William Tecumseh Sherman," so this brave general and Civil War hero had but one real sweetheart his whole life long and her name was Ellen Ewing Sherman.

Man of Sentiment.

Those who think of Sherman in terms of his march to the sea through war-stricken Georgia and as the leader of victorious Union troops never realize how sentimental this man was, how he was one of the figures in an outstanding romance in American history and that he lived up to the Cavalier blood he had in his veins.

Few have accorded Ellen Ewing Sherman the rightful place she held in the life of this renowned soldier. It was her inspiration as well as the flag of his country that led him on to heroic deeds, that made him the "fighting prophet" of a better union that was to come through war and conflict. Just as the "sailor's wife, the sailor's star shall be," the bright eyes of Ellen Ewing Sherman were ever a beacon for first her playmate, then her sweetheart and, lastly, her husband. It was through her influence that he formulated his strikingly theory of the soldier expressed in his old age but acted throughout all his years. It is worthy of the quoting:

Knights Errant.

"There is nothing in life more beautiful than the soldier. A knight errant with steel casque, lance in hand, has always commanded the admiration of men and women. The modern soldier is his legitimate successor and you, my comrades, were not hirelings; you never were, but knight errants transformed into modern soldiers, as good as they were and better."

William Tecumseh Sherman did not come idly by this heroic strain. Of a long line of pioneer men and women, who had aided first to mold the New England of Colonial days and then followed the trail of adventure westward into unknown lands, the Shermans had learned in many a strenuous conflict that often what was worth having was worth the fighting for. They were people of godly persuasions, these Shermans, sure in their faith and the belief in a higher power.

While William Tecumseh Sherman was never more than a nominal churchman, he had an underlying faith once beautifully expressed in the following words: "I am sure that you know that the God who created the minnow and who has molded the rose and the carnation, giving each its sweet fragrance, will provide for those mortal men who strive to do right in the world which He, himself, has stocked with birds, animals and men—at all events I will trust Him with absolute confidence."

Named For Indian Chief.

It was in New Lancaster, Ohio, that Charles Sherman, father of William Tecumseh Sherman, drove a stake in the ground and said, "Here will I build my home." A thousand miles over the hills and mountains from Norwalk, Conn., he brought his young wife. He became a great friend of Tecumseh, the famous Indian chief, recognized by all as a statesman rather than as a savage. So, on February 8, 1820, when a red-haired boy was born to his wife and himself he named it for his redskin friend, Tecumseh, which in the Indian language meant "Shooting Star."

There were neighbors of theirs in New Lancaster, Thomas Ewing and his good wife, Maria Boyle Ewing, a daughter of Hugh Boyle, an Irish gentleman, who had fled to America when 18 because of a disagreement with the British authorities. He afterward became a county clerk and honored and respected in that section of Ohio. Soon after Tecumseh Sherman was born, there was also an infant in the Ewing household—Eleanor—the Ellen of after years. The two children must have played often in the sunlight on the spacious lawns of the Sherman and Ewing homes, which were on the self-same New Lancaster hill. Happiness seemed unending. Yet around the corner awaited the Dark Angel for his cue.

It came when Tecumseh was but 9 years old. His father, now Judge Sherman, was taken suddenly ill and died with a disease after diagnosed as cholera. His widow was left with 11 children. Thomas Ewing knew the widow never could care for all of them. After a suitable time he called on her and said: "I want one of your boys. You must give me the brightest of the lot, and I will make a man out of him."

"Take Cump," exclaimed "Cump's" sister, Elizabeth, "he's the smartest."

So Tecumseh Sherman was adopted into the household of Thomas Ewing, and little Ellen—now 5 years old—had another big brother.

Thomas Ewing was faithful to his trust. Tecumseh Sherman became part of their family. The Ewings, through the Irish mother, Maria Boyle, were Roman Catholics, and with Mrs. Sherman's consent—she was an Episcopalian—Tecumseh was baptized into that faith, and William was added to his pagan name—Tecumseh.

Little Ellen's Idol.

Tecumseh was the protector, guide and idol of little Ellen. He was perfectly contented in his new home and had but one real worry—his red hair. Once he dyed it, but it came out an even more odious green. So he desisted and the red hair remained red until it turned gray.

United States Senatar Thomas Ewing had appointments for West Point at his disposal. When Tecumseh became 13 years of age, he was sent to the "Point." Men who were to become, like himself, Civil War heroes, were at West Point in some class or other while he was there. There were Jubal A. Early, Hooker, Braxton Bragg, Pierre G. T. Beauregard and others whose names are high in American history.

On furlough Cadet Sherman visited New Lancaster—and how proud was Ellen Ewing, now 14, of his uniform! She had been his best "Lancaster correspondent," keeping him up with the home news, sending him small gifts, pencils, maple sugar, slippers and keeping up her constant stream of letters after she entered the Academy of Visitation in Georgetown, near Washington, to complete her own education.

Comes Love.

Up to now it had been as brother and sister that their close association was maintained. But when "Cump" wrote glowingly of belles who had attended West Point "hops" and of fair damsels thereabouts, Ellen realized with the first touch of jealousy which she had ever known that he was not her "brother" after all.

By the time "Cump" had been graduated and achieved the grandeur of a lieutenant in the Third Artillery, love between Ellen and himself was tacitly understod to exist. There was no outward declaration. In the summer of 1843, when he came home on furlough, it was to tell Ellen of a new hobby, that of painting, which had gripped him that spring. Without training in art, he began to paint.

"I have a great love for painting," he told Ellen, "and find that I am so fascinated that it amounts to pain to lay down the brush, placing me in doubt whether I had better stop it now before it swallows all attention."

Has Time to Court.

It was not so absorbing, however, that he could not become engaged to Ellen that summer. The Ewings were startled; then, realizing that after all he was not Ellen's brother, consent was given.

Yet it was not until May Day, 1849, that they were married. The Ewings were living in Washington at the time. Ellen was 28; she had waited eight years for her lover. At the wedding, President Zachary Taylor, his Cabinet, Daniel Webster and Senator Thomas Benton were present. And, best of all, there was Henry Clay, 73, walking surely but feebly forward to kiss the pretty bride. The honeymoon trip, as one might suppose, was to Niagara Falls, a journey without which no wedding seemed complete in the first half of the last century.

Romance Lives 40 Years.

The years brought William Tecumseh and Ellen Sherman all the joys of wedded life, children, grandchildren, peaceful homes and the knowledge that their romance was a true and lasting one. For nearly 40 years it lasted, until Ellen Sherman fell ill.

Despair entered his heart, a despair that the fortunes or ill fortunes of war had never been able to place there. As he himself said after her death:

"I expected to be the first to go, as I am much older and have been more severely tried. But it was not to be."

With all the gentleness of a woman, he remained constantly by her side and through all her pain she could still smile if he were near her. When friends tried to warn him of the inevitable end of her sufferings, Gen. Sherman would not admit it was serious and used to say that her father was troubled in the same way for years and that she was in no danger.

Both Die in Three Years.

Gen. Sherman's nephew, Tom Ewing, has described what happened when Mrs. Sherman died.

"The general was seated in his office," he wrote, "when the nurse came to the head of the stairs and called to him that Mrs. Sherman was dying. Though he had known she was in danger, I think this was the first moment when he realized the imminence of her death. He ran upstairs calling out: 'Wait for me, Ellen, no one ever loved you as I loved you.' If she was alive when he reached her bedside it was only for a moment."

It was with the echo of his loving words in her ears that Ellen Sherman went forth on that last lone journey. He only lived three years after her death. In his last minutes he fought over some of his old battles in his delirium, but the final word he breathed was "Ellen."

Hunger, Cold and Weariness Battled by Lost Balloonists

Poles Walked 6 Days With Oranges as Only Food in Forest Trek.

Riviere a Pierre, Quebec, Sept. 10 (AP).—The two Polish entrants in the James Gordon Bennett balloon race today told of their sufferings from hunger, cold and weariness on their 90-mile trek through the forests after running a gamut of thunderstorms on their air journey.

Arriving yesterday at this little railroad village after nearly two days and nights in the air and six days of walking, they described their joy at reaching a railroad track—their first sight of civilization—and following it to food and warmth at a French Canadian settlement.

The balloonists, Capt. Francicek Hynek and Lieut. Znigniew Burzynski, who set out with other contestants Sept. 2 from Chicago, said they were in the air 39 hours and 30 minutes, and estimated they traveled on a northeasterly course 812 miles.

Ate Only Oranges.

"The weather was very cold," Lieut. Burzynski said. "For five days we had nothing to eat except 12 oranges."

After passing over the wild country of middle Ontario and Quebec they descended in a forest at 10:46 a. m. Monday, slightly over 100 miles northeast of this railway junction point, which is 60 miles northwest of the City of Quebec.

They said they suffered from cold at night on the 90-mile walk through the forest to the railway line, which took from last Monday morning until Saturday evening.

Compass Aided Walk.

Aided by a compass, they walked until they struck the Canadian National Railway near Lemieux. Section hands gave them a lift on a handcar 12 miles to Riviere a Pierre.

Their balloon probably will have to be portaged through the woods by Indians or trappers.

The log of their flight reads as follows:

Started Chicago, Saturday, September 2, at 6:16 p. m., Eastern standard time. Landed Monday, September 4, at 10:46 a. m., 102 miles northeast of Riviere a Pierre, Quebec. Duration of flight, 39 hours, 30 minutes. Length of flight, 1,300 kilometers (approximately 812 miles). Walked 90 miles to railroad track through forest to Lemieux, Quebec. Arrived Riviere a Pierre Saturday, September 9, at 6:30 p. m.

Started Down Monday.

"After leaving Chicago," said Lieut. Burzynski, "we drifted at a fairly high altitude but Monday morning started to come down. We threw off our ballast gradually and the balloon settled down.

"At times in coming through the woods we found it easy going when we were able to follow the paths made by moose or to pass along the shores of lakes. But a great part of the journey involved pushing through the untracked bush."

Fall Injuries Fatal To Russell Atwater

Weston, Conn., Sept. 10 (AP).—A. Russell Atwater, 44, engineer, died today from injuries received in a fall last night at his home.

During the war Atwater was stationed at Washington as an advisor on textiles for aviation. He leaves his widow, the former Conway Lilley, of Indianapolis; a son, A. Russell Atwater, jr., 13; his mother, Mrs. Louis Lombard, of New York City, and two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Allen 3d, of New York City, and Mrs. Raymond Menhard, of Greenwich.

$300,000,000 Pay Owed to Teachers

Chicago $22,000,000 Debt Tops 28 Cities.

(Associated Press.)

The National Education Association said yesterday that a survey has disclosed that teachers in 18 cities have nearly $30,000,000 coming to them in back pay.

The amounts owing the teachers range from $2,355 in Spring Lake Heights, N. J., to $22,000,000 in Chicago. The total number of school employes in these cities in 1930 was approximately 35,500.

The association said the city in which teachers had given the longest period of unpaid service was Garfield, N. J., where they went unpaid for seven months. Four of the cities report one-half month's salary unpaid.

U. S. and Film Players Differ on Tax Figures

Los Angeles, Sept. 10 (AP).—Charging their net incomes were greater than they reported, Internal Revenue officers have filed tax liens against several motion-picture players, among them Priscilla Dean, Evelyn Brent, Tallulah Bankhead and Reginald Denny.

The authorities are demanding $7,100 additional taxes from Miss Dean for the period 1924-26, inclusive; $136 from Miss Brent for 1931; $104 from Miss Bankhead for 1931 and $336 from Denny for 1932.

Report Urges More Federal Education Aid

National Conference Plan Seeks Fewer and Better Schools.

(Associated Press.)

Federal aid for education, not merely in the present emergency, but as a continuing policy, is advocated in a report by the National Conference on Financing of Education.

The conference reported a plan after studying the question: "Can this country continue its ideal of free and universal schooling?"

Millions of citizens will be asked to appraise this plan "until it is a fair expression of the American ideal" to be used "as basis for the restoration of American schools."

Sweeping changes are suggested. The 150,000 one-room schools which still exist would be supplanted by "central school plants" built under the NRA public works program.

The present school district map would be replaced by minimum rural units of 1,500 pupils, and urban units of 10,000. The average unit now is only 23 square miles, requiring but seven teachers.

This is set forth as one possible "restatement of the aims of education in the light of modern social and economic conditions."

"A Democratic society is under obligation not only to provide adequate education for youth at public expense, but livelihood if necessary up to the age when society is prepared to offer employment," say the report. "At one and the same time we came to have unemployed teachers and wandering children.

"The Federal Government must come to the aid of the public schools. It can collect taxes. It can borrow money. It can make grants in aid or loans to the States.

"There will be tens of thousands of teachers during 1933-34 who will receive a wage below the minimum in the codes for the lowest paid workers in the field of industry."

NRA Stamp Symbolic of Art, Is Not Travesty, Says Expert

Philatelist Answers Jibes That Characters Fail to Keep Step.

Captious criticism of the NRA 3-cent stamp is unfounded, according to Albert F. Kunze, president of the Washington Philatelic Society.

H. L. Lindquist, publisher of the Philatelist Magazine, has been deluged with letters pointing out "grave errors" in the design of the new NRA 3-cent stamp.

It was first pointed out that "the farmer" on the stamp carries over his shoulder a Soviet scythe.

Now comes the complaint that the business man, walking along with his three companions, is out of step. The others—the laborer, the farmer, and the women—have their left feet forward. The business man has his right foot forward.

"The designer of the stamp, Victor McClosky, did a splendid job, as an artist," says Mr. Kunze. "It must be remembered that all these designs are allegorical.

"It makes no difference what may be thought wrong with the essential details, so long as the general idea is conveyed. McClosky, in designing this stamp, sought to convey the idea of speed. The idea was not to convey order, so much as it was rush and dash—and certainly there is action in the design. Rush and speed, hurry and dash. Those are the qualifications of the NRA. It seems rather foolish to criticize the Government on this score when that is what the Government is trying to do—get things done."

Postal authorities will not withdraw the stamp from circulation, Kunze said.

Autoist Dies, Saves Birds.

Weatherford, Okla., Sept. 10 (AP). To avoid striking a flock of turkeys, L. E. Dunlap, of Weatherford, swerved his car. He was killed when it overturned.

GENUINE AIR-CONDITIONING

Travelers are loyal folk. Give them something that really adds to their comfort, and they're quick to show their appreciation. Chesapeake and Ohio passengers are showing it by riding on our trains whenever they possibly can, and by passing the good word along to their friends. Three crack trains now serve Washington passengers to Cincinnati and the West, all genuinely air-conditioned. The George Washington, leaving 6:01 P. M.; The F. F. V., leaving 10:35 P. M.; and The Sportsman, convenient daylight train, leaving 11:55 A. M. Return service offers an equally convenient choice.

Mexico Holding Guy; Planning Deportation

Los Angeles, Sept. 10 (AP).—Immigration authorities here have learned that William (Curly) Guy, world adventurer and deserter from the French Foreign Legion, is under arrest in Ensenada, Baja California, and faces deportation to his native country, Wales.

Guy, in the slaying of Capt. Walter Wanderwell last December, left the United States voluntarily to escape deportation, but in Mexico ran afoul of an immigration law.

Third High Bridge Jump Kills Daredevil Carone

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Dan Carone jumped from a high bridge once too often today and drowned in the Hudson. His leap of 250 feet from the George Washington Bridge arch, one of the highest in the world, resulted fatally. He struck on his back.

He previously had made two successful jumps from the Brooklyn Bridge.

NRA Progress In Hyattsville District Shown

90 Per Cent of Businesses Have Signed Hiring Agreement.

Progress in the campaign to line up all businesses under the NRA banner in Hyattsville election district is reported by Egbert F. Tingley, major in charge of the district campaign.

About 90 per cent of businesses have signed the President's reemployment agreement.

Captains who are handling the campaign in Hyattsville district, include G. Hodges Carr, C. F. Dickey, J. T. Norman, James McNamee, George Aman and Mayor D. Hazen McLeod, of Edmonston. These men with Mr. Tingley form the steering committee for the district.

Laurel Lions Club Elects.

L. B. Howland has been elected president of the Lions Club of Laurel, with John H. Fetty, first vice president; De Wilton Donaldson, second vice president; Guy Wisotzki, third vice president; Roy Armstrong, secretary; Charles A. St. Clair, treasurer; Ernest Harrison, tail twister; E. P. Ellis, lion tamer, and A. E. Williamson, Walter Cole, Louis Sussman and Windnor Miller, board of directors.

Road Is Reopened.

After being closed since the recent flood, the route to Washington from Hyattsville via the Queens Chapel road has been reopened to traffic. It was closed because of the washing away of an abutment on the bridge that spans the Northwestern Branch. A temporary bridge now is being used, pending possible relocation of the road in the vicinity of the bridge.

Commissioners to Meet.

The Bladensburg Town Commissioners will meet tonight in the fire house. Flood control will be discussed.

The Federal Diary

(Trade-mark Applied For)

By Morgan Baker

CHICAGO, ahoy!

Miss Beulah Myles, Veterans' Administration, and Francis O. Panneton, G. A. O., depart today at noon for a week's vacation at A Century of Progress Exposition as guests of The Washington Post.

These two were voted the most popular woman and most popular man in Government service by more than 47,000 Federal employes during the Federal Diary Popularity Contest.

BAKER.

With a companion each, also as guests of The Post, Miss Myles and Mr. Panneton will go to Chicago by Pennsylvania Airlines via Cleveland. Miss Geraldine Frost, of The Post staff, will accompany the party and attend to arrangements during the all-expense tour.

Miss Myles and Miss Janet Stevens, Agriculture, winner of the second prize, spent Saturday afternoon shopping at Palais Royal department store. An outfit of clothes for each was part of the prizes offered by The Post. With the aid of Palais Royal's fashion experts, Miss Myles was fitted with smart traveling apparel. Miss Stevens selected many articles which she will use on her all-expense vacation at the Cavalier Hotel, Virginia Beach. She will depart Friday aboard a Norfolk & Washington Line steamer.

At the Hecht Co., Mr. Panneton and William E. Mitchell, Veterans' Administration, chose an autumn wardrobe. We had a hard time getting back to our desk Saturday after seeing the wonderful stock of fall suits and haberdashery in Hecht's men's department that Mr. Panneton and Mr. Mitchell had to choose from.

Mr. Mitchell was voted the next most popular man in Government service. He will depart Friday, also for a vacation at the Cavalier Hotel, in Virginia Beach, via the Norfolk & Washington Line as guest of The Post.

Miss Myles and Mr. Panneton will keep a daily diary which they will send by wire to the Federal Diary. Thus their many friends in departments will be able to follow them through all the many excursions and treats at Chicago.

A. F. G. E. Program.

More than 100 American Federation of Government Employes delegates will convene this morning at the Hamilton Hotel to map a course for restoration of lost pay and other reforms.

A 10-point tentative program to constitute the conference agenda follows:

1. Restoration of all lost pay.
2. Restoration of all lost privileges, including sick and annual leave.
3. Thirty-hour week, five-day week, with no reduction in pay.
4. Liberalized optional retirement.
5. Employe representation in all personnel matters.
6. Maintenance and expansion of the merit system.
7. A fair promotion system for all employes.
8. A fair and equitable classification both in the field and departmental service.
9. A fair code for Government employes.
10. Repeal of the marriage clause in the economy act.

Life-Term Gunman Hidden From Gang

Officers Take Him to Prison in Michigan.

Grand Haven, Mich., Sept. 10 (AP).—Earl Doyle, 35-year-old Chicago and Kansas City gunman, was spirited out of the city today and transferred to Jackson Prison to begin a life term for robbing the Peoples Savings Bank here August 18.

Brought into circuit court late last night, Doyle pleaded guilty and was sentenced by Judge Fred T. Miles. The action was not announced until Doyle had been taken from the city under heavy guard.

The secret sentencing and extraordinary precautions were inspired by reports that accomplices of Doyle in the bank holdup were planning to free him.

Four of Doyle's companions in the robbery, in which two bank employes and two bystanders were wounded by gunfire, escaped and have not been apprehended. They obtained $4,000 in cash and securities.

Theater Manager Found Murdered in Apartment

Paterson, N. J., Sept. 10 (U.P.).—Lawrence Shead, 35, manager of a motion picture theater here, was found dead tonight in his apartment. The body was lying on the bed, unclad. He had been beaten about the head.

Police said evidence in the room indicated a party had preceded the crime. Charles L. Dooley, general manager of Warner theaters in northern New Jersey, found the body when he had the janitor open the apartment.

New York City Jobs Jump 15 Per Cent

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—The New York Merchants Association made public a survey today showing increases ranging from 10 to 15 per cent in employment here since the start of the NRA drive with from 100,000 to 150,000 of 1,000,000 unemployed returned to work.

Rise in employment, the survey showed, was in factory and retail establishments. A check of 28 concerns showed pay rolls increased by an average of not less than $7,000 yearly.

Federation Organized To Boost Foreign Trade

Philadelphia, Sept. 10 (AP).—A National Federation of foreign trade associations, an outgrowth of a plan proposed by the Foreign Traders Association of Philadelphia, has been formed to promote and extend American trade, it was announced today.

Reginald F. Chutte, of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, has been elected temporary chairman.

Boy, 6, Misses Fourth Sailing Abroad Because of Operation

Extra Stay in Favorite City Compensates Young Globe Trotter.

Robert Neville, jr., 6-year-old globe-trotter, yesterday missed his fourth Atlantic crossing.

Instead of sailing with his parents for London, he underwent an operation for appendicitis at Emergency Hospital. It was all right with Robert, for it gave him an extra stay in his favorite city.

Robert is the son of Robert Neville, formerly of The Washington Post, now European correspondent for the Columbia Broadcasting System. Despite his few years, he has crossed the Atlantic three times, the Caribbean Sea four times, the United States twice, and has resided in Switzerland, France, Spain, Venezuela, California, New York and Washington. He was born in Geneva.

Despite his travels, the lad's favorite city is Washington. Last week he argued bitterly against leaving. He grinned at nurses yesterday because he won't leave the National Capital for a while.

ROBERT NEVILLE, JR.

Mary Nolan Divorced; Kept Secret 8 Months

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 10 (AP).—Mary Nolan, formerly known as Imogene Wilson, blonde Follies girl, revealed here tonight that she and Wallace McCreery, California broker, had been secretly divorced eight months ago in Connecticut.

"I am free of any thought of marriage," she said. "My only objective now is to stage a comeback in my profession."

Chicago 'Brain Trust' Plans Solution of Money Problems

Mayor Kelly Announces Creation of "Recovery" Administration.

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP).—Following the lead of President Roosevelt in creating the NRA, Mayor Edward J. Kelly has evolved a Chicago recovery administration, "brain trust" and all, to cope with the city's muddled finances and other problems. The mayor emphasized the organization's makeup was non-partisan and thus far ex officio. He hopes, however, he said, to obtain necessary legislation to clothe it with authority that will make its money savings and tax collecting decisions mandatory.

Among those on the "brain trust" are Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of Chicago University; Dr. Walter Dill Scott, head of Northwestern; State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, the Rev. Samuel K. Wilson, president of Loyola University; John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor; Alfred Cowles, president of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, and Fred W. Sargent, president of the Northwestern Railroad.

The list of members of the executive committee likewise is made up of persons in the fields of education and industry.

The purpose of the CRA as outlined by the mayor is "to find the most adequate and satisfactory ways and means of meeting the proper and necessary cost of the essential public services" carried on under the some 400 separate taxing municipalities and districts.

Lynchburg Couple Rewed.

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 10 (Spl.).—Mrs. W. E. Mays announced the remarriage of her sister, Mrs. Josephine M. Dickerson, to Frank C. Dickerson. The ceremony was performed in Ellicot City, Md. Mr. and Mrs. Dickerson will reestablish their home in Lynchburg.

Woman's Part Still Unknown

California Murder Defense Nears Close Without Hearing Divorcee.

San Jose, Calif., Sept. 10 (AP).—Many stray threads of the trial of David A. Lamson, charged with the murder of his attractive wife, Allene, remain to be knitted together as the defense of the young Stanford University press representative nears the end.

Dr. E. O. Heinrich, noted criminologist to whom defense attorneys turned in their struggle against the State's hypothesis that Lamson beat his wife to death with an iron pipe, is to continue on the witness stand when the trial is resumed tomorrow. A legal battle is in prospect over the admissibility of some of his conclusions on the physical evidence.

Among the questions left unanswered was whether Mrs. Sara Kelley, Sacramento divorcee, would be called by either side. Prosecution witnesses testified Lamson visited Mrs. Kelley several times, buying flowers and lunches for her.

Two pieces of verse, romantic in theme and allegedly written by Mrs. Kelley, were introduced in evidence and described as having been taken from Lamson's desk.

Out of court Lamson said Mrs. Kelley had sent the verse to him for criticism.

The immediate problem of the defense was its effort to discount through Dr. Heinrich some of the prosecution testimony about traces of blood in and about the Lamson home.

The defense also hoped to draw from Heinrich some scientific conclusions in support of the suggestion that Mrs. Lamson's death may have been due to an accidental fall against a wash basin in the bathroom where her body was found.

Many Lehigh Silk Mills Closed, Strikers Say

Allentown, Pa., Sept. 10 (AP).—Striking silk workers at a meeting today heard reports of the spread of the general strike movement throughout the Lehigh Valley when workers from Mauch Chunk, Lehighton, Fleetwood and Kutztown said broad silk mills in their communities were closed.

The Duplan Mill at Slatedale also was reported shut down. Strike leaders claim only two mills at Allentown remain open and picketing at both is planned for tomorrow.

2 Detectives Arrested, Accused as Torturers

Muskegon, Mich., Sept. 10 (AP).—Two Chicago private detectives, Leonard J. O'Connor and Angelo Martinelli, were arrested today charged by E. L. Switzer, Enterprise Brass Co. manager, with abducting and mistreating him in their investigation of a $3,600 theft from the company.

Switzer, when he reiterated he knew nothing about the theft, said he was beaten, threatened with a red-hot poker and tortured with lighted cigars.

De Valera Hits Centrist Foes Trying Ouster

Says Conspiracy Against Rule Will Be Quashed and Leaders Punished.

Dundalk, Irish Free State, Sept. 10 (U.P.).—President Eamon de Valera boldly took the offensive tonight in the fight with the rising threat of a strong, united opposition to his administration.

He challenged the power of the newly organized Center party, a Fusion group of all major opposition parties led by Gen. Eoin O'Duffy, fiery chief of the semi-Fascist "Blue Shirts," and declared during a speech that his "government is determined to put down this conspiracy and deal with the men behind it as they deserve."

The president's fighting speech was his first public utterance since the formation of the Center party last week, and had been eagerly awaited as an indication of De Valera's tactics in his battle with the newly concentrated opposition.

De Valera warned that the republicans were creating disorder and damaging property on the pretext of prosecuting an economic war. He said they were playing into the hands of the nation's enemies and that their tactics would lead only to disaster and end all their hopes.

O'Duffy Sees Victory.

Dublin, Sept. 10 (U.P.).—A general election shortly was prophesied today by Gen. Eoin O'Duffy, leader of the Fusion party opposed to the administration of President Eamon de Valera.

In a press interview, O'Duffy declared the government would be defeated the moment the Dial reassembles in October.

Bigamy Charge Jails Preacher

Evangelist Said to Have Confessed When Faced by Two Women.

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP).—The Rev. Walter J. Bateman, 33, an evangelist, today was arrested on a charge of bigamy preferred by his wife, Esther, of Toledo, Ohio.

Dazed by the warrant was the former Louise Stumpf, of Milwaukee, who, police said, married the evangelist here after hearing his fervent sermons under the name of the Rev. Robert Warwick.

The bigamy warrant resulted when a Mrs. Fox, of Cleveland, attended evangelistic services here several days ago at the tent of Uldine Utley, famous girl evangelist. She recognized Bateman, remembered the desertion of Mrs. Bateman in Ohio, and wrote her. Mrs. Bateman came here yesterday.

"Well, I guess you've got me," police quoted Bateman as saying when confronted by the two women. "I just was in love and didn't stop to think about the consequences."

Mrs. Bateman met the man while they were students at a Bible school.

3 Killed on Coast In Plane 'Joy Ride'

San Bernardino, Calif., Sept 10 (AP).—Three men plunged 500 feet to death here today in an airplane piloted by one who took off suddenly while the airport manager, who was to have been the pilot, was getting his helmet and goggles.

The dead were Robert Alslit, 27, San Bernardino, who piloted the ship, and two companions. They were believed to be from Burbank and their last names Saperite and Kelley.

Quinn Cook, airport manager, said Alslit came to the field with the men and asked him to take them for a ride. Cook consented and Alslit went over to warm up the motor. While Cook was getting the goggles and a helmet, he heard the motor roar and ran out to see Alslit take off.

Communion Taken By Ousted Bishop

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP).—A dramatic incident occurred during communion service at St. James Protestant Episcopal Church today when Bishop William Montgomery Brown, of the old Catholic Church, deposed bishop of the Episcopal Church, partook of communion.

The sentence of deposition, read at the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in 1925 at New Orleans, which ousted Bishop Brown from his diocese of Arkansas for heretical utterances, did not bar him from communion.

The 78-year-old prelate recently stated his determination to seek restoration of his seat in the Episcopal House of Bishops.

Two Armed Men Make Doctor Remove Bullets

Overland Park, Kans., Sept. 10 (AP).—At the point of pistols, Dr. K. Carbaugh was compelled to remove a bullet and dress the wounds of two men here today.

The men then bound the surgeon with his own bandages and tape, put a wad of cotton in his mouth, robbed him of $14 and fled.

Henry Zo, Painter, Dies In French Auto Mishap

Bayonne, France, Sept. 10 (U.P.). Henry Zo, internationally known painter, was killed in a motor car accident here today. He was 60.

Zo was noted for his Spanish landscape paintings, many of which were purchased by the Luxembourg and Metropolitan museums.

Radicals Halt Lerroux Plans

Spanish Premier Expects to Form Cabinet in 24 Hours.

Madrid, Sept. 10 (AP).—Endeavoring to form a cabinet without including the Socialist party, Premier Lerroux was confronted with unexpected complications, principally refusal of the radical Socialist minorities to collaborate with the government. They were joined by Republican minority elements.

President Niceto Zamora had persuaded Lerroux to forego dissolution of Congress, upon which he had insisted, and undertake formation of a government to replace that of former Premier Azana.

Lerroux tonight said another 24 hours would see obstacles surmounted; the cabinet would include Salvador de Madariaga, former Ambassador to the United States, as secretary of state; Augustin Vinuales, treasury; Botella Asensi, public works; Gen. Queipo Del Llano, war. Domingo Barnes refused to accept the education portfolio.

Lerroux planned to confer with Dr. Jose Ortega Gasset, leftist member of parliament, with a view to including him in the cabinet.

One Dead, 5 Hurt In Highway Crash

Salisbury Man Killed When Auto Hits Truck.

Seaford, Del., Sept. 10 (Spl.).—In a head-on collision between an automobile and truck here today, Hance Adkins, 40, of Salisbury, Md., was fatally injured, and five others seriously hurt.

Adkins and his wife, Mrs. Estella Adkins, their daughter, Elsie Adkins, 14, Mrs. Beulah Jones, 35, and Charles R. Porter, 73, all of Salisbury, were in the car which collided with a truck driven by Mack Britt, 30, of Blades.

Adkins died shortly after being admitted to hospital. Of the others Britt was the most seriously hurt.

Car Hits Buggy; Five Are Hurt

Girl in Critical Condition After Accident Near Chestertown.

Chestertown, Md., Sept. 10 (Spl.). A head-on collision between an automobile and a horse and carriage today resulted in the injury of five persons. The horse was killed.

The crash occurred near the Chester River Country Club. Charles Wood, 17, driving the automobile, suffered severe cuts and lacerations, as did Gordon Kendall, 17, a companion.

Mary Catherine Barrett, 14, colored, who was in the carriage, suffered a fractured skull and is in a critical condition at Easton Emergency Hospital where the others were treated.

William Derry, 65, colored, driving the carriage, and Amanda Derry, 55, colored, a passenger in the horse-drawn vehicle, also were hurt.

Wrath of Gods Believed Cause of Cattle Dying

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Sept. 10 (AP).—A mysterious epidemic of cattle deaths puzzling superstitious farmers has broken out 14 miles from here.

The epidemic was believed to have been caused by vampire bats. Farmers were resorting to sacrifice to appease the wrath of the gods, which they believed was being vented on them.

Chicago Jews Found Second Free Synagogue

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP).—Under direction of Dr. Herman Rosenwasser, of San Francisco, only rabbi called as a defense witness at the Scopes evolution trial several years ago, Chicago Jews have established a free synagogue.

It was the second free synagogue established in the United States, the other being in New York.

Young at 100

Century-Old Woman Says the First 15 Years Are Hardest.

Chicago, Sept. 10 (U.P.).—Mrs. Sue Douglas, 100 years old, today said the first 15 years of her life were the hardest, that she was 60 before she really began to enjoy life, and that she sees and hears better than when she was "only 78."

She formerly was a writer for the Green Bay Wisconsin Advocate.

Sweden Makes Effort to Cut Wheat Crops

Domestic Consumption Has Increased Greatly in Recent Years.

Stockholm, Sept. 10.—That Sweden is willing to cooperate in united world action of any kind to reduce wheat acreage has been clearly indicated.

The government now has instructed the permanent grain commission to study means of restricting wheat production next year. The commission, in turn, has reported that it already has appealed to farmers to cooperate in limiting production.

Good Crop Looms.

In 1932 Sweden had a record wheat crop of 703,000 metric tons and a good crop is expected again this year. Because of low gluten content the Swedish wheat must be mixed with a percentage of foreign wheat and any surplus for export can not, therefore, obtain high prices. At present the enforced mixing regulation, which varies according to market demand, and which is designed to aid consumption of domestic grains, is 80 per cent for wheat and 98 per cent for rye.

Consumption of wheat in Sweden has increased materially in the last decade, while domestic use of rye has diminished.

More Wheat Used.

At the beginning of the century the consumption of rye was almost double that of wheat, while for the five-year period 1925-1930 the annual consumption averaged 604,459 metric tons of wheat and 460,923 tons of rye.

The permanent grain commission functions to keep the domestic price of wheat up, through the enformed mixing regulation and by buying wheat from the farmer and selling to the mills. The present policy, it is pointed out, is aimed at keeping the acreage within the limits of home consumption if possible.

Blast Menaces Mine Organizer

Pineville, Ky., Explosion of Dynamite Wrecks Garage.

Pineville, Ky., Sept. 10 (AP).—An explosion which Lawrence Dwyer, an organizer for the United Mine Workers of America, charged was an attempt to kill or intimidate him wrecked a garage here today.

The explosion, apparently caused by 20 sticks of dynamite, tore a hole in the concrete wall of the garage, and broke windows a block away. Framing on nearby buildings was torn off.

Dwyer said the dynamite apparently was placed, through error, beneath a stairway at the garage instead of beneath a similar stairway beside his room. He has been active in unionizing the southeastern Kentucky coal fields.

Peru Mission Upheld By Colombia President

Bogota, Colombia, Sept. 10 (U.P.). President Enrique Olaya Herrera today had squelched senatorial opposition to the personnel of the special mission which Colombia will send to Rio de Janeiro to negotiate with Peru for final settlement of the Leticia dispute.

President Herrera declared he is assuming all responsibility for the negotiations with Peru.

Kansas State Services Held at Valley Forge

Valley Forge, Pa., Sept. 10 (AP).—Events in the history of Kansas were described by the Rev. Charles S. Lyons, retired clergyman of Longhorne, Pa., at Kansas State Sunday services in Washington Memorial Chapel today.

The service was under auspices of the Kansas State Society, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Soviet Famine Fear Dispelled

American News Writer on Tour Finds Ample Food Supply.

Rostov-on-Don, U. S. S. R., Sept. 10 (AP).—Evidences of a harvest sufficient to end danger of starvation in the great grain-producing regions of the Ukraine and North Caucasus were observed by the Associated Press correspondent, who arrived here today.

Traveling without official supervision from Moscow on the first trip permitted since the foreign office invoked rigid control of the movements of foreign news writers, no signs of want or hunger were to be seen from the limited vantage points afforded by brief halts at many stations.

Whatever may have been the suffering, endured last winter, and spring, there is reason to believe this year's crop will be more than enough to meet the needs.

There were indications of food in abundance. Large quantities of vegetables, fruits, milk, poultry and eggs could be had at low prices.

Emmanuel Places Wreath for Feisal

Brindisi, Italy, Sept. 10 (AP).—A wreath from King Victor Emmanuel of Italy was deposited today on the coffin of King Feisal of Iraq.

The body was in a specially prepared funeral chamber at the maritime station here. The king died at Berne, Switzerland.

The bier was guarded by officers of the infantry, marine and air corps, as well as Fascist militia.

A British cruiser is to embark with the body tomorrow on the way to Bagdad.

Building of 13-Mile Railroad Stirs Battle Among Giants

Large Lines and Firms Taking Part in Row Over Ohio Project.

Youngstown, Ohio, Sept. 10 (AP).—Winding along the Ohio-Pennsylvania State line is a 13-mile railroad whose construction has aroused corporate giants into an intense legal battle.

The little line is the Montour Railroad, proposed to connect Negley, Ohio, and Smiths Ferry, Pa. Its owner, the Pittsburgh Coal Co., contends it should operate so the company can send coal by barge down the Ohio River to Smiths Ferry and thence by rail to the Youngstown steel district.

In opposition are the Pennsylvania and the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroads.

While court hearings were in progress, the Montour one night sent out crews which laid tracks over four or five highways crossing the right-of-way.

Once, engineers found there was not room in a narrow ravine for both the railroad and a 963-foot stretch of mountain highway. A new road, 25 feet wide and of easy grade, was offered by the Montour, and accepted by public officials.

The Pennsylvania Railroad sought an injunction to prevent the highway abandonment, but by degrees the road has progressed until it lacks only a quarter of a mile of completion.

Then Federal Judge Samuel H. West, at Cleveland, granted the opposing railroads an injunction and work was stopped by a United States marshal. Date for a hearing on the temporary order has been set for Wednesday.

Moose, at Davis' Behest, Pledge Support to NRA

Philadelphia, Sept. 10 (AP).—Support of the Loyal Order of Moose was pledged the NRA at a rally of several thousand members today after United States Senator James J. Davis, director general of the order, pleaded for universal consumer cooperation. He added:

"It is imperative that the consuming public make reasonable purchases at once to quicken business revival."

French Cognac Makers Demand Free U. S. Entry

Paris, Sept. 10 (U.P.).—Premier Edouard Daladier today received a resolution from the Angouleme Cognac Federation, representing 10,000 producers, demanding that no war-debt discussions be started unless the United States permits free entry of brandies and wines after repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Britain Will Refund Debt of £300,000,000

London, Sept. 10 (U.P.).—The Sunday Dispatch today said that the treasury was planning to issue a 300,000,000 pounds sterling conversion loan in the near future, bearing about 3 per cent interest, and repayable in 15 years. The loan would be arranged in collaboration with the Bank of England.

Argentine Grain Crops Safe as Drought Ends

Buenos Aires, Sept. 10 (U.P.). Thousands of Argentine grain growers were saved from ruin today when light rains fell, breaking a prolonged drought. Reports indicated that this year's flax seed and wheat crops would be saved.

The rains arrived just in time to permit spring sowing.

NRA of World Interest, Says French Writer

Parisian Newspaperman Is Sent Here to Study Recovery Plan.

Progress of the NRA is watched with deep interest by France, according to M. Luc Durtain, representative of Le Petite Parisian, in Washington to gather material on the recovery program.

Monsieur Durtain, in an interview, described the NRA as "one of the most important measures of modern times." He believes that if the undertaking is a success it will become of world-wide importance.

"It will go down," he said, "as one of the valuable lessons of history."

The French writer praised Washington, comparing it with Versailles as planned for beauty. He was enthusiastic about the Chicago fair.

Three novels written by Monsieur Durtain have the United States as a background. They are "The Fortress of Straw," "Farther Than Hollywood" and "Captain O. K.," which tells of the South and New Orleans.

Dominions of Britain Ready for Conference

Toronto, Ontario, Sept. 10 (AP).—Representatives of the United Kingdom and every dominion in the British Empire were gathering today for the first British Commonwealth Relations Conference which opens ten-day sessions here tomorrow.

Outstanding issues considered at the conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations, in Banff, this summer will be discussed, in addition to improvement of communication, consultation and action among members of the commonwealth.

Controlling Capital Exports.

Foreign experts are said to be interested in section 8 of the President's anti-hoarding gold order of August 28, which authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury or any agency he may designate to regulate or prohibit by means of licenses or otherwise, "any transactions in foreign exchange."

This provision, which has attracted relatively little attention in the United States, has apparently given rise to rumors abroad that the administration is planning to check the flight of American capital by establishing a rigid control over exchange operations.

As is well known, large amounts of American capital have left the country since the United States suspended gold payments. Estimates of the totals exported (mere guesses, however) range from $500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000. So far, no official pressure has been exerted to prevent this capital flight. On the contrary, it has been regarded with an indulgence stopping little short of direct encouragement, because it is only by such means that progressive dollar depreciation has been brought about.

Since the United States is a creditor country to the rest of the world on current account, the dollar is basically strong and has to be pushed very hard to be forced downward. Consequently, the abnormally heavy outflow of funds in flight from a country whose currency may be devalued, has been welcomed by the administration as supplying the needed depressing influence upon dollar exchange.

It requires an abnormal kind of pressure to keep a good currency down. Hence, if American capital exports were to be halted in advance of possible formal devaluation of the dollar, the exchange value of the currency would no doubt rise rapidly in terms of gold. It is plain that this situation presents certain perplexing angles.

If the administration should try to prevent capital exports by licensing exchange operations, it would be helping to advance the exchange value of the dollar. If it should persist in its "hands off" policy, on the other hand, capital no doubt will continue to flow abroad in large quantities, despite the fact that an intensive domestic drive is being carried on to encourage an expansion of credit and to hasten resumption of long-term investment operations. It must also be rather interesting to the authorities to hear that the London Stock Exchange has been experiencing a summer boom, believed to be due in part to buying of British industrial securities for American account.

On the ground that exported capital is needed at home, it may be argued that a certain amount of control over the capital outflow is desirable. That at least appears to be the reason why Europeans give credence to rumors of exchange licensing. At present Americans are quite free to make purchases of foreign securities and various other means of exporting capital are also open to us. For example, the proceeds of the sales of goods shipped abroad may be left outside the United States and abnormally large balances built up in this way.

Other countries have found it extremely difficult to prevent a flight of capital by establishing official control over exchange operations, even when they have been unreservedly anxious to keep capital at home with a view to strengthening their exchange position.

However, the United States could, if it chose to do so, close the most obvious and easiest avenues of escape without making impossible demands upon the control system. The real question at issue, however, is not whether a capital flight can be halted, but whether the administration desires to prevent such a flight at the risk of having the dollar return to a much higher price in the world's exchange markets. There's the rub.

State Liquor Laws.

Five States have both constitutional and statutory prohibition, and twelve others have dry laws without any constitutional provisions relating to prohibition. In various other States the situation is confused by conflicting statutes. Unless prompt action is taken a number of States will be lacking adequate legal machinery to control the sale of liquor if Federal prohibition should be repealed in November.

Three States are expected to vote for the repeal of their own constitutional prohibition this year. They are New Mexico, Ohio and Utah. Six States—Florida, Idaho, Nebraska, South Dakota, West Virginia and Wyoming—will not vote on the removal of the prohibition clauses from their constitutions until November of next year. In North Dakota the constitution has been amended, but the enforcement act remains on its statute books.

Massachusetts has acted in reverse manner, nullifying the enforcement act while the constitutional provision for prohibition remains unrepealed. Michigan's prohibition laws were wiped out by vote last November and a State liquor control system was authorized. The five States that have both constitutional and statutory prohibition are Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Oklahoma and Texas. Those having only statutory prohibition are Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Iowa, Minnesota, Mississippi, New Hampshire, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont and Virginia.

From this survey it would appear that nearly half the States will have to act during the next three months if they are to make adequate provision for the control of liquor in the event of repeal of the eighteenth amendment this year.

Indifference of Voters.

Attention has been called to the small vote cast for and against repeal in the elections thus far held as compared with the total number of registered voters. The 25 States which have held elections mustered less than 40 per cent of their voting population.

Thus more than one-half of the voters of the United States seem to be indifferent to a question that affects them as taxpayers and as citizens. But this seeming indifference may be accounted for in part by the general knowledge that the repeal movement is irresistible. Since the supporters of repeal have outnumbered their opponents nearly three to one, individual voters by millions may have reasoned that it is unnecessary for them to vote. It is not a salutary attitude to take on a constitutional question.

Prohibition was put into the Constitution by almost unanimous vote of the States. Apparently it is to be voted out by unanimous reversal of the attitude of the States. It is acknowledged by the great majority that a mistake was made when the eighteenth amendment was adopted. Yet the United States as a whole made that mistake. Is it not possible that an equally serious mistake may be made hereafter, if the majority of the voters remain so indifferent as to stay away from the polls?

The Constitution is the people's law, supreme over the Government itself. The amending of the Constitution is an act of popular sovereignty so fundamentally important and far-reaching that it should receive the close attention of all voters. Federal officers can be put in and put out with comparative ease, but once a change has been made in the Constitution it is extremely difficult to change it back in case of a mistake. If more voters would vote on such questions the chances of mistakes would be reduced.

The Sidewalks of New York.

With the renaissance of beer, summer months in New York brought renewed flowering of sidewalk cafes. Lower Fifth avenue, particularly, blossomed out in a gay showing of beach umbrellas behind trim privet hedges.

Notwithstanding some drawbacks to perfect comfort, including occasional waves of motor fumes, the partaking of outdoor refreshment has become popular. But metropolitan enjoyment of Parisian boulevard customs was not to flourish unassailed. Complaints were registered with the city fathers against the innovation.

Objection was made that the sidewalk diners interfered with pedestrian traffic, though it was evident that glimpses of Bohemian spirits absorbing food and drink al fresco was highly entertaining to most of those on foot passing by, and of absorbing interest to passengers on the upper deck of the buses. The spirit and atmosphere in the neighborhood of Washington Square is, naturally, distinctly favorable to the informality of the new outdoor resorts, and strong protests are made against the threatened action of the borough president to prohibit sidewalk cafes.

It is contended that the broad walks below Thirteenth street, where the thoroughfare devoted to vehicles has never been widened, still offer Fifth avenue pedestrians more space outside the cafe area than the entire width of the sidewalks on the upper reaches of the famous thoroughfare. There is hope that this picturesque touch added to Gotham's monotone will not be blotted out by the law. Meanwhile the midtown section has caught the fever. The site of the famous old Belmont Hotel, at Park avenue and Forty-second street, opposite the Grand Central, is to be graced with a new establishment rivaling the Cafe de la Paix itself in size.

Changes in Spain.

The new Spanish republic has never confined itself to established customs. The resignation of Premier Azana and his cabinet members is no exception, since it follows so closely upon the vote of confidence given the ministry by the Cortes. The opposition, headed by Alejandro Lerroux, outnumbered in the parliamentary vote, made such an insistent claim that Azana no longer held the popular support of the people that the premier was called before President Zamora for interrogation.

The executive is reported to have asked whether Azana's government commanded support of the majority, whether it aided the electoral coalition, and whether the government could cooperate with city authorities in the forthcoming municipal elections. The premier issued a communique saying that, notwithstanding his affirmative answers, the president insisted upon an urgent and definite solution of the political problems facing Spain. Feeling that this indicated lack of confidence in his ministry, Azana resigned.

Whether Azana will again be called to head a national cabinet with representatives from all parties, or whether Lerroux, leader of the most conservative of the republican parties, will be asked to form a right-wing government, are alternatives being considered by the president. It is evident that the coalition has lost all cohesiveness, but a decisive switch to the right probably would involve dissolution of the Cortes just at a time when consideration of the budget is mandatory under the constitution.

The country is now selecting representatives for a unique organization, the Tribunal of Constitutional Guarantees. Sixty-five bar associations and the law faculties of twelve national universities will name their delegates who will sit in this body, which is provided for by the new constitution.

Football on the Horizon.

With the mercury still crowding around 90 it is difficult to realize that the opening of the gridiron season is little more than two weeks away and that on September 23 the first football games will be trying to gain some attention amid the excitement of the baseball finish. The football schedule for the coming season contains no special innovations. Fewer intersectional contests than usual are added to the inter-collegiate games, but there will be enough meetings between the south and mid-west teams and east and west to stimulate sectional rivalry and provide interesting comparisons.

While the official opening of the football season takes place two weeks from Saturday, the big games are reserved for later dates. On September 30 Georgetown meets Mount St. Mary's in Washington, the Army opens with Mercer at West Point, and the Navy with William and Mary at Annapolis. In the south play begins earlier, and, at least thirty games will have been played in Dixie during the week of September 16.

The first big day for football is October 7. All the New York teams will be in action. Harvard, Yale and Princeton will be visiting the Western Conference gridirons. Kansas will meet Notre Dame. On the Pacific coast there will be the California-St. Mary's game at Berkeley and the Southern California-Washington State battle at Los Angeles. The season reaches high tide on October 28, with every college team in the thick of its important games. Exceptional interest here will be centered in the clash between Notre Dame and Pittsburgh.

The Army and Navy contest this year will be fought out at Philadelphia, when the capacity of Old Franklin Field will be tested once more on November 25. The Army meets Notre Dame in New York on December 2. The last big game in the west will be seen in Los Angeles on December 9, when the Trojans play Washington.

Palisades Under the Sea.

Funds recently made available for the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey will enable this agency to resurvey by latest scientific methods the great canyon of the Hudson River, which extends for 100 miles into the ocean in a southeasterly direction from New York. Curiously enough, this submerged channel, with its well-defined rocky palisades, rising from the floor of the sea, retains notable importance for shipping.

This is due to the fact that the submerged canyon in the course of about 100 miles slopes gradually from a depth of only 11 feet off Ambrose light, to 350 feet. Then the ocean floor drops 1,600 feet. In the course of another mile, while the ocean floor has fallen to 1,600 feet, the bottom of the canyon is still 1,700 feet lower. Ocean vessels know from their charts when they cross this sharply marked formation, and knowing its depth at various points, can readily determine their position from soundings, giving them a valuable check in foggy weather on the exact point at which they are crossing the canyon.

The present work of the Geodetic Survey in its studies of this underwater topography will be to revise the depth-listing charts with their sonic sounders, or echo instruments, which ascertain depths by measuring the time necessary for an underwater signal to rebound from the ocean floor. The old soundings were made by the ancient process of "heaving the lead." In a hundred fathoms of water this took eight minutes, but since sound waves in water travel 4,800 feet a second, the depth is ascertained by a sonic device in less than a second. So it is that the ancient bed of the Hudson River, deeply cut through land which extended much farther east some unknown eons before the last glacial age, 20,000 years ago, is still rendering useful service to ships sailing half a mile above it.

Rail Passenger Traffic.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

Attempts by the railroads to recover some of the passenger traffic taken from them by the bus lines are meeting with success. The Baltimore & Ohio, the Pennsylvania, the New York Central, the Great Northern, the Louisville & Nashville and other systems show an increase in the numbers carried. Special rates to the Chicago Fair have played a part in the stimulation of business, but perhaps the greatest single factor has been a reduction of the regular charges for one-day and week-end tickets.

In this respect the Louisville & Nashville was something of a pioneer. In March last it cut in coach rates to 2 cents a mile and its Pullman rates to 3 cents with no surcharge. The experiment has been so profitable that the railroad has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to make the rates permanent. The Long Island Railroad, which because of its limited trackage is peculiarly affected by the competition of automobiles, seems to be doing well with its program of special rates for limited service, which includes one-day return tickets, 30-day tickets and a restricted form of family tickets.

English railroads long ago discovered the value of "tripper" tickets for week-ends. Our railroads have been slow in following their example. So long as the volume of freight held up American systems could afford to let the bus and the privately operated automobile continue their inroads upon the passenger business. It was only after freights fell off that the roads were driven to seek means of building up passenger travel.

No bus can transport passengers as fast as a railroad. The bus and the private automobile alike must obey speed laws and traffic lights. The railroad operates on a right of way and its time table can be carried out with only small variations, save in exceptional cases. As railroads lower the cost of passenger tickets, at the same time increasing the speed and comfort of their trains, they recover thousands of travelers who in the past years have been diverted toward other forms of transportation.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

DR. ROOSEVELT EXAMINES THE PATIENT AGAIN.

Dr. Roosevelt—Well, Uncle, you've been under my care for six months; how do you feel now?

Uncle Sam—I can't tell for certain whether I'm out of danger or whether it's just because I believe everything I read in the papers.

Dr. Roosevelt—Why, you're a new man. When I first saw you last March you could hardly open your eyes.

Uncle Sam—I could open my eyes, but I had tired of the outlook.

Dr. Roosevelt—You surely feel stronger than you did in March, don't you?

Uncle Sam—I think I'm stronger, but it may seem that way because so many of my friends are weaker.

• • • •

Dr. Roosevelt—You don't have those old dizzy spells, do you?

Uncle Sam—I'm just as dizzy as ever, but the music they're playing now makes me think I'm waltzing.

Dr. Roosevelt—Do you have that constant feeling of thirst any more?

Uncle Sam—No, and the way those States are voting I think it will have disappeared entirely by December.

Dr. Roosevelt—All those old worries have left you, haven't they?

Uncle Sam—Oh, yes, they've been taken over by some organization called Nira. I don't have to be concerned about anything. Nira takes care of it all.

Dr. Roosevelt—Do you sleep well?

Uncle Sam—Pretty fair, but I have strange dreams. The other night I dreamed I was walking on eggs and all around me were thousands of big birds.

Dr. Roosevelt—That's no dream.

Uncle Sam—Every little while a hard-boiled fellow in a general's uniform would yell "Boo!" and a lot of curious dwarfs with chisels would jump right through the roof.

Dr. Roosevelt—That was Gen. Johnson. He was enforcing the codes.

Uncle Sam—In my dreams he seemed to be having a little trouble.

Dr. Roosevelt—Would that it was only in your dreams that he was having trouble. How do you feel, generally?

• • • •

Uncle Sam—Say, doc, sometimes I feel as if I had recovered entirely and could go out on an old-time bust.

Dr. Roosevelt—Curb that feeling. I've been very much alarmed by that prospect lately.

Uncle Sam—What prospect?

Dr. Roosevelt—The prospect that you would get well and strong before we could use all the medicine I have prescribed for you. I don't want you to jump out of bed just when the specialists are agreeing on drastic remedies to build you up.

Uncle Sam—I have a sort of feeling that I may get well before all the pills can be administered.

Dr. Roosevelt—Pull those blankets over you and talk sense. When you're cured I'll see that you are notified!

To Fight the Devil With Fire You Also Need His Disposition.

By Robert Quillen.

WISE old Ben Franklin distilled a proverb from the dregs of bitter experience. "One who lies down with dogs," said he, "will get up with fleas."

In the larger cities, many respectable business men who forgot that ancient truth are now lying awake at night. They made use of racketeers to advance their own schemes, and now they find themselves aligned with rogues they dare not desert.

There is only one safe rule in dealing with people who feel no shame and have no scruples. That is to let them alone.

In every community there are at least a few people whose blood is scum. Whether rich or poor, they are alike in their indifference to the rules that restrain other people, and this indifference gives them an advantage similar to that enjoyed by the skunk.

If you extend credit to one of them and later bring suit to get your money, or sell him goods or service that he can use as an excuse to bring suit against you, settle the case out of court if you can.

You have no chance to win; for you are handicapped by the practice of telling the truth, while he and all of his tribe are prepared for any necessary perjury. What is more, and worse, they have satan's own skill in the art of making a lie sound true.

As you are handicapped in a lawsuit, so you will be helplessly outclassed in any contest or controversy.

If your car should collide with a car driven by one of the tribe, don't stop to exchange words. There will be no exchange. For you are inhibited by good manners and hatred of a scene. You remember your dignity. And you can only stand, scarlet of face and sick of soul, while the other bellows to draw a crowd and fills the air with billingsgate.

If you have such a neighbor, walk warily or move. Whatever you do or don't do, you will trespass on his rights. And he will tell the world.

You can't answer him. You can't quarrel on even terms. You can't think up ingenious and insulting lies. You must save your reputation. And he has no reputation to lose—nor dignity, nor poise, nor taste. You haven't a chance.

People without shame are relatively few, and therefore easy to avoid. And it isn't cowardly to avoid them. The giant grizzly and the murderous mountain lion are careful to avoid the polecat.

Comment of the Press

Motor Fuel From Coal.

Kansas City Star.

The British government proposes to increase the value of its mining industry by the utilization of a large amount of coal for the manufacture of motor fuel. It has been known for some time that this is theoretically possible, but only recently has the process been developed to a stage where it is profitable commercially. A plant is now under construction with capacity to produce 100,000 tons annually of petrol for motor cars.

The government considers the enterprise of sufficient importance to guarantee a preference of 4 pence a gallon for the oils thus produced. The United Kingdom imported 974,000,000 gallons of refined motor fuel last year. If a substitute for those imports can be produced by the hydrogenation process applied to British coal, the country can achieve the double purpose of reducing its imports and enlarging the use of the product of a domestic industry that has long suffered from depression.

Thus England departs again from its traditional free trade policy of letting each industry stand on its own bottom.

Cops in Cork Helmets.

Brooklyn Eagle.

Police Commissioner Bolan announces that as soon as details can be arranged 3,500 members of the mounted squads and the traffic cops will wear cork helmets, thus described:

The helmet is of the type worn in tropical countries. It is made of cork and covered with white, washable canvas. Chin straps will be used to keep the helmet in place and it will be worn all the year 'round.

Now, New York isn't a tropical city and the average New Yorker has as much use for a cork helmet as a cat has for two tails. For something like four months we are liable to have heat, rarely very protracted. The introduction of the fashions that prevail in India and South China, even for policemen, is a curious innovation.

Never Again.

Detroit News.

A French star gazer claims to have discovered a new world. We warn him, if wars are needed to make it safe for anything we shall not be there.

Price Index as a Yardstick.

Kansas City Times.

As bonds no longer can include a gold clause, it has been suggested that they be based on an index number of prices. Under the present system if prices go up, the borrower pays back less than he borrowed, for the dollars he pays back will not buy so much as the dollars he borrowed. If prices go down, the borrower pays back more than he borrowed, for the dollars he pays back will buy more than the dollars he borrowed. It is urged that under the price index system the dollars paid back would buy just as much as the dollars borrowed, which would be fair to both borrower and lender.

Possibly something of the sort might be worked out, but there are obvious difficulties. None of the price indexes before the public is satisfactory except as indicating general trends. What is the "average price" of school books, pianos, spareribs, motor cars and house rentals?

Each economist has his own way of figuring, attaching his own idea of "weights" to the various articles. Some articles in general use today pass out and are superseded ten years hence. In the last generation buggies have been supplanted by automobiles, and in the last ten years radios have been created. Price indexes constantly must be corrected. It would need to be established that any price index would make a satisfactory yardstick for debts to be paid 50 years hence.

My shirt studs in my dressing stand
Or find my shoes of white and tan
It would improve me as a man.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

ONE OF THE tragedies of Washington these days is Prof. Tugwell. And the tragedy is all the more poignant because he is assumed to be sitting on top of the world, his heart flowing over with happiness and his joy of living knowing no bounds.

Bargeron.

I recall reading something about him a short time ago; in fact, of an opportunity having come to him such as comes to few men. Here was a man, the story related, who for years had been thinking the things that had come to prevail; who in print and from the rostrum had dreamed of a new deal by which wealth would be redistributed and the machine made the servant of man; the man who had conceived the Utopia and who now had the high position of a seat in the grandstand as the Utopia paraded by.

The writer concluded that he must be the happiest of men.

• • • •

THE truth is he must be as unhappy as can be. At a time when the country is being done over to conform to his sense of poetry and rhythm he is stuck over on the business of nationally planning the hogs and wheat and cotton and corn. For one of the professor's sense of beauty there could hardly be a more prosaic task.

One has only to read his Sunday pieces in the newspapers to know this is so; the professor is misplaced. Does he write of the things with which he is engaged, of the planning and creative work to which he has been assigned? No, indeed.

The professor says nothing of corn and wheat, of cotton or squealing pigs. He writes of the architecture which he would like to make of the world.

• • • •

ONLY a couple of Sundays ago he wrote most vividly of the World's Fair in Chicago, of the buildings, midway, highly adorned temples and electrical effects. Nothing garish, nothing lurid, said he, but simply a splendid planning by men who knew what would be pleasing to the eye, what would bring out the best in men and beasts. In short, the professor implied that here in the restricted area that is the fair, was what could be made of the world by the proper planning minds.

Ah, the professor revealed himself to me in this! Indeed, he did. That man is no more concerned in the turning under of pigs and wheat and cotton than the man in the moon.

He wants to build a country, that's what he wants to do!

• • • •

HE wants to reshape our cities, to move this building and do over the building over there. He wants to revamp our streets and our parks, perhaps to run the former in measured circles to suggest the picture of a rock dropped into a pond.

He has his ideas of where the temples should be and the trees. They should be brought into such juxtaposition as to give rhythm to our national living, to give a green vista to the naked eye.

There should be streams, perhaps, coursing our downtown section and cows, either real or artificial, browsing in pastures right next to our biggest department stores. The effect would be to give pause to the hurrying business man, make him stop and contemplate the wonders in which we live.

• • • •

THIS is what the professor wants to do, if his articles reflect the man at all. To place him under the circumstances with pigs is not to know where the man can do his best. It is more likely to crush him than it is to inspire him to bigger and better public service.

It would have been better, I believe, to leave him with his classes and his books. There he could have continued to dream of the higher things of life, of the symmetries and curves.

Why, if I have not been misinformed, one of his first contributions to the public weal was sponsorship of a bill in Congress for outlawry of cosmetics which purported to make women more beautiful but hurt their complexions instead.

To place a man of that feeling with the wheat and the pigs and then say he is happy is one of the most brutal things I have ever heard.

DANCED TO CURE SPIDER BITE.

Late in the Middle Ages Southern Europeans became obsessed by an unreasoning and unreasonable fear of spiders, says Henry E. Ewing in the National Geographic Magazine. They dreaded particularly the European tarantula, a medium-sized wolf spider, lycosa tarantula, the bite of which was supposed to cause dizziness and nausea, followed by depressing melancholy and eventually death.

Popular superstition held that only the "medical" choreographers could save tarantati (bitten persons). If only the right tune could be found, music and the dance would do the trick. The choreographers professed ability to select suitable music for any "patient."

Skipping and cavorting "with great vigor and variety of steps" made the patient perspire freely, and supposedly the deadly poison left the body with the perspiration. In the wild antics devised to shake off the dread tarantism originated a charming dance, the tarantella.

Help Assured To Substitute Postal Clerks

Official, Answering Labor Charges, Says They Will Be Safeguarded.

(Associated Press.)

Joseph C. O'Mahoney, First Assistant Postmaster General, said yesterday that the Postoffice Department has done and would continue to do everything within the law to help low-paid postal substitute employes.

In answering Labor Day protests made in telegrams to administration officials, O'Mahoney conceded that the plight of the substitute was difficult, but said charges of "sweat shop" wages were "not made in good faith."

To the Labor Day assertion by Andrew E. Newton, president of the National Organization of Substitute Postal Employes, that "relief agencies operating on Federal funds refuse them charity because they are nominally employed by the Government, O'Mahoney answered:

"These complaints have been laid before the Federal Relief Administration, which has promptly notified the agencies concerned that no such discrimination should be permitted."

"Substitutes handle the NRA communications for an average salary of $5 a week, while the code provides a minimum wage of $15 a week for office boys," Newton further charged.

O'Mahoney pointed out the Postoffice Department itself is trying to care for its regular employes. He added that it was not unmindful of the substitutes.

Changes Demanded In Japan Missions

Laymen Say Island Wants No More Condescension.

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—A layman's commission reported today the need of "radical changes" in missionary program, personnel and method for Christian missionary work in Japan.

The report was made public by Albert L. Scott, chairman of the Laymen's Foreign Missions Inquiry, to supplement the recent report of the inquiry's commission of appraisal. The report adds:

"The Japanese wish not to be patronized, but to be respected. Instead of condescension from Christians of the West they crave mutuality. Most leaders of the Japanese churches declared that no missionaries should be sent."

Hitler Defended By U. S. Educator

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Returning today from Europe aboard the liner Berlin, Dean Henry Holmes of the Graduate School of Harvard University, said he had changed his views of the Hitler government since going abroad.

"I think now that it is something Germany needed, and may turn out well," he said. Claiming the French want war, the dean added:

"I think that reports of Hitler's oppression of the Jews has been exaggerated. Some action may have been necessary. The main thing is that Germany, which has been fighting against tremendous odds imposed on her by the Versailles treaty, has regained self-respect, unity and confidence."

Allen Nathan Funeral Arrangements Pending

The body of Allen R. Nathan, retired Government Printing Office clerk, was at the undertaking establishment of J. William Lee Sons last night, with funeral arrangements held in abeyance while authorities attempt to communicate with a brother in California. Nathan was found dead Saturday in his room at a downtown hotel. He was 89 years old.

Although a printer, Nathan served in the Government Printing Office as a clerk and was retired several years ago. His only known relatives are the brother in California and a niece in Seattle. Services probably will be conducted by the Elks.

To-Hunt-or-to-Fish Debate Ends in Death

Galveston, Texas, Sept. 10 (AP).—A charge of murder and two charges of assault to murder have been filed against William L. "Billy") Walker, 46, Beaumont soft drinks manufacturer, for the slaying of Hubert B. Oxford and wounding of two other persons in a shooting affray at Caplen Resort, on Bolivar Peninsula, late yesterday.

Walker was arrested. Officers said he and Oxford had quarreled over whether to go hunting or crabbing. Oxford, 48 years old, was a Beaumont lumberman.

Rites for Judge Kenyon To Be Held Tomorrow

Bath, Me., Sept. 10 (AP).—Funeral services for Judge William S. Kenyon, of Iowa, who died yesterday, will be held Tuesday at his summer home at Sebasco, near here.

The body will be taken to Fort Dodge, Iowa, for Masonic interment. Honorary bearers at Sebasco will include Gov. Louis J. Brann, former Gov. M. A. Kendall of Iowa, and Walter E. Edge, former Ambassador to France.

E. S. Bisbee Dies at 59; Was New York Writer

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Eugene S. Bisbee, 59, veteran New York newspaperman, died today.

Bisbee, who had requested that his body be creamated and his ashes scattered over Park Row from an airplane, had worked on the staffs of the old Globe, Mail and Telegram. He was born in Columbus, Ohio, the son of Gen. William H. Bisbee, now of Brookline, Mass.

Rites Tomorrow

SR. DON JOSE M. CORONADO, First Secretary of the Colombian Legation, whose funeral services will be conducted tomorrow.

Dr. Coronado Will Be Buried In Mt. Olivet

Funeral Rites of Colombian Diplomat to Be Held 10 a. m. Tomorrow.

Funeral services for Senor Don Jose M. Coronado, first Secretary of the Colombian Legation, who died early yesterday at Garfield Hospital, will be held in St. Matthew's Church at 10 a. m., tomorrow with interment in Mount Olivet Cemetery. He was 47 years old.

Dr. Coronado first came to Washington in 1910. He entered the service of the Pan American Union and spent 11 years there as the Spanish Translator and editorial assistant. In 1921 he left the Union and spent two years in South America and Europe in the interests of a watch company. He was then appointed by the Colombian government as second Secretary of the Legation. In two years he was promoted to the position of first secretary.

Shortly after his appointment to first secretary, Dr. Enrique Olaya Herrera, at that time Minister of Colombia and under whom he served nine years, was called back to Colombia to take over the presidency. He appointed Dr. Coronado, Charge d'Affaires, a position which he held for about two years.

Dr. Coronado is survived by his wife, the former Marguerite Maddison, of Virginia; his brother, Enrique Coronado, who is the acting managing editor of the Pan American Bulletin; by his brother, Daniel, a counsel in Colon, Panama, and by two sister, Hortensia, and Mme. Pauline de Gaviria, both of Bogota, Colombia.

More Appraisers Speed Farm Loan Applications

A force of appraisers has been built up in the Federal land banks sufficient to handle applications of farmers for loans under the terms of the emergency farm mortgage act, according to Henry Morgenthau, jr., head of the Farm Credit Administration.

This force is being increased so that the land banks will not only be able to keep up with business, but will be able to act more quickly upon the accumulated applications.

On April 1 the land banks had 210 appraisers to cover applications throughout the country. This force has been increased to 1,734.

Human Needs Ideas Affect Chest Plans

November Help Campaign Linked With National Relief Studies.

Plans to handle the 1934 Community Chest campaign are being developed from information obtained at the conference of the 1933 mobilization for human needs held at the White House and the Mayflower Hotel last week.

The campaign, to be held November 20 to 29, inclusive, will be directed by Frank J. Hogan, former president of the District of Columbia Bar Association and nationally known attorney, as chairman.

The campaign in November will have advantage of the national advertising that will be given the 1933 mobilization for human needs, of which Newton D. Baker is chairman.

Newspapers and magazines in all parts of the United States will cooperate with Mr. Baker's committee and Community Chests in all parts of the country are arranging their campaign to tie in with this Nation-wide wave of publicity on welfare needs.

Will Have Feminine Unit.

This year will mark the first formation of a distinctively feminine unit in the campaign, the Women Crusaders, who, in reaching the women of Washington, will carry knowledge of the work of the Community Chest directly into the homes, Elwood Street, director of the Chest, pointed out yesterday.

Hard Campaign Ahead.

The Chest faces perhaps the hardest campaign in its history because the Government has taken over so much of the relief work, leading many people to believe that Uncle Sam has taken over all of the work of the Community Chest, Mr. Street said.

"They fail to realize," he said, "that there are still the unemployable to whom charity must be given; the sick and crippled children for whom hospitalization and medical aid must be provided; the aged and infirm for whom homes must be provided; the sick and injured for whom nursing and hospitalization must be arranged; the orphans whose institutions must be adequately maintained; the children of employed parents for whom the day nursery must care, and the thousands of others who must turn to the settlements and other character building organizations for adequate healthful and educational use of their leisure time."

There will be approximately 7,000 volunteer workers employed in this year's campaign, including men and women of all races and creeds from all parts of Washington.

Chairman Hogan is now selecting his campaign committee.

Foreign Influence In Sugar Code Hit

Farm Head Says Outsiders Dominate Hearings.

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP).—M. S. Winder, executive secretary of the American Farm Bureau Federation, urged bureau officials in 43 States today to protest the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's policy in permitting representatives of foreign sugar interests to participate in and dominate sugar hearings."

"Not only is the attitude of the administration working an injustice upon American sugar producers, but it is establishing a dangerous precedent," Winder said in a letter.

He suggested that curtailed acreage of staple commodities might be used to produce sugar cane and beets "provided domestic sugar producers were given protection."

Internal Revenue Gains $62,110,181

Treasury Figures for 1933 Show Material Increase.

(Associated Press.)

Internal revenue collections for the fiscal year 1933 totaled $1,619,839,224, an increase of $62,110,181 over 1932.

The Treasury announced yesterday the total included $746,791,404 in income taxes, a decrease of $309,965,293, and $873,047,820 in miscellaneous receipts, an increase of $372,075,475.

The decline in income tax receipts was explained by the fact the fiscal year 1933, ended last June 30, included collections of the last two installments paid on incomes of the calendar year 1931 before the higher rates became effective.

Safety Month Set to Reduce Car Fatalities

Many Organizations Aid Present Campaign Over Country.

(Associated Press.)

With September proclaimed as Highway Safety Month, another Nation-wire campaign to reduce the toll of motor-car accidents is now under way.

Safety organizations, motor clubs, school authorities, motor vehicle administrators and civic clubs are cooperating in the drive designed to arouse motorists and pedestrians to the need of curbing fatalities, injuries and property damage which have been called "the shame of America."

Fall is Bad Time.

September was selected for the campaign because it and the other fall months are rated among the worst for motor accidents. The opening of schools brings millions of children into congested city streets, roads are made slippery by falling leaves, frequent rain and fog, while the daylight periods are shorter.

Although there was a reduction last year in the automobile mortality rate, 39,000 persons were killed in car accidents. Some 42.2 per cent of the deaths were caused by car collisions with pedestrians, while collisions with other automobiles were responsible for 24.9 per cent. Collisions with fixed objects caused 12.1 per cent, noncollision type of accidents were the cause of 12.2 per cent, and miscellaneous causes were responsible for 8.6 per cent of deaths.

Resolutions Offered.

Among the "good resolutions" for safety authorities are:

To keep over to the right as far as possible under all conditions and to give signals at all times.

To keep in mind constantly that an uncontrolled automobile is a potential "engine of destruction."

To keep the car in generally good condition with special attention centering in brake, tire and headlight conditions.

To stop cutting the corners and using the inside of the curve, especially when it is a blind one.

To stop believing the "other fellow" wants a race merely because he goes by in a hurry.

To give pedestrians at least a few of the rights accorded them by the regulations and common courtesy.

To stop using the horn needlessly, but to use it when passing other vehicles or when it is otherwise necessary.

To use extraordinary precaution when driving at night or when the road is slippery.

To stop jumping the amber light and to stop racing the green signal.

Actress' Bracelet Must Go for Debt

Gloria Swanson Ordered to Give Up Jewelry.

Los Angeles, Sept. 10 (AP).—When Gloria Swanson, movie actress, testified in court that she was unable to satisfy a $36,000 judgment obtained against her by Maurice Cleary, theatrical agent, she wore a $2,000 diamond bracelet. She said she had pledged everything she possessed to secure debts.

Cleary's attorney asked that the bracelet be turned over. Miss Swanson protested, saying it was a gift, and that, as wearing apparel, it was exempt. Court records today disclosed the actress was ordered to turn the bracelet over to Cleary.

Whale's Nose More Valuable Than Head, Scientists Find

Priceless Sperm Oil Is Found in Nostrils of Sea Beast.

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—For years whales have been paying through the nose, while whalers thought they were taking valuable oil from the whales' heads.

Scientists announced today that the almost priceless oil is carried not in the sperm's heads, but in their Gargantuan noses.

The researches were made by Dr. William K. Gregory and his associate, Henry C. Raven, of the Natural History Museum. They used an 18-foot baby whale which was bought by the museum after it had followed an ocean liner across the sea under the impression the boat was its mother.

"The biggest thing about a whale is its nose," explained the scientists. "It is six times as big as the whale's brain case. The nose is made up of bones, fat and oil, covered with a thick sheet of skin and blubber. Through it run two gigantic nasal passages. The right one is so big that Jonah instead of living in the whale's stomach, could have rested in its nose with comfort.

"The essence of our discovery is that the apertures leading from the nasal passages to the throat can be shut by two enormous plugs which function like the stopper in a bathtub.

"This unique control of its breathing apparatus enables the whale to prevent the escape of air, an important feature in a beast that will plunge to depths of a mile."

Texan Moves His Town To Place It on Highway

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 10 (AP).—Paul Schirmer has moved the village of Schirmerville one mile to establish it on a high way.

The town, which he founded 10 years ago, included a store, a garage, Schirmer's home, a tourist camp, a filling station and a confectionery. In celebration, a street dance was held last night.

Two More Canning Centers Will Open

Deanwood Church, Bradley School to Be Used.

Under the Council of Social Agencies, the two new canning centers at Deanwood Church and at the old Bradley School are starting this week. LeRoy Halbert, head of the Emergency Relief Division of the Board of Public Welfare, will supply necessary equipment, according to Mrs. W. A. Roberts, executive secretary of the agencies.

The canning center at 1075 Jefferson street, Georgetown, headquarters of the Salvation Army, has been working full speed. Indications are that there will be a shortage of cans at the three centers and everyone with quart jars to spare is urged to call the council at Me. 2284 and the council will send for the jars.

A quantity of foodstuffs, suitable for canning, is obtained from the subsistence gardens in various parts of the city and the women engaged in this gardening are urged to can all the food possible for use this winter. In addition, the council is receiving donations from the government experimental farms and from the various wholesalers and merchants.

New York, (AP).—Samuel Ornstein, 63, fruit peddler, is a saving soul. Hailed into court for dropping a slug in a turnstile, he was found to carry $78 in his pockets and a bank book showing $38,000 balance. The judge gave him a choice of a $10 fine or two days in jail. He elected jail.

Miss Alice Fleming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Fleming, will return to Washington today from Lake Tawas, Mich., where she has been visiting Mrs. John Henry Dwight.

Miss Mary Dwight will accompany Miss Fleming to Washington and will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fleming for about 10 days. Mr. and Mrs. Fleming will entertain at dinner Friday evening for their daughter, who will be a debutante this winter.

Anniversary Party Given For Metzgers

Washingtonians Hold Surprise Event at Lee-Jackson Highway Home.

A surprise party was given for Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Metzger Saturday evening at their palatial residence on Seminary Hill, on the Lee-Jackson highway, near Alexandria, Va., on the occasion of the sixth anniversary of their wedding.

Mr. Luke F. O'Reilly, on behalf of the little group of friends, all of Washington, presented the Metzgers with a linen tablecloth. Mrs. Metzger was assisted in entertaining by her sisters, Miss Isabel Connor, Miss Gertrude Connor and Miss Edythe Connor.

Among those present were Miss Jessie Boehlert, Miss Bessie Ruppert, Miss Helen Regan, Miss Cecilia Regan, Miss Anna Smith, Miss Ann Ambrose, Miss Helene Gingras, Mr. Benjamin Swann, Mr. William McGarvey, Mr. Luke O'Reilly, Mr. William Boyd, Mr. Joseph Callan, Mr. William Exner, Mr. John Donnelly and Mr. Joseph Fallon.

Women in Turkey Given High Posts

Istanbul, Sept. 10 (AP).—For the first time in Turkey, women have been made assistant professors in the coeducational Istanbul University, the only university in the country. As a result they now may become candidates for professorial chairs.

Three Turkish women scientists have just been appointed to three of the posts left vacant when 96 professors and assistant professors were dismissed. This was the Kemalist government's first smashing move in its reorganization of the 100-year-old institution, last stronghold of Oriental culture in occidentalized Turkey.

Two of the three young women appointees are chemistry Ph. D.'s who studied in France and Germany. The third, Fazile Shevet Hanim, is a biologist who received her master's degree from Mount Holyoke College in America.

A number of the chairs in the reformed university will be filled by "non-Aryan" professors, late of Germany.

College Head Visions Revolt In Education

Ohioan Starts Experiment With Chosen Students, No Compulsion.

Lebanon, Ohio, Sept. 10 (AP).—Dr. Holly E. Cunningham sees America "at the gateway of a complete educational revolution" which he believes will make education "a tool of doing rather than a refuge of contemplation, a field of creativeness rather than an instrument for acquisitiveness."

Formerly with the University of Chicago, Dr. Cunningham has reopened old National Normal University here as Alfred Holbrook College, an educational experiment, working with hand-picked students in the forefront of that "revolution."

Holbrook was founder of the school in 1882 and attracted an enrollment of 1,600 by 1884, but he died in 1910 and the school has been closed since 1917. At one time Secretary of State Hull was a student here.

Reverses Old Order.

To carry out his new ideas, Dr. Cunningham, psychologist and philosopher, has substituted "intellectual major" and a "practical minor" in courses of study, instead of the traditional major and minor courses.

The practical minor is intended really as a hobby "in which the student actually learns to do something with his hands, his feet, his voice, his ears, his physical body."

With that in mind, Dr. Cunningham has established here a small printing shop, a textile plant and a furniture factory, where students may learn to do things for themselves, as well as earn money to carry on more intellectual pursuits.

"Education," Dr. Cunningham says, "has failed largely because its leaders have imposed on the plastic, dynamic stuff which we know as human nature, the same technology which the engineer uses in the building of machines. The result is a quantitative education with students turned out on a mass production basis, each one bearing the stamp of traditionalized forms like a string of sausages branded with a Government stamp.

Individual Narrowed.

"Traditional education has narrowed the individual and his interests to a minimal sector of natural and human experience. Traditional education has emphasized the one-sidedness of the individual, that is the intellectual side of his nature. The human animal is more than an intellectual device, and emphasis on this aspect alone has issued in dire results for the welfare of social groupings. Education in the future must devise a place for the active, executive aspect of humanity."

Dr. Cunningham believes the college of the future will have no compulsory classes.

"Students of the new day must have an opportunity to decide more momentous questions than whether they shall cut Prof. Black's class in Greek mythology, or instead take their Dulcinea del Tobosos for a joy ride in a fraternity brother's car," he says.

Responsibility Developed.

"If a student can master the contents of a course better as he waits for the fish to bite, so much the better for the student—and perhaps for the fish. Voluntary attendance is a means of developing responsibility.

"It also has a teaching advantage not to be overlooked. The dry, dead professor who compelled obedience on penalty of handing an 'F' to the student, will be 'on his toes' to deliver something which will elicit the attention of every deserving student.

"The intellectual high priest with his monk-like cast, his eye shining with the degree of speculation characteristic of the eye of a dead fish, will yield to the virile teacher who comes to his lectures charged with information and quickened with enthusiasm."

Comfortable Guest Rooms Matter of Care, Not Cost

Few and far between are the comfortably equipped guest rooms in the home of moderate means. Why it should be so is baffling, because the requirements are more or less easily prescribed and the cost of providing them is small. One's own not infrequent experience in the guest room of grudging accommodations should furnish the list required for comfort.

Emergency toilet supplies, including toothpaste, soap, face powder and talcum powder, should never be omitted. There should be pins and sewing materials; a night light, a few books and some fairly recent magazines on a table at the head of the bed. Stationery, ink and pens, a waste paper basket and a trunk rack likewise are essential.

In the closet, the guest is justified in expecting to find a handkerchief bag and a clothes bag, a rack for shoes, a generous supply of clothes hangers and a negligee.

When the guest arrives, have the bureau drawers and closet shelves immaculately clean and bare. Let there be a few fresh flowers on bed table or desk.

Before saying the last "good-night," the thoughtful host or hostess will see that the guest's luggage has been properly bestowed, that the bed has been opened for the night, that he has cold drinking water near at hand in a covered container, that lights are accessible and functioning and that an understanding exists about the hour for breakfast.

Couple Known Here to Wed In Wisconsin

Sheboygan Girl to Be Bride of Dr. J. S. Hollingsworth This Winter.

An engagement of interest to many residents of Hyattsville and vicinity is that of Miss Helen Goddard Ridell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Ridell, of Sheboygan, Wis., to Dr. John Southwick Hollingsworth, son of Mrs. Marie H. Hollingsworth and the late John H. Hollingsworth.

Dr. Hollingsworth, formerly a resident of Hyattsville, was graduated from Georgetown University in 1928. In the fall of that year he became associated with his uncle, Dr. William J. Hollingsworth, of Sheboygan, and has been practicing in that city for the last five years. He is a member of Psi Omego, national professional fraternity.

Miss Ridell is a graduate of Ferry Hall, Evanston, Ill., and has been a frequent visitor at the home of Mrs. Hollingsworth in University Park.

The wedding will take place in the early winter in Sheboygan.

Marjorie Simonds Will Join Parents

The Commandant of the War College and Mrs. George S. Simonds will be joined today by their daughter, Miss Marjorie Louise Simonds, who, with Miss Jane Crosby, has been visiting Capt. and Mrs. Hoel S. Bishop, at Germantown, Pa. Mrs. Bishop before her marriage was Miss Louise Hickman.

Stars Dispute On Hollywood Debt to Stage

Helen Hayes Is Going Back, But Others Prefer Fat Movie Pay.

Hollywood, Sept. 10 (AP).—Do the movies owe the theater anything?

The movies think not, but some of its workers agree with Helen Hayes, who declares "Hollywood should be made to pay its toll to the theater."

Miss Hayes, who has forsaken Hollywood, temporarily, however, believes players from the stage "shouldn't let the theater struggle alone, now that death threatens it, without us." She expressed the hope that other cinema celebrities who have "cashed in" on their earlier success in the theater might be led to follow her example.

They Like Stage.

Like her, many of them love the stage. There are a few in Hollywood who refuse to accept long-term contracts because such agreements do not allow them to return to the stage at will.

A few, like Miss Hayes, insist on and obtain such contracts. Zita Johann will sign only one—or two—picture contracts because she wants to feel free to go back to the stage. Douglas Montgomery—known cinematically for some time as Kent Douglas—is another who has refused several of Hollywood's famous "long-termers."

In this way, perhaps, Hollywood can be said to be paying the toll Miss Hayes thinks it should pay. It will never, of course, pay a tax for "enticing" to motion pictures the best and greatest talent the stage has developed. Producers would scoff at such an idea.

Movies Pay More.

Not so many, however, care for the stage as greatly as Miss Hayes or Miss Johann or Montgomery because, by returning to it when there are things to be done in Hollywood, even in a successful play, means a financial loss to them. The stage never could and probably never will be able to meet Hollywood salaries.

A different view from Miss Hayes' is held by Frank McHugh, comedian, who grew up on the stage. He began at the age of a few years, barnstorming with his theatrical family and, before he came to pictures, he had made something of a name on the New York stage.

"It's a lot of poppycock," says McHugh of Miss Hayes' dictum. "I've got an old uncle who used to say that 'cows off yonder have longer horns.' He was right.

Hits "Good Old Days."

"Movie people who talk about the stage are seeing it through the rosy glow of the good old days. Why, the good old days are right in their laps, now. The good old days on the stage never existed.

"I've heard people call it their cradle and their school and their dear old mother. Well, it's none of those fancy terms. The stage took your last ounce of time and strength. It made you play week after week in plays you didn't like. When you got a good one, it died on you, and you probably were out of work for weeks, maybe years.

"Where does Broadway get the idea that it constitutes the theater, anyway? How many people have played on Broadway for longer than a year or two? Maybe a handful. I spent 15 years working up to the place where I could play three years on Broadway. But not because it was my cradle or teacher. I wanted to play on Broadway because it paid me more money than playing in tank towns.

"I play in pictures for the same reason."

Get Married—You'll Enjoy Longer Life, Doctor Asserts

Two may not be able to live as cheaply as one, but the chances are they will live longer. Dr. Louis I. Dubin, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., advances this theory in the American Magazine.

"If you are married," he says, "whether you are man or woman, you have a better chance of living long than if you are single.

"The old joke that it only seems longer may be disregarded. At the age of 25, for example, the married man may expect five years more of life than the bachelor of the same age."

Dr. Dubin gleaned this information from his latest crop of insurance statistics.

Not only marriage, but continued marriage will keep you from an early grave. As Dr. Dubin states:

"Divorced people show an exceptionally short expectation of life. Among them we find considerable mental disease, maladjustment and sterility."

These mental troubles and maladjustments eventually undermine the physical organism and ill health and permature death result. If you can live without your mate, at least you can't live as long nor as well.

The advantages enjoyed by the married people is partly due to selection. To quote Dr. Dubin:

"People who are normal and well organized physically are much more likely to marry than those who are not. Furthermore, marriage seems to be definitely beneficial."

Those who are released from the marital protection show, definitely low expectation of life then those for whom marriage continues, he contends.

Neat School Bag Is Found By Shopper

Carries Books and Lunch in Separate Pockets; Bargain Prices.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

School days may be regarded with opprobrium by the youngsters, but not by busy housewives. Won't it be a grand and glorious feeling to pack Junior's luncheon in the morning and bid him a fond farewell for six hours? No more raids on the icebox, no more playing Indian underneath your study window, no more disputes with the neighbors as to just who did deliver the first blow. It will all be the teacher's worry pretty soon.

Now about Junior's school equipment. He should have a bag to carry his books, papers and luncheon. If you buy now, you will find that the prices are decidedly lower than they will be later. A downtown store has some schoolbags of waterproof covert cloth, trimmed in leather, with a lunch pocket on the side. You could have his name printed across the pencil case, and there he is, outfitted like a debonair young school chap should be. Bags, $1.

It might be a good idea to stock the pantry shelf with some solutions to the lunch problem. If you've tried kumquat preserves, here's the answer. They're something out of the usual preserve line, attractive looking and decidedly delicious. You can use them in place of a desert, or serve them with hot biscuits or muffins for either tea or breakfast. These kumquat preserves were made in Florida from the fresh fruit and are sold here in a fruit store on Fourteenth street, for 35 cents a jar.

When people drop in to call on you in the afternoons, they're as liable as not to ask for a drink of water. At least they say water. You know what your embarrassment is when you have to go and bring in your pitcher and the several glasses in a makeshift fashion. It would cost you only 69 cents to remedy the situation by buying the fully equipped tumbler tray on display in an E street store. The silver filigree rim of the tray makes it appear a great deal costlier than it is.

From the day they married they had quarreled. Not about the large, serious things which really matter, but about such little trifles as the toothpaste tube. She had a habit of using her portion and letting it go at that. He was much more meticulous. After carefully pressing out the exact amount of a pea on his brush, he would roll the bottom of the tube. But his handiwork always lacked finesse for his wife would undo the greater part of it. One morning their quarrel reached the proportions of a small tempest. He fumed and she raged.

Like the good wife she was, she knew they were taking an indirect road to the divorce courts. Determined to remedy the situation, she went down to a G street store and bought one of their $1 toothpaste dispensers (on sale for 65 cents today) and hung it up in the bathroom. From that time on, peace and quiet have reigned.

Even if you don't quarrel with your husband about such trifles, you'll undoubtedly be interested in the little gadgets. See them just for the fun of the thing.

Housework is liable to have a disastrous effect on milady's hands unless she takes particular care of them. One of the best ways she can do this is to prevent their becoming rough and scarred from scrubbing the pots and pans. The bunches of steel wool she's been using have often caused her to bruise and scrape her knuckles against rough edges. She will find that by using one of the new steel wool sticks she can accomplish the same result with considerably less damage. It will cost only 10 cents to try them, and she'll find they're worth it.

Again the luxury of the bath is being attended to. A downtown store is displaying the nonskidable, washable bathroom mats, with downy fabric tops and rubber undersides. They're just long enough, just wide enough and priced exactly right. Take your choice of orchid, green, blue or rose, for 59 cents.

She was sweet for more reasons than one. She had heard about the new bath essence on sale at a downtown store and had taken advantage of its subtle scent. Three drops of it in a tub of water and the job was done. She could rest assured throughout the evening that no flower could outdo her with alluring fragrance. The essence comes in two scents, amber and jasmine. Know your type and choose your perfume.

If you've tried the various and sundry shades of lipstick and are still convinced that no manufacturer had you in mind for any of them, be undaunted and try again. An F street store is showing a new shade. It lacks the purplish tinge and the yellow glare, but maintains a very carmine hue. It might be the one you're looking for. Sample it, anyway.

NRA Move, With Women in Field, "Can't Be Stopped," Leader Asserts

Miss Hughes Finds Millions at Work Throughout Whole Country.

"Now that the women of America are mobilized, Gen. Johnson couldn't stop the NRA movement if he wanted to," declared Mary E. Hughes, head of the NRA women's division, on return to her headquarters in the Willard Hotel from a two weeks' speaking tour in Eastern, Middle Western and Southern States.

On August 28, the NRA women's division, organized late in July, launched a Nation-wide drive for women consumers' support of the President's reemployment campaign and Miss Hughes simultaneously embarked on a plane tour to stimulate enthusiasm and to obtain first-hand information on women's reaction.

Talks in Many Cities.

In Boston, New York, Wilmington, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Louisville, Lexington, Nashville, Birmingham and Atlanta she addressed town, city, county, State and interstate gatherings of NRA women's groups and adherents, from the New England States, from Connecticut, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Tennessee and Georgia.

Declaring it impossible to accurately estimate the number of women who have actually engaged in the NRA consumers' support drive the past fortnight, Miss Hughes yet places it in the millions.

"A million and a half women are enrolled in a supervisory capacity alone in NRA organizations in cities, towns, villages, hamlets and counties," she declared. "These groups are further subdivided into as many smaller groups as the districts require, and the woman in charge of the smallest division takes her work as seriously as Gen. Johnson himself. That's why the drive has been so successful. These women are in deadly earnest.

Finds Humanitarianism.

"Everywhere I found women mobilized in response to a patriotic call to save their country and their homes from economic destruction; yet everywhere I sensed, beneath their patriotic and home-protective zeal, a deep spiritual undercurrent of humanitarialism.

"The women of the little city of Petersburg, Va., are a splendid instance of the kind of support the women are giving NRA. There 1,000 women are enrolled in active campaigning—one woman for every block in the city!

"Unquestionably, the NRA elicited the biggest concerted effort of women ever made in history, and that during the month of August, always the slackest period in women's activities, when even club meetings are recessed.

"Women of America have been aroused to a consciousness that man is his brother's keeper and that the only way out of the world economic crisis is through the application of the principles of Christianity.

New Order Heralded.

"They'll tell me they feel the world is coming into a new social order, and that, through maintaining organized unity, they can best carry on women's work during the transition period.

"These women haven't the slightest intention of demobilizing their NRA army, even though their objective—that of procuring 100 per cent consumer support of employers and workers pledged to the principles of NRA—is practically achieved.

With the official wind-up of the consumers' support drive on or about September 15, these women's NRA groups will turn their attention to a study of causes underlying the economic disorder, which necessitated NRA emergency measures, and to a study of the nature of remedial codes, for the purpose of making a digest to be presented in educational form to women's clubs and to women in general, during the coming months.

Careful Buying Urged.

"Discriminating purchasing will be urged by these study groups, through speakers' bureaus to be organized," Miss Hughes explained. "Women are realizing that merchants can better help their employers and their customers, if women will demand the better brand of merchandise. Once women are educated to what real value is, they will be willing to pay the price which commands it."

Miss Hughes estimates that women buy 85 per cent of the retail merchandise in this country and probably influence the decision of the other 15 per cent.

Despite their enthusiasm for NRA, women campaigners are sturdily allied against any tendency toward hysteria in forcing its adoption, Miss Hughes discovered.

Avoid Gossipy Tactics.

"They are urging women as well as men to refrain from gossiping complaints and grevious action against merchants and employers who may not be pledged to the NRA," she said. "Where such cases exist, they are asked to make such report to the proper local committee, which has power to investigate and to act."

Native of Lexington, Ky., and graduate of Transylvania University, Miss Hughes, in the course of her tour, found herself in Lexington for the Labor Day celebration. Her visit, the first in 10 years, was made the occasion of a city-wide NRA demonstration, which paid homage to a returning "hometown girl" as much as to the President's representative.

Throughout her journey, Miss Hughes wore a hand-made scarf of cream-colored heavy silk, on which is embroidered the NRA eagle insignia in blue and red. The scarf, which elicited approving comment everywhere, was received by Miss Hughes just prior to her departure from a group of women factory workers in New York City, "in appreciation of better working conditions under the NRA."

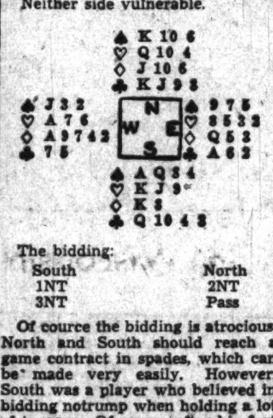
Third Hand Low.

"Third hand high" is a principle which has come down all the way from the early days of Whist. It is a good principle but, like all others of its kind, it should not be followed all of the time. There are situations where a player should deliberately refuse to top Dummy. The following hand is a good illustration:

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	North
1NT	2NT
3NT	Pass

Of cource the bidding is atrocious. North and South should reach a game contract in spades, which can be made very easily. However, South was a player who believed in bidding notrump when holding a lot of tenaces. Of course after his first bid it is too late to mention the spade suit. The hand only goes to show the fallacy of a system which prevents any real exchange of information.

In spite of the fact that four spades is the right spot, three notrump is rather hard to defeat. West's opening lead is the 4 of diamonds, on which the Ten is played from the Dummy. If at this point East plays very hurriedly and simply lays down the Queen, the hand will be made, as the Knave in the Dummy will be established for a second stopper. However, a little consideration should show him the foolishness of playing the Queen. It is almost impossible for West to hold the Ace-King of diamonds, so the natural assumption is that he holds either one or the other. If he holds the King the play will make no difference and the Declarer is certain to win 2 diamond tricks; if, however, he holds the Ace and also a five-card suit the Declarer must hold the King and one and can be held to but one trick. It should be apparent at once that the play of the Queen can gain nothing and lose everything.

Having reasoned this out, East should play the 3-spot. South will duck and start the club suit. East will win with the Ace, return a low diamond and win the third round of diamonds in his own hand with the Queen, after which a heart return to his partner will set the contract 2 tricks.

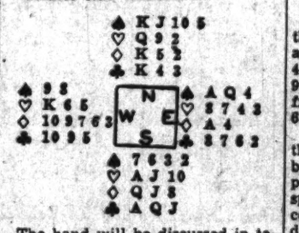
Strangely enough, the contract can almost be made if the Declarer starts hearts before clubs. If he should do this, West, to defeat the contract, must win the second round of the suit and lead a heart right back to establish East's "thirteener." This defense can be accomplished only if East makes a reverse discard in hearts, which, as a matter of fact, is exactly what he should do.

In spite of this hand's apparent simplicity there are a great many interesting little angles that merit attention.

Tomorrow's Hand.

With South playing a contract of three notrump, how should East plan the defense in order to defeat the contract against an opening lead of a diamond?

South dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Morocco Grapes, Now Grown in West, Fall in Price, But Not in Quality.

The prestige which formerly belonged ot the Morrocco grapes is gone forever. Several years ago they sailed the high seas all the way from South America to grace the tables of Washingtonians. When they arrived they were carefully polished so that their black skins glowed like ebony, and put on the market for 75 cents a pound.

Today they are grown in California, piled crate on crate in freight cars, in which they take their journey to Washington in a most plebeian fashion. When they arrive they are unloaded along with the other fruits and vegetables and put on the market at 20 cents a pound.

But they can't expect us to sympathize! They still have the same sweet flavor, still the same bounteous supply of juice, and we can buy them any day in the week, even on the eve of pay day.

Asparagus on Market.

Asparagus, of course, is out of season, but thanks to California we may still enjoy it. If you're very fond of it, now's a good time to appease your taste, for from now on, week by week, we may expect to see the price mount slowly but surely. At present it is selling for 30 cents a bunch.

To avoid overcookng asparagus tips, tie the stalks in bundles of serving size and stand butt-ends in boiling water to cook partially. Then lay the bundles flat and cook only until tender.

Lima beans, general favorites in all circles, are up again. We didn't mind particularly when they were 25 cents a pint, but now that they're 30 cents we're beginning to be uneasy lest they decide on 35 and, eventually, 40 cents. However, when they do we'll turn to the canned ones.

Persimmons Expensive.

Persimmons have a strange philosophy of life if we may judge from their mode of living. When very young they are one of the bitterest known fruits. As time goes on, their extreme bitterness turns to a decided mellowness Some excellent, but expensive, examples are on the market now selling three for 25 cents, or two for 15 cents.

If you're still planning to can tomatoes, or make tomato catsup, now's the time. Half bushel baskets of large, juicy bright red ones are selling for 50 to 75 cents.

And while you're busy canning, preserving, pickling and what not, don't overlook the peppers. They'll add a lot of flavor to many of your winter dishes and be extremely handy to have around for use in soups and stews.

Endive Welcome Change.

If you're bored with lettuce, why not turn to endive for relief? If you use it in a salad, be sure the leaves are cold, crisp and dry. Serve with Lombardy dressing if you want a treat.

To prepare the dressing, use ½ cup French dressing, 2 tablespoons chili sauce, 1 tablespoon red or green peper, finely chopped, and 1 teaspoon scraped onion.

Combine ingredients and blend. Chill. Mix well before using.

If at any time you have difficulty in finding items mentioned in the Market Column, call the Family Marketer at National 4205, Extension 105, and she will be glad to tell you where she saw them.

Hands Hold Beauty Key For Women

Chart Shows How They May Impart Allure to Features.

It is literally true that women hold beauty in their hands.

An authority on beauty culture has devised the revolutionary idea in beauty building that the hands are the principal means used in capturing and developing desirable contours, texture and coloring for face and throat—always the first to betray a woman's age.

A chart of the hand has been drafted, indicating which features of the hand are suited to vitalizing the skin, molding contours, ironing away wrinkles, plumping out hollows.

The cushion tips of the fingers, labeled A, are designated for applying lotions and smoothing out fine lines from neck and face.

Other Parts Designated.

The palm cushion, sometimes called "the heel of the hand," is B, for restoring jaw-line contours, and a firm chin line.

The palmar muscles are C, for smoothing out horizontal forehead lines and for restoring sagging or hollow cheeks.

The dorsal region, that strong, bony back of the hand, is for reducing fat and muscle tissue in the underchin area, and is charted D.

Women are assured that if they follow the simple rules of the hand principle, their skin "will not grow old before its time," and that "pore enlargement, drooping contours, rough texture and loss of color can be corrected by this natural beautifying method.

Use Cream to Cleanse.

The program prescribed by this authority begins with cream cleansing of the skin.

With the cushion tips of the fingers smooth on cleansing cream generously. Begin at the base of the neck and stroke the cream up and up with feather-weight applications. The combined heat of the hands and of the skin of the face is just enough to release the oils and free the clogged pores.

When this is concluded by wiping away the cream with cleansing tissues, the devotee of beauty must, after first generously smearing her face and hands with a nourishing cream, catch the jaw line smartly on either side of the chin with the strong palm cushion. Move upward, smoothing the sagging muscles or the fatty tissue over the bony jawline.

Then Slap Cheeks.

Then begin a rhythmical slapping of the cheeks with the open palm, just hard enough to arouse the circulation. Note the suction that the palm creates against the cheek. This will restore sagging cheeks and fill out hollows, as well as bring up a natural flow of color to sallow faces.

To obtain a sweeping chin line, slap briskly the fleshy part of the underchin, after first coating the area with nourishing cream. For this treatment, the bony back of the hand is brought into play.

What Today Means

If September 11 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 4:45 to 5:15 p. m. and from 8:40 to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:45 to 10:15 a. m. and from 6:30 to 7:30 p. m.

Actions will indeed speak louder than words on this date; more will be gained by watching facial expressions than by listening to words spoken. It will be difficult to deceive or mislead another on this day. Children will be less inclined to practice deception than is usually the case. Would seem an auspicious time for the settling of controversies out of court.

The child born on this September 11 will probably be the type who gets "crushes" on others of his own age; this is more particularly true of the girls but may apply as well to a good many of the boys. More than likely not the forceful sort, but easily influenced and quick to respond to the slightest kindness.

If September 11 is the date of your birth, it is more than likely that you like to take things easy; a hectic and busy life is not particularly to your liking. You can not be classed as lazy; it is more the case that you seem unable to fit yourself into a rushing world. You do not find life dull, but at the same time you probably have no vital interests. You enjoy your leisure and probably spend much of it reading. You like the country, you enjoy its beauties, its peace and quiet. It is quite possible that force of circumstance may hurl you out into the roughest currents of life and force you to make a living in a rather strenuous way. You are a person of great pride and you will carry on and make a moderate success of anything you are forced into. You will never be the type to sit back and let others do for you.

Born on September 11 you are not without talents and good points. You are a keen observer and you react strongly to any situation; people interest you. You are a restful person to be with; you lack curiosity, consequently you ask few questions of a personal nature. You are inclined to accept people too readily as friends. It is seldom that you get angry or lose your temper; when you do, however, you are not above making a scene and you are liable to make remarks you will later regret.

Successful people born on September 11:

Henry C. Bowen, merchant and editor.

James Pollock, governor of Pennsylvania and congressman.

William S. Macy, artist.

Isaac Roberdeau, engineer.

Sterling Price, soldier and governor of Missouri.

James Brown, soldier, senator and judge.

Society Is Passing, Philadelphian Says

Philadelphia (U.P.).—In her little ancient house, which once sheltered Joseph Bonaparte, and surrounded by her ancient furniture and bric-a-brac, Mrs. Henrietta Potter James, 80, who can trace her ancestry back to William the Conqueror, clucks her teeth at modern society and laments the "good old Seventies."

"The City of Brotherly Love?" she scoffed. "It's the City of Thieves. If you have anything the city wants, you might as well make them a present of it."

The Civil War and the World War ruined Philadelphia, Mrs. James declared. Today's society is a joke compared to that of the '70s, and the old families are marrying beneath them, she maintained.

The house in which Mrs. James lives has been in her family's possession for 125 years. Napoleon's brother lived in it two years.

Watch Gas Flame

When the gas stove gives a yellow flame accompanied by a roar and bad odor, it has too much air. Close the air valve. If the flame is smoky and yellow, it has too little air. By adjusting the air valve, the flame burns clear. Proper adjustment of the air valve saves gas.

Oyster Cocktail.

30 medium oysters
2 teaspoons prepared horseradish
3 tablespoons tomato catsup
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons vinegar
4 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon tabasco sauce.

Where oysters in the shell are obtainable they are usually served on the half shell, on a plate of crushed ice, around a small glass holding the cocktail mixture. When it is not possible to get the oysters in the shell, cocktails may be served in ice shells made for this purpose, or in cases made from green-pepper shells, in halves of grapefruit or in large claret glasses. Put five medium oysters into each glass and pour the dressing over them. To make the dressing, mix horseradish, tomato catsup and vinegar, lemon juice, tabasco sauce and salt thoroughly. Both oysters and dressing should be very cold.

What's in Fashion?

Fashion's Fall Curriculum Includes Study of Geometry

Directed by Amos Parrish.

Information as to where styles of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, Washington Post, on request.

Get out the geometry books, everybody, and brush up on ellipses, rhomboids and trapeziums. For no matter how much you may have detested the subject in school, you're going to take it and like it in new dresses.

You'll have ellipses 'round your shoulders and triangles across your front . . . rectangles and circles turning into collars and squares making pockets and decorative buttons and buckles. And if you study the seaming of many skirts, you'll come across trapeziums as well as triangles and rectangles.

Just as in school you found the triangle one of the most useful figures in demonstrating theorems, so in costumes it is one of the most popular demonstrations of fashion-rightness.

Triangles and Triangles.

Triangular jabots and scarfs emblazon dress bodices as proudly as a Phi Beta Kappa key does a math shark's bosom.

Triangular vestees, revers, yokes and plastrons, necklines and collars and cuffs . . . in addition to your geometry you need an adding machine to keep track of them.

A dress isn't limited to one triangle, either. Some have several . . . a point proved by the sketch, which shows a deep triangular yoke effect, a scarf fastened to make two more triangles and triangular points on the cuffs.

Rectangular Collars.

Big rectangular collars are another popular geometrical detail.

Sometimes they're of fur . . . detachable on a wool dress . . . or of fabric edged with fur . . . or just fabric. Sometimes they are part of the dress and sometimes a separate piece of neckwear.

Then you'll find all sorts of ellipses if you look. Some making an off-shoulder line with a deep tuck, the way Lyolene started the fashion. Others in extra collars that make crisp white outlines across the front and around the shoulders. And still others in seams or tucks around the armholes.

Details Aid Figures.

All these geometrical details have another mission in life besides being decorative. They can be used to cure figure ailments and to emphasize good points.

We have a new leaflet which tells you how. It is illustrated and cram full of helpful information. Send the coupon, which tells you how to obtain it.

Women Make Own Jobs in Botany Field

100, Untrained and Unemployed, Become Skilled Technicians in New York.

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—About 100 unemployed and scientifically untrained women have made a contribution to botany—and have made jobs for themselves—by helping to index and coordinate botanical data.

Working for $12 and $15 a week, paid by the unemployment relief committee, of which Mrs. August Belmont is chairman, they have "helped us accomplish some things no botanical institute has ever done," Dr. E. D. Merrill, director of the botanical garden, said today.

"And what is remarkable, too, is that they have done productive—not created—work of the highest type, tending to increase the efficiency not only of our own staff, but that of scientific investigators visiting the garden."

From All Walks of Life.

Clerks with no files, teachers with no schools, linguists who were not needed, waitresses with no trays and others wholly untrained in the sciences, found at the garden a haven of duty and compensation.

One of the results is the incorporating on a large scale of the original descriptions, illustrations, critical notes, photographs and other data in association with the actual specimens of plants in the study and reference collections."

This, Dr. Merrill demonstrated, eliminated the necessity of looking through at least 150 different reference books to find out about one genus.

"It is estimated that about 400,000 of these clipped notes and other items have been added to the herbarium, or 'reference collection of dried plants,' and 300,000 specimens have actually been mounted by the women themselves," he said.

Smithsonian Aided.

One of the nearly completed projects is an index to botanical literature of Eastern Asia, compiled from botanical literature of all countries. This is a cooperative project with the Smithsonian Institution at Washington.

"The women, equipped with a knowledge of foreign languages, proved valuable in this, since the titles and references were to be compiled in the original languages—with translations into English from the Chinese, Japanese and Russian," Dr. Merrill said.

Dr. Merrill said some of these once untrained women have become trained laboratory technicians.

Others are engaged in reference work in the library, some as translators, typists and stenographers. Several have become greatly interested in the care of living plants in the conservatories.

"And back to the 'necessity' of the work done by these women," Dr. Merrill interpolated, "our public exhibit cases and containers have been dusted and renovated for the first time in 25 years."

Golden Hair Aided By Simple Rinses

If you are the fortunate possessor of golden hair, treat it with respect. Harsh dyes and bleaches make the hair coarse and brittle and destroy the much-envied luster. Simple rinses not only bring out the hidden lights and so add to the natural beauty, but are easy to apply. They keep the hair soft and lovely.

The lemon rinse is popular for those who want to avoid the dyed look. Strain the juice of one rather large lemon and add to a pint of tepid water. A camomile tea rinse is made by allowing a teaspoonful of the tea leaves to seep in a glass of boiling water. A little vinegar in the last rinse will bring out what reddish lights may hide in your hair.

Care of Aluminum

In care of aluminum ware, always use mild soap and hot water. Never use soda, soap powder or ammonia. They are not necessary. A little weak acid of any kind will brighten aluminum. Boiling in fresh water will soak off any food.

Throughout the busy, clanging mart I see the sign "We do our part." The grocer has it on display, the auctioneer across the way, the draper points to it with pride, the baker has it hung inside, the butcher, with his hog on ice, points proudly to that strange device. And, as they gather in the dimes, they say, "It stands for better times." With other things, that banner means that selfishness will spill the beans. If all exhibiting the sign will loyal be, and stand in line, and of the common welfare think, bad times will soon be on the blink. We see the handsome sign displayed in nearly all the haunts of trade, and we remark, as we proceed, "It is a hopeful thing, indeed; it means that there will be no rest, we'll pull together for the best, that we have realized at length the truth, in union there is strength. Each for himself has stoutly stood, now all are for the common good; with such a program, such a creed, our commerce soon will gain in speed, and jobless workmen will engage in tasks that bring a goodly wage, and busted voter, hopeless now, will lift the mortgage from his cow." If all who now display the sign will live up to that slogan fine and "do their part" in seemly shape, we'll soon have little use for crepe.

New York—Notes of a columnist approaching a deadline:

Three fortune tellers, who forgot to foresee there was a cop around the corner, were hauled, bleating, before a night court magistrate.

"Tell me how much I'm going to fine you, and you're discharged," he promised. "Otherwise, you pay double."

Into a huddle went the gazers-into-the-future and came out with a guess—"$5," they said. "Right," said the judge. "Be on your way."

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Convulsions.

As a rule, convulsions are not immediately dangerous, although they are always alarming. Furthermore, as a rule, convulsions are self-limited and call for no treatment. What is done for the relief of a sufferer during a convulsion does more harm than good. For all such cases neglect is better than excess activity.

In adults, much the most frequent cause of convulsions is epilepsy. In spasms of this type the only help that does good is placing something between the teeth in order to protect the tongue against bites. A handkerchief, stick, knife or pencil will do. Whatever is inserted there must be no violence. Teeth have been knocked out by forcing sticks into the mouth.

Lifting the head, bathing the face, ammonia to the nose, and similar minor attentions do no good, though they are generally harmless. The epileptic himself usually prefers not to have attention or cause disturbance.

Diabetics are very liable to coma, but they rarely have convulsions due to the coma condition. On the other hand, too little sugar in the blood is liable to cause convulsions with which coma may be associated. Convulsions of this type call for prompt attention. The best procedure is the injection of glucose or some other sugar. When that is not feasible it may be possible to get candy, lump sugar, or some other sweet into the stomach. Since blood sugar deficiency in diabetes generally results from an overdose of insulin the important question calling for a quick answer in every case of diabetes with coma is whether or not insulin should be given, or sugar. Sometimes one knows when insulin was given and how much. That information supplies the answer. Old diabetics accustomed to taking insulin know the difference in the preliminary symptoms of the two kinds of coma and, if conscious, will tell you whether the need is for insulin or for sugar. Testing the urine may supply a quick answer. If sugar is present the indication is for insulin. If it is not, sugar is needed. Smelling the breath to detect the acidosis sweetness may tell. The presence of convulsions may supply the answer. The safe plan is to be prepared to give both sugar and insulin, and to give sugar at once. Then try to settle which it is. If the coma is diabetic the dose of insulin would be larger than if sugar had not been administered. If the collapse is due to too much insulin repeat the dose of sugar.

Federal Banks Hasten Action On Farm Loans

Morgenthau Says Passing on Applications Will Be Speded Even More.

(Associated Press.)

Henry Morgenthau, jr., governor of the Farm Credit Administration, said yesterday the Federal Land Banks are making an intensive effort to act quickly on the pending applications for loans on farm mortgages.

The 184,379 pending applications represent more than 34 per cent of all loans closed from the organization of the banks in 1917 through 1932. The $714,157,000 total is about 41 per cent of the loans since 1917.

"On April 1," Morgenthau said, "the land banks had only 210 appraisers to cover applications from farmers throughout the country. This force has been increased to 1,734.

"Applications for loans have been received by the banks recently at the rate of about 17,500 per week. Out of each week's receipts, about 12 per cent, or 2,100 applications, need not be appraised because of withdrawals by the farmers of their applications or rejections prior to appraisal. This will leave 15,400 properties each week which will need to be appraised.

During the first eight months of 1933, Morgenthau said, the 12 Federal Land Banks closed loans totaling $29,839,175, which compares with $27,569,800 during the entire year 1932.

Cleveland Car Strike Averted

National Labor Board's Mediator Announces Settlement.

Cleveland, Sept. 10 (AP).—Charles B. Barnes, mediator for the National Labor Board, tonight announced that a dispute between the Cleveland Railway Co. and approximately 3,000 car men, which had threatened to tie up the city's transportation system with a strike, had been practically settled.

The basis of the settlement, Barnes said, included full recognition by the company of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes, the principal point for which the car men had contended.

Barnes' announcement followed a 10-hour meeting with officials of the association, the company and Mayor Ray T. Miller.

"The negotiations have been very satisfactory, and it appears that a settlement will be reached by noon tomorrow," Barnes said.

In addition to seeking recognition of their union, the street railway employes had sought a 25 per cent wage increase. Officials of the local union said, however, they would be willing to arbitrate the wage issue, provided recognition was granted.

Attack in Subway Brings Mob Threat

Police Use Pistols to Rescue Man Following Assault.

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Enraged citizens early today captured the alleged attacker of a woman in a West Side subway station.

He was rescued from a mob by two policemen with drawn pistols. There were shouts of "Lynch him!" and "Shoot him!" At the station the man gave his name as Alvin Alfred, 25, colored.

Mrs. Bertha Carroll, 32, victim of the assault in the women's rest room of the subway, was taken to a hospital suffering from shock and lacerations.

She told police Alfred, stripped to the waist and barefooted, seized her when she entered the rest-room and tore a jam jar from her hands. She screamed, she said, and the man smashed the jar over her head and knocked her down.

Alfred jumped to the tracks and fled toward the next station with a crowd of men at his heels. A downtown train ended the chase at the next station, where the man was handled roughly by a fast-growing crowd.

Bankers' Timidity Deplored by Howe

Too Many Shiver in Dark Cellar, He Believes.

(Associated Press.)

Confidence was expressed in an authorized interview last night by Louis M. Howe, secretary to President Roosevelt, that means will be found to persuade timid bankers that extension of credit is vital to national recovery.

Discussing efforts of the administration to bring about national industrial recovery, Howe said news reaching Washington was encouraging, and "from every direction it looks as if we were rapidly emerging from the woods," adding:

"There are a good many bankers, I fear, who are still afraid to lend on anything less certain than gold dollars, for fear hard times will come back again. There are far too many of them still shivering in a dark corner of the cellar."

Horse Malady Appears Controlled in Maryland

Radio Waves and Ripples

A featured player of the "Bath Club" will be Jane Froman (above) on October 1. Until then the "King's Henchmen" will continue to call her to a Columbia microphone on Mondays at 5:45 p. m. And here's the page (left), the boy who introduces Ranny Weeks' Band for N. B. C. tonight. A New York hotel bellhop, he is 43 inches tall.

MRS. MARY ELLIS AMES, home-economy authority, will begin a series for Washington housewives over Columbia's WJSV from 10 to 10:15 today. New recipes, economy tips and time savers will be given. Kitchen noises will be background.

A GREAT - GRANDMOTHER'S plea—"Please have the boys sing"—returns Washington's Central Union Mission Glee Club to the air next Saturday night.

Mrs. Florence M. Gibson, Harrisonburg, Va., wrote Mission Superintendent John S. Bennett, sr., saying she missed the weekly concerts during the summer and hoped they would be renewed for herself and other "shut-ins."

Shown the letter, WOL'S managers announced the station would broadcast the program every Saturday from 8:30 to 9 p. m. for another season.

Ernest Hutcheson, heard here in Columbia's Sunday evening piano recitals, yesterday was signed to appear with Hans Kindler and Washington's National Symphony Orchestra at the season's opener in Constitution Hall Sunday, October 15.

Another "Future Farmers" broadcast will put before the microphone today the Agricultural Department's Chester Davis' introductions; Clyde King, milk; J. B. Hutson, tobacco; C. A. Cobb, cotton; George Farrel, wheat. With the Army Band for relief, they start at 12:30.

Washington Section, Institute of Radio Engineers, will start the September meeting with dinner Thursday in the Kennedy-Warren.

Warren B. Burgess, Naval Research Laboratories, is preparing a paper: "Compact Direction Finders."

WRC is renovating "Manhattan Mondays." Scores, they say, have been coming to the studio each week to see it.

Chain programs in Washington will begin an hour later when New York tucks daylight-saving time away for another season a week from Sunday.

In the studios it begins the "fall season." To Washington listeners that means new programs.

The local N. B. C. stations will put 40 of them on the air between September 24 and November 1.

Program directors have decided dramas will be popular, speeches won't. Robert Louis Stevenson's stories, robots, the Akron crash are material of some earlier skits.

NRA consumer and wage earner benefits will be listed by Owen D. Young Wednesday night. Listeners should be able to pick him up at 8:15 through one of the N. B. C. stations here.

Postmaster General Farley's talk to the Comptrollers Institute of America next Monday is scheduled for broadcasting by Columbia and N. B. C. He will start at 12:30 p. m.

The "Man in the Street" will tell Gen. Johnson what he thinks of the NRA Thursday. The streets will be in New York, Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia.

The general will be in Washington at 2:30; WJSV's Bob Trout will interview him. Then, in New York, on Times Square, Ted Husing will stop passersby to ask, "What do you think of the NRA?" Linus Travers will do the same thing with Bostonians. Harold Fair will be in Chicago. After the Philadelphia interview, Gen. Johnson will interpret opinions for the administration.

Rabbi Louis Wolsey, Congregation Rodeph Shalom, Philadelphia, will conduct the Jewish period for Columbia's Church of the Air Sunday noon. Dr. H. Otheman Smith, Baptist Church of the Redeemer, Yonkers, will take the 10 a. m. detail.

Howard Scott Hits Crop Plan Of Roosevelt

Technocrat Says Artificial Financial System Will Not Survive.

Wellesley Hills, Mass., Sept. 10 (U.P.).—The administration's attempts to control crop production was criticized today by Howard Scott, who a few months ago made "technocracy" a byword.

Scott, now director of Technocracy, Inc., told listeners at the twentieth annual national business conference that "classical economic theory is absolutely inadequate to deal with the operational problems arising from the conflict to technology with an obsolete social organization based on an economy of scarcity."

"The activity of the administration," he said, "as evidenced in the controlled production program for cotton, wheat, hogs, et ceteras, is directed toward maintaining artificially the economy of scarcity which fathered our present financial set-up.

"It must be remembered, however, that no artificial financial superstructure can long remain independent of the underlying factors of industrial operation from which it ultimately derives its existence."

Owner Sent to Jail For Beating His Mule

Charles Town, W. Va., Sept. 10 (Spl.).—For beating a mule he had tied to a post William Long was sentenced to 10 days in jail and fined $10 and costs.

Neighbors said Long beat the animal with an ax handle and other implements.

Eskimo Bones

Early Tribe Relics Found Near Alaskan Glacier Include Armor.

Philadelphia, Sept. 10 (AP).—Well-preserved remains of an early Eskimo people have been found by an expedition near the Columbia Glacier in Alaska, the University of Pennsylvania Museum reported today.

In a cave, apparently a burial vault, the expedition discovered 10 skeletons, stone axes and lamps, shell pendants, fragments of wooden armor, crude canoes hollowed out of logs, a paddle and whaling lance blades.

Miss Frederica de Laguna, in charge of the expedition, reported the coffins were "simply holes lined with planks and covered with a large board."

Police Trail Girl's Slayer Through Chum

Middled-Aged Stranger Was Seen With Child Day Before Murder.

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 10 (AP).—A middle-aged man was sought tonight for questioning in connection with the slaying of 10-year-old Margaret (Peggy) McCarthy, strangled last Friday. Her body was found a mile from he home.

Two girl companions of the dead child today told police they saw the man in conversation with Peggy the day before she died. Later the same day, they said, the man attempted to entice them into an automobile by offering them money.

The description, police said, tallied with that furnished by Albert F. Capone, Somerville cobbler, of a man about 55 years old who greeted Peggy as she left his shop, a few hours before her death.

Police are trying to trace the girl's shoes, which were missing when the body was found.

A medical examiner said the girl died as a result of pressure on the neck.

Three suspects were released after questioning.

At services today the Rev. James H. Phalan, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, of which the girl's family were communicants, urged that "each one become a detective" in the search.

Muscling In On Muscle Shoals

The Government is planning enormous accomplishments in the Tennessee Valley, including Muscle Shoals. Parasites of business are attaching themselves to the Ship of State and are not only hindering progress but may cause many unfortunate investors to lose money.

Land schemers selling lots at high prices to gullible persons on the lure of an imaginative large city to develop are operating throughout the East. Mr. Arthur E. Morgan, Chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, the Governmental agency, in a letter to the Better Business Bureau says:

"There is no justification for the present nation-wide advertising of Muscle Shoals real estate. Most of those who buy will lose. The use of the photographs of President Roosevelt and of Senator Norris to help sell these lands is indecent when both have publicly warned the people of America against just such promotion methods."

Loew's Fox to Celebrate Sixth Anniversary—Rialto Announces Reopening Date

Special Plans Afoot for the Birthday Week

Boswell Sisters on Stage; National Opens Tonight; Theater Gossip.

Six years of conscientious participation in the purveyance of entertainment to the amusement-seekers of the National Capital will be celebrated by Loew's Fox Theater the week of September 22.

For this occasion elaborate plans are already under way. It is announced that the feature picture for the week after next will be Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "Beauty for Sale," adapted to the screen from the novel of the same name, by Faith Baldwin. On the stage the Boswell Sisters will headline a specially assembled bill, and Phil Lampkin, presiding over the Fox Orchestra, will contribute a descriptive overture, commemorating the entrance of the then Fox Theater into the local amusement field in September, 1927, with a gala inaugural program, arranged and personally presented by Samuel Lionel Rothafel, "Roxy" himself.

Popular Favorites.

"Beauty for Sale" numbers among its principals such popular favorites as Madge Evans, Alice Brady, May Robson, Una Merkel, Hedda Hopper, Otto Kruger and Eddie Nugent, and was directed by Richard Boleslavsky, who was responsible for the artistic excellence of both "Rasputin and the Empress"—which might almost have been called "Rasputin and the Barrymores" without any serious disruption of fact—and the more recent "Storm at Daybreak," in which Kay Francis, Walter Huston and Nils Asther appeared.

The Boswell Sisters need no introduction to Washington audiences, whether of the stage, screen or radio. They are the close harmonists par excellence of the present era of broken rhythms and near-dissonances.

A Rotating Preeminence.

It is interesting to contemplate the distinctly equitable manner in which public favor has distributed itself over all of the downtown, first-run picture houses, in turn.

Back in those seemingly remote days of December, 1918, when the operation of "de luxe" picture houses had its inception in Washington, the Rialto was the undisputed leader with a line-up of feature attractions which, for the first time in the history of local exhibition, established the week-run, as opposed to the split-week, policy of picture presentation. Then favor shifted to Crandall's Metropolitan, which retained leadership for several seasons, to be followed in time by a sudden spurt into first place of Loew's Palace.

After many early vicissitudes, the Earle finally forged to the leadership, and now the Fox, under Loew operation, has reached the pinnacle and is in a neck-and-neck stretch run with the Earle for first place, first one being out in front, then the other, depending upon the intrinsic merit of the current bill.

A Forecast.

It is not too fanciful to suggest that in the passage of time the course of movie empire will take its way still further to the Northwest—the corner of Fourteenth, New York avenue and H street, for example—and some new cathedral of the conversational celluloids rear itself in new majesty to steal the thunder from all the houses now extant.

That would be about 1950, the way things are going, under the rigidly disciplinary regulations of the American Dictator at the head of the Cooperative Commonwealth, deeply charged with the responsibility of providing adequately for the entertainment of a proletariat observing a 10-hour work week and overloaded with leisure.

This new theater will have a seating capacity slightly in excess of the Yale Bowl!

Time rolled back last night for Annie Hart, the grand old songstress of 50 years ago, and she was a kid again! The occasion was Grand Dame Hart's 77th birthday and the gay birthday party in her honor given at Freddie Buchholz's Occidental Restaurant. The party was attended by all the members of Joe Laurie, Jr.'s "Memory Lane" company, now playing the Fox—and none is under 60 years of age—and a huge birthday cake bearing 77 candles adorned the center of the table. A ton or two of congratulatory messages poured in on the revered singing comedienne of an earlier day in the theater, who obviously is merely stating a truth when she says that she doesn't feel her age at all."

Rialto's Opening Set.

Back from conferences with home office executives of Universal in New York, Rodney Collier, manager of the Rialto Theater, announces the definite date of reopening the Rialto Theater as Friday night, September 29, and the inaugural attarction as Universay's unique production of "S. O. S. Iceberg."

This is in substantiation of earlier announcement here that the Rialto would reopen during the week of September 25. Although it was hoped that "The Invisible Man," starring Claude Rains, would be available for the opening week, the substitution of "S. O. S. Iceberg" assures Washington picturegoers quite as distinctive an opening attraction.

"S. O. S. Iceberg' 'is a true epic of the Far North which required more than a year of active production work to complete in Greenland, under the direction of Dr. Arnold S. Fanck. It is in this subject that Ernst Udet, the famous German flier executes for the silver sheet many of the hazardous stunts with which he has been thrilling the crowds at air meets from coast to coast in this country these past few months. In fact, it was Udet's rescue, by plane, of Ernst Sorge in Greenland that inspired the making of "S. O. S. Iceberg" and started Dr. Fanck on his journey to the Arctic.

Udet, most skillful of all the stunt fliers, incidentally, is a figure in this week's newsreels in which he refers to his flying in the Arctic during the making of this picture. It could not have been timed better, even if Universal had planted the news shot as a publicity stunt!

Here is a golden opportunity for three Washington boys or girls to win $5 apiece just by writing 250 words. Joe Laurie, jr., is anxious to know the reaction of the younger generation to his "Memory Lane" revue, at Loew's Fox, in which he introduces a group of old-time vaudeville favorites who used to entertain our mothers and grandmothers years ago. This is all one has to do to enter the competition: On one side of a sheet of paper write 250 words, telling why you like "Memory Lane," or dislike it, if any one does. The reasons for the opinions expressed should be clearly set forth. All letters should be addressed to Joe Laurie, jr., Loew's Fox Theater, and should be mailed immediately. Announcement of winners will be made Thursday.

Ambitious Season.

Ever helpful to a dramatic desk engaged in the precarious task of rounding up a suitable grist of theatrical paragraphs for a ravenous Monday morning paper, it is Ray Henderson who calls attention to the fact that Katharine Cornell and Guthrie McClintic are planning the most ambitious season of their careers in the theater.

As has already been announced in this space, Miss Cornell will bring her repertory scheme to fruition with "Romeo and Juliet," "Candida" and "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," making a 10,000-mile tour, starting in November. This plan of Miss Cornell's has elicited much excited comment, as if a road tour were an unaccustomed thing for her. In point of fact, Miss Cornell is one of the few artistes of the American theater who always has believed that there is more to America than merely Broadway. She has always looked upon America at large as quite as important to the theater as New York.

In her first years on the stage she trouped the one-night stands in "The Man Who Came Back." Since she became a star she has never failed to take her plays to other cities of the country. It is true that this winter she will tour the Northwest and Southwest for the first time, but by no means is she a novice in transcontinental traveling.

McClintic Busy.

In addition to staging the three plays in which his wife appears, McClintic begins his season by starring Tallulah Bankhead, the pseudo-Washingtonian, in Owen Davis' new play of "Jezebel," also already celebrated to some degree between these column rules. Later he will produce "The Maitlands," a new play by an English author, Ronald MacKenzie, whose "Musical Chairs" was a London success a few seasons ago and has been acted in many European cities, though not yet in America. "The Maitlands" will be presented in the United States before it is seen in England.

It is interesting that both Miss Cornell and Mr. McClintic are showing their confidence in the theater by investing considerable sums of money in their productions this winter. To start her repertory undertaking will mean an investment of $75,000 by Miss Cornell before the first curtain is raised in Buffalo on November 29. Mr. McClintic has made an elaborate production of "Jezebel," costing in the neighborhood of $40,000, which for a spoken play is not an inconsiderable figure.

Ted Lewis, "the high-hatted tragedian of jazz," whose paradoxical "gag" line is, "Is everybody happy?" this year is celebrating his 25th anniversary in show business. In honor of the silver anniversary, he has assembled a special revue that is very highly touted, indeed. It comes to Loew's Fox Theater the week of October 20, far enough away from Phil Spitalny's two-week engagement at the Earle to avoid any semblance of conflict. Which is as it should be.

Ad Club Entertains.

As its first meeting of the new season, the Washington Ad Club is holding a luncheon session dedicated to "Success Objectives of 1933-34," at the Hotel Raleigh tomorrow.

The guest of honor will be Corrine Griffith, distinguished star of the silent screen who opens the season of legitimate drama in the National Theater tonight in a revival of Noel Coward's "Design for Living." Miss Griffith will be accompanied by Clifford Brooke, stage director of "Design."

Another guest whose career seems to bear a definite relationship to the purpose of the luncheon will be Manager Joe Cronin of the pennant-bound Washington ball club, who will be accompanied, in turn, by Owner Clark Griffith.

Then, so General Manager Charles J. Columbus makes known, there will be that youngster of Joe Laurie, jr.'s "Memory Lane" troupe, Tommy Harris, the 89-year-old dancer, who appeared before President Lincoln some 70 years or so ago. Tommy will have Joe Laurie himself in tow.

These noted guests will be introduced by Walter D. Barkdull, president of the club.

It is a thought that it is to be hoped Charlie Columbus will do something with beyond merely phoning it to dramatic editors, that arrangement should be made for President Roosevelt to see Tommy Harris dance. In the career of this agile youngster, just one year less than a nonogenarian, there certainly must be a lesson in fortitude and achievement, if one only possesses the will to carry on, that should be inspiring to a Chief Executive who right now needs assurance of America's capacity for useful effort. And what a memory for Tommy Harris, to have begun his career by dancing before President Lincoln and closed it by dancing before the second President Roosevelt! You, Steve and Mac, what do you say? You wouldn't have let this get away in the not-so-very-old days!

"Old-Timers Jubilee."

Tonight, by the way, has been designated "Old-timers' jubilee night" at the Fox. Any old-time professional who can establish the fact that he appeared on the stage during, or before, the year 1900, will be the guest of the management and Joe Laurie, jr.'s "Memory Lane" troupe.

Any old-time white professional actor or actress, who made his or her residence in Washington following retirement from the stage, is eligible to attend this jubilee party, which will begin at 8:30, immediately prior to the beginning of the last stage performance of the day. The only requirement is that the management be shown a printed program bearing the name of the applicant, or a newspaper notice reviewing some performance during or prior to 1900 in which his or her name appears.

City Manager Carter Barron and the Fox management is desirous of having these stage veterans share in the glorious memories that are being rekindled by Joe Laurie and his company, consisting of 14 players, whose artistry, while mellowed by age, retains all of the vigor and spontaneity of youth.

What with all of the changes in political weather that have occured since last March 4, it is highly probable that the moguls of the motion picture industry, gathering in Washington today for the hearing before Deputy Administrator Sol A. Rosenblatt, of the NRA, tomorrow, all will go into the session with "dab bad codes id their heads!"

Reunited by Their Own Divorce?

Hollywood has been much excited these past few days over the possibility that the William Powell-Carole Lombard romance might be renewed almost before the ink on Miss Lombard's divorce decree has had time to dry. Flown back to the film colony by Col. Roscoe Turner immediately after her divorce was granted, Miss Lombard met her former husband at Kay Francis' barnyard party with the result pictured above. Ain't love gr-r-and!

Contest Offers Theater Tickets And Cash Prizes

The Post, Warner Theater Start "Star of Stars" Puzzles Today.

The Washington Post and Warner Brothers Metropolitan Theater are offering cash prizes and theater tickets for the neatest and most original entries submitted in the "Star-of-Stars" contest.

The first puzzle appears today. The five diamond-shaped pieces, when properly put together, will form a large star and reveal the face of one of the screen's favorites.

There will be two others published in addition to the one today. Each must be in proper order and correctly identified. Solutions must be sent to Warner Brothers office in the Earle Building.

Will Appear on Screen.

The star in today's puzzle will appear on the screen of the newly renovated Metropolitan Theater starting Friday in "I Loved a Woman," which features Kay Francis, Genevieve Tobin and Edward G. Robinson.

These cash prizes will be awarded: First, $15, and second, $10. Twenty-five pairs of guest tickets for "I Loved a Woman" will be given for the next 25 winning entries. In case of ties a duplicate award will be made to each tying contestant. The contest will close at midnight Thursday. Winners will be announced in Saturday's issue of The Post if possible.

Stirring Love Story.

"I Loved a Woman" is a dynamic romance in which Robinson, a millionaire mechant, marries one woman and falls in love with another. His desire for wealth and fame and his subsequent downfall provide a plot with many exciting moments and a stirring climax.

We have supplied you with a hint as to who the screen star is. Now all you have to do is cut out the pieces, put them together in proper order and identify the star. Save this first picture until you have the other two and send all three of the "Star of Stars" contest editor, Warner Brothers office, before Thursday midnight.

Mary Helen Howe, Opera Singer, Dies

Funeral Services Will Be Held Here Tomorrow.

Mary Helen Howe, well-known concert and operatic singer, died yesterday at her home, 1230 Quincy street northeast. Requiem mass will be celebrated at 9:30 tomorrow at St. Antony's Catholic Church by the Rev. John Horstkamp, of Clinton, Md. Interment will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Franklin T. Howe, she is survived by three sisters and two brothers: Catherine Lay Howe, Sarah Willard Howe, Marie Howe Spurr, George Alpha Howe and Franklin T. Howe.

Critics praised her voice as one of "sweetness, beauty and power." Her teachers included Mme. Mathilda Marchesi and Mme. Ronald La Borde, of Paris, and G. Scalaberni, of Nice. Her repertoire included operas in English, French, German and Italian, all the better-known oratorios and songs.

Governors Called To Cotton Parley

South Carolina Meeting to Urge Price Raise.

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 10 (AP).—Describing the cotton situation as "critical," Gov. I. C. Blackwood tonight invited governors of all cotton-growing States to participate in a meeting here Tuesday to consider action for immediately raising cotton prices.

Senator E. D. Smith joined him in the invitation, and the governor said he hoped Secretary Wallace would come.

The telegram went to the Governors of Alabama, Mississippi, North Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Texas.

Philippine Chromium Mine to Be Developed

Manila, P. I., Monday, Sept. 11 (U.P.).— The Benguet Consolidated Gold Mining Co. today closed a 250,000-peso deal to develop chromium deposits of the Florannie Mining Co. in Camarinessur province. Benguet engineers reported 50,000 tons of ore had been blocked out.

.500 Repealists Hold Rally.

Leonardtown, Md., Sept. 10 (Spl.). More than 500 persons at Duke's Auditorium heard Baltimore speakers tell why the eighteenth amendment should be repealed. It was the only wet rally held in the county.

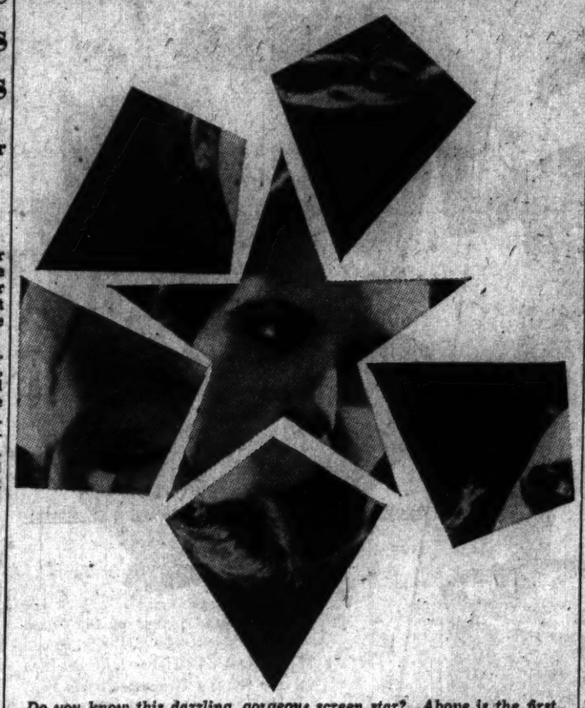
Puzzle No. 1 in Post's Star Contest



Do you know this dazzling, gorgeous screen star? Above is the first of the series of puzzle stars to be pieced together in the "I Loved a Woman," contest, sponsored by The Washington Post and Warner Brothers Metropolitan Theater. Each puzzle when assembled will form a star framing a real film "star."

Pictures Boom In Hollywood; Extras on Job

Studios Launching Autumn Program With Rush; All Stages Busy.

Hollywood, Sept. 10 (AP).—Weather that suggests the coming winter theater season and the general uptrend of business brought on by the NRA has started a production boom in major Hollywood motion picture studios.

Many hundreds of extras are finding employment in productions expected to extend over a period of months.

Topping the list is the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, where 14 units are "shooting," with another company scheduled to start Monday. Last week the average employment of extras was 1,500 daily.

Officials said new pictures probably will be started weekly.

Paramount Active.

A second big company undertaking an extensive fall production schedule is the Paramount concern, where ten companies are "shooting" scenes. One is on location in Honolulu, with Cecil B. DeMillie directing.

Formation of the new Twentieth Century Pictures by Darryl Zanuck and Joseph M. Schenck brought about a bee-hive of activity at the United Artists Studio.

In addition, Samuel Goldwyn is producing two specials and Mary Pickford is preparing to start production, as is Chaplin.

The Hal E. Roach Studio will resume production of comedies Monday.

Five companies are shooting scenes at the Fox Studio, another starts Monday, another on September 11 and still another on September 12.

Seven Stages Busy.

Warner Brothers-First National Studios have seven stages busy. At Columbia Studios four units are at work and three will be started next week. RKO-Radio Studio has maintained a weekly average of five companies through the summer months and will enlarge that to eight during the fall. Universal has four features shooting and one serial, with three more starting this month. Executives said they had increased pay rolls 15 per cent.

Stores at West Point Strongly Support NRA

West Point, Va., Sept. 10 (Spl.). West Point is backing the NRA side 100 per cent. Eighty-three West Point business firms have signed code cards. Unemployment is nonexistent.

According to the local NRA committee, headed by David Nelson Sutton, 217 men have been put back to work. An increase in pay rolls of $7,500 is reported.

Forest Unit Youth Killed in Collision

Edward Miller, Formerly of Virginia, Is Victim.

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 10 (Spl.). Relatives here have received news of the death of Edward Miller, 27, forestry service member and son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Miller, formerly of Harrisonburg, near Asheville, N. C., in a truck collision.

Miller was a star football player at Harrisonburg High School and later attended Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Three Killed in Plane Accident at Savannah

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 10 (AP).—Lawton Crawford, his wife, and Miss Mary Embry were killed here today when their plane fell from a low altitude.

C. C. C. Worker Drowned.

Weiser, Idaho, Sept. 10 (AP).—D. Golisano, 19, Mount Kisco, N. Y., was drowned today when bathing at Campbell's Hot Springs. He was a Civilian Conservation Corps worker.

Boy Given Liquor, Dies; Father Will Be Tried

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Sept. 10 (Spl.).—Evie Stotler was indicted by the Morgan County grand jury here yesterday on charge of having given his 7-year-old son liquor, causing the child's death.

Henry Youngblood, indicted for breaking and entering a residence, entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to serve from 1 to 10 years in the State Penitentiary.

Youth to Yield Reins to Elders, Chemist Thinks

New Scientific Diets Will Turn Tables, Chicago Session Is Told.

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP).—Chemical diets, inducing a new human virility which will transfer the Nation's executive control to men and women of 65, was forecast tonight to the American Chemical Society.

These new diets, said Prof. H. C. Sherman, of Columbia University, will be the outgrowth of the recently developed but now familiar "protective diets" of milk, fruits, eggs and vegetables. The laboratory discoveries to carry on, he said, already have been made, but many of them have not yet been translated into popular menus.

"The expectation of life," he said, "will be extended from 70 to 77 years. Man at his chosen tasks will be at the height of his powers at 65 instead of 58. The age at which it is difficult to get new jobs in a field, now commonly put at 45, will be 52.

"Age will yield less readily to youth, and older men and women will, to a greater extent, rule in human affairs."

Virginia Park Area Curtailed

Condemnations Outside of Kelsey Line Abandoned.

Front Royal, Va., Sept. 10 (AP). William E. Carson, chairman of the State Conservation and Development Commission, yesterday issued orders to attorneys for the commission to secure court orders as promptly as practicable dismissing all condemnation proceedings in the Shenandoah National Park outside the Kelsey line.

The Kelsey line, drawn when Congress reduced the acreage required for the park, bounds a tract of 175,000 acres, but excludes approximately 150,000 acres originally included in the proposed park area.

Before the Virginia act was passed Federal authorities requested the conservation commission to secure judgments condemning the original 325,000 acres.

On the passage of the legislation authorizing immediate payment for lands in the reduced area, Carson secured withdrawal of objections by the Federal Government to the dismissal of proceedings as to lands outside the Kelsey line.

Immediate payments under the direction of the governor have been authorized for lands within the Kelsey line whose owners have accepted the awards of court appraisers.

Within the next few days courts of eight counties in the park area will be asked to issue orders of condemnation for such lands and will deposit money covering the amount of awards in each case.

After court notices of condemnation have been issued a period of about 15 to 30 days will be allowed for filing objections.

"Glad I Did It," Grace's Slayer Tells Police

Former War Nurse Had Failed in Earlier Murder Attempt.

Santa Cruz, Calif., Sept. 10 (AP). Frida Wilhelmina Augusta Weltz, 43, accused of the slaying of Francis Joseph Morgan Grace, sr., was quoted by police today as saying it was her second attempt on his life, and "I'm glad I did it."

Police said Miss Weltz admitted she "had been laying" for Grace, 57-year-old member of the wealthy shipping family, since he discharged her as his nurse early last year.

Grace, a nephew of the late W. R. Grace, head of the steamship company of that name, was shot to death at his summer home here last night.

Eight months ago, District Attorney Frank Murphy quoted the woman as saying, she went to Grace's hotel apartment in San Francisco "with the intention of killing him," but failed.

She was quoted as saying she had occupied a hotel room for eight days, from which she could view the garden and entrance of the Grace home. It was in the garden that Grace was shot down last night.

Murphy said Miss Weltz, a former war nurse, refused to disclose the motive for her actions other than to declare:

"I had a sufficient reason to kill Mr. Grace."

St. Louis Gang Member Shot in Saloon Fight

St. Louis, Sept. 10 (AP).—James (Wingy) Cox, 28, a one-armed Cuckoo gangster, twice shot in gang warfare here, stumbled into City Hospital today with a bullet wound in his abdomen.

Six hours later he was dead, with his lips, true to gang codes, sealed. Police learned, however, he was wounded in a saloon brawl.

16 Bulgarian Reds Sentenced to Death

Sofia, Bulgaria, Sept. 10 (U.P.). Sixteen Communists, including two women, were sentenced to death today by a court-martial. They were found guilty of charges of conspiracy and sedition in a plot concerning the garrison at Schumla.

Thirty-three other defendants were sentenced to terms ranging from 2 to 15 years.

Popular-Price Opera Planned

Metropolitan Orchestra Members Organize Company.

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Formation of a cooperative opera company to give "impressarioless grand opera" at popular prices during the coming season was announced tonight.

Cesare Sodero, conductor, composer and principal organizer, said the company was formed by 57 members of the Metropolitan Opera's Orchestra, whose Metropolitan season does not begin until December 26.

Giovanni Zenatello, tenor, has come out of retirement to sing Thursday night in the new company's first offering, a double bill of "Cavaleria Rusticana," which also will feature Anna Roselle, former Metropolitan star.

"Madame Butterfly" will be sung Friday, with Miss Roselle in the title role, and Saturday the company will offer "Carmen," with Coe Glade in the title role. Sodero said:

"I believe there is room in New York for good, popular-priced grand opera, an opera company that is not established so much to give the ladies an opportunity to show their jewels as to give people who are hungry for music an opportunity to enjoy it."

Jailed for Killing Squirrels.

Franklin, W. Va., Sept. 10 (Spl.). Brady Hevener, Mouth of Seneca, for killing five squirrel out of season, was sentenced to jail for 30 days and fined $100 and costs.

Nats Crush Tribe, 7-3, But Lose Half a Game as Yanks Take Pair

Perry Rallies to Beat Crawford for U. S. Net Title Before 14,000

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

IT is quite unnecessary to be quick at figures to deduce from this morning's vital statistics of the American League that it will require a tremendous effort for the Nats to lose the pennant.

Each day yon descending sun sees both the Nats and the Yankees post a victory in the left-hand column brings the day of reckoning—Club must lose a required number of games to give the Yankees an opening for an inspired stretch rush.

The race has now reached the stage where the Nats need only to win 10 games of their remaining 17 to win the pennant under any circumstances, including the remote possibility that the Yankees will win all of their remaining 19 games.

If the Nats do no better than win 9 and lose 8, which is not asking too much, the Yankees in order to win the pennant must take 18 of their remaining 19 games, which, as this department reasons it, is asking too much.

Ferrell, the Outfielder.

The spectacle of Wes Ferrell playing left field for the Indians, and it was no less than a spectacle yesterday when he presented Joe Cronin with a two-base hit, is a poignant commentary on the ups and downs of big league baseball.

The once great pitcher may convert himself into an outfielder, perhaps a great outfielder, as Babe Ruth, Tris Speaker and Sam Rice converted themselves. But those cases are rare. There are none who will prophecy the same success for Ferrell. He may make the grade, but that he will equal in the outfield his greatness on the mound is sadly in doubt.

His fast ball, the forte of his pitching stock, gone, Ferrell hopes to continue as a big leaguer by bringing into play his batting strength. As a pitcher, he was a rare good hitter. But yesterday, the tables were turned on Ferrell. The temperamental star of the Indians' pitching staff for years, the man who used to glower at his errant comrades in the field, yesterday kicked the ball game out from under the hard-working Oral Hildebrand. A penny for his thoughts. And Hildebrand's.

Mr. Griffith Speaks Out.

Clark C. Griffith, of the Griffith Stadium Griffiths, was asked point blank yesterday if he thought his ball club would win the pennant.

"Well, if somebody would only beat those Ynakees, I'd feel better," said Griffith. "That would help a lot. The sooner this thing gets over, the less I'll worry about it. Of course, if we keep winning that'll be all right, too, but when things reach a stage like this, a fellow's more inclined to have more worries than he would in raidseason with a two-game lead."

Runs, Hits and Errors.

Dave Harris hasn't been in the Nats' line-up lately because, he says, they're keeping him under cover from the Giant scouts, who are trailing the Nats . . . Joe Cronin says he isn't worrying about the National League ball in the world series . . . the only hit he made in the All-Star game at Chicago was when they were using the National League pellett . . . if a seventh game is necessary to decide the 1933 world series, it will be played in the National League city . . . Coach Patsy Gharrity complained yesterday that Walter Stewart wasn't toeing the rubber correctly . . . the complaint upset Stewart so completely that he struck out Hale with the tying run on third base . . . Mrs. Roy Spencer saw the game in the box of the Harry Seays . . . Fred Schulte went into a nose dive in the sixth inning and came up with Porter's line drive to cehter field . . . it was a 1-point landing and Schulte rubbed it for several minutes after play was resumed.

Vines Is Replaced On U. S. Net Squad

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Ellsworth Vines, jr., defeated in his attempt to win the national tennis championship for the third straight year, has been replaced by Frank Shields of New York on the squad of American stars who will engage the Australian Davis Cup team in a series of matches Tuesday and Wednesday in Chicago.

Shields, who went to the semifinals of the national tournament before losing to Jack Crawford of Australia, will be assisted in singles by Keith Gledhill, Wilmer Allison and Frank Parker, and will pair with Parker as one of the two American doubles combinations.

Members of the Australian team include Crawford, Vivian McGrath, Adrian Quist and Don Turnbull. Six matches are scheduled in the series, two singles and one doubles each day as follows:

Tuesday—Quist vs. Gledhill; McGrath vs. Parker; Crawford and McGrath vs. Shields and Parker.

Wednesday—Turnbull vs. Allison; Crawford vs. Shields; Quist and Turnbull vs. Lott and Stoefen.

First Briton In 30 Years To Win

English Davis Cup Hero Victor, 6–3, 11–13, 4–6, 6–0, 6–1.

Cops His Initial Singles Championship With Dynamic Surge.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP).—With a sudden, dynamic surge that swept everything before him and broke up an otherwise undramatically close battle for points, dark - haired, 24 - year - old Frederick J. Perry, of England, whipped the great Jack Crawford, of Australia, in five sets today for the tennis championship of the United States.

An American gallery of 14,000 spectators, little short of a capacity crowd for the second all-foreign contest for the national singles title in history, watched the fiery Perry strike with the speed and power of a king cobra in the last two sets. The British Davis Cup hero came from behind, after losing two heart-crushing set duels, to win by scores of 6—3, 11—13, 4—6, 6—0, 6—1.

Nips Winning Streak.

Perry, proving himself one of the greatest match players of modern tennis history, smashed Crawford's 1933 winning streak when the marvelous Anzac was almost within sight of achieving the unprecedented "grand slam" of tennis. Crawford previously had captured the Australian, French and Wimbledon singles championships.

The lithe, slim youth from the old country became the first Englishman in 30 years to capture the most-coveted crown of American tennis. In succeeding the two-time former title holder, Ellsworth Vines, who had passed out of the picture in the fourth round, Perry duplicated the feat achieved in 1903 by Hugh L. Doherty.

Close Battle at First.

These two, Perry and Crawford, were distinctly the players of the year and the class of the tournament which saw America's last hopes fade abruptly yesterday through the defeat of Frank Shields and Lester Stoefen in the semifinals. For three sets they waged a close and frequently exciting contest for points, in which the fortunes shifted with highly dramatic swiftness.

Then something happened to both players between the third and fourth sets. Perry came back like the proverbial raging lion to sweep everything before him in two lightning sets while Crawford, despite a commanding lead, tired and had his defense shot to pieces. The Anzac, whether or not his twice-twisted left knee troubled him, obviously lacked the stamina for the full route. His famous backhand, which had been under severe pressure from the outset, cracked completely and his service, too, fell apart.

Perry's best and most decisive shot was a forehand drive, usually delivered on the run, with a leaping finish, and directed at Craw-

Cubs Win Two; Players Near Battle

Phils Bow, 4-0, 4-2; Threaten Jurges for Hurling Balls in Dugout.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs kept their meager hopes of repeating as National League champions alive today by sweeping a double-header from Philadelphia, winning the second game, 4 to 2, on a home run by Adolph Camilli, rookie first baseman, after Bud Tinning's shut-out hurling had given them the opener, 4 to 0.

Camilli's circuit clout, which came in the sixth inning of the second game with Riggs Stephenson on base and John Berly pitching, broke a 2-to-2 tie. It was the first major league hit for the former Sacramento first baseman, who replaced Manager Charlie Grimm as the temporary regular first sacker yesterday.

Near Riot Started.

A near player riot was almost precipitated by Billy Jurges, Cub shortstop, in the fifth inning of the second game when, in answer to caustic criticism of his roughness on the bases, he deliberately pegged two balls into the Philadelphia dugout from his station in the infield. The entire Philadelphia squad stormed out after Jurges, but Umpire George Magerkurth and other Cub players persuaded the Phillies to return to the bench. Jurges was not ejected from the game.

Sam Rice Among Five Boasting 2,500 Hits

Pittsburgh, Sept. 10 (AP).—Frankie Frisch's four hits today placed him among five major league baseball players who have made more than 2,500 safeties during their careers, reports Al Abrams, statistical expert.

Frisch has made 2,501 hits in 7,821 times at bat and scored 1,365 runs in his 15 years in the National League. Only Rogers Hornsby, now managing the St. Louis Browns; Sam Rice, of the Washington Senators; Rabbit Maranville, of the Boston Braves, and Babe Ruth, have exceeded this mark.

Ty Cobb holds the all-time total hit record with 4,191.

U. S. Amateur Golf Play Today

Somerville Tops List of Standouts for Winning Title.

Roger Peacock Rules as Most Outstanding of Capital's Hopes.

By Dave Herman
(Post Staff Correspondent).

KENWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 10. History will roll back its pages another year tomorrow morning, and golfdom's annual drama, the National Amateur championship, will be unfolded for the thirty-seventh time.

The opening act of this notable golf show will consist of the first half of a 36-hole qaulifying round to determine the 32 men who will battle in the match rounds starting Wednesday.

There are nearly 160 amateur golfers who will make up the cast for this links classic that is rich with deeds of gallantry and that numbers among its historical figures such immortals as the late Walter J. Travis, Jerome D. Travars, H. Chandler Egan, Chick Evans and the one and only Robert Tyre Jones.

Five Men Stand Out.

The names of five men tonight stood out among the list of candidates for the crown that now adorns the head of Ross (Sandy) Somerville, Canada's silent man of the fairways.

At the top of these is the champion, himself. Another is that dashing little "gamecock" from Omaha, Nebr., Johnny Goodman, American open champion. The other three are Johnny Fischer, of Cincinnati, 1932 amateur medalist; George T. Dunlap, the former Princeton star, and Jess Sweetzer, former American and British amateur king.

Unable to match strides with old man par in practice rounds, Washington's five entrants in the national amateur championship applied the finishing touches to their pretournament drills today, supremely confident that tomorrow's opening 18-hole round would find them playing in top form.

Virtually all of the District players took things easy today. Roger Peacock, of Indian Spring, who has golfed his way around the treacherous Kenwood turf for scores of 76, 77, 78, played only four holes—the four he thinks will give him most trouble. Peacock said he was well satisfied with the way he was shooting.

If any one of the quintet is conceded a good chance of going far in the championship, the 22-year-old Peacock is the man. He has the shots and the courage and should qualify.

McCarthy Shoots 77.

Martin F. McCarthy played 18 holes in the afternoon, finishing with a 77. The sturdy Beaver Dam golfer rounded the turn in 38 and played the next three holes in even par.

In an effort to smooth out his driving, Dick Lunn, the Chevy Chase champion, spent several hours on the practicing tee lacing out shots. An epidemic of hooking and slicing has been causing Lunn no end of worry.

The other two District contestants, Luther Steward, jr., of Congressional, and Miller B. Stevinson, of Columbia, spent the day replaying shots in the locker rooms. Content with practice rounds of 76 and 78, both Steward and Stevinson declared a day of rest.

Starting Times.

The pairings and starting times for District golfers:

1 p. m. Monday and 9:45 Tuesday—Peacock and Jack Malloy (Tulsa, Okla.).

11:20 and 8:05—Stevinson and Don Armstrong (Aurora, Ill.).

9:25 and 12:50—McCarthy and Chester F. O'Brien (St. Louis).

12:35 and 9:20—Lunn and Paul Anderson, jr. (Summit, N. J.).

11:10 and 2:30—Steward and Bob Kepler (Dayton, Ohio).

Yanks Win Pair Over Tigers; Cut Lead

Gomez Takes First, 2 to 1; Allen Allows 3 Hits, Wins Second, 9-1.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP).—The Yankees had their usual Sunday double-header success today and crept a trifle closer to the league leading Washington Nationals by knocking off the Detroit Tigers, twice, 2 to 1 and 9 to 1.

Lefty Gomez pitched effectively in the pinches to get the better of Carl Fischer in the opener. The Yanks scored the winning run in the eighth on a walk to Lyn Lary, Babe Ruth's single and Gehrig's force out. The Yanks got only four hits, but two of them, along with two passes, figured in the scoring.

Reds Beaten Twice by Giants

League Leaders Score, 6-1, Then Take Second in 11th, 2-1.

Hubbell Stars in Relief Role in First as Fitzsimmons Weakens.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 10 (AP).—The pennant-headed New York Giants trounced the Cincinnati Reds, 6 to 1, in the first game of a double-header today, but the tailenders forced them to go 11 innings in the second before the visitors won, 2 to 1. Hal Schumacher and Ray Kolp engaged in a pitching duel in the second.

The Giants gained a full game on the second place Pittsburgh Pirates, who broke even in a twin bill with Brooklyn.

Carl Hubbell, the visitor's ace hurler, proved a big factor in the Giants' first victory when he relieved Fred Fitzsimmons in the seventh inning with the bases full and none out and set the Reds down in order.

Victory for the Giants in the second game came when Melvin Ott doubled down the right field line, slid to third on Jackson's sacrifice, and came home after O'Doul, batting for Davis, flied to Rice.

The Giants got their first tally of the second game in the third inning on singles by Schumacher and Joe Moore and Terry's fly.

Wesley Ferrell Through as Pitcher

Being Converted Into Flyhawk; Indians to Play Here Again Today.

WESLEY FERRELL, former Cleveland pitching star, has at last admitted that the old right arm "ain't what it used to was" and is being given a trial as an outfielder. He drew the left field assignment for the second time in as many days, after having been knocked all over the field by the Philadelphia Athletics in the Quaker City Friday, when he was finally convinced that his pitching days were over, temporarily, at least.

Ross to Defend His Title Against Canzoneri Tomorrow Night at Polo Grounds

Pegler Sees Both Giving Their Best

Leonard Followed NRA Live-and-Let-Live Idea, He Says.

On the Other Hand, Hard Fight Is Expected in New York.

By Westbrook Pegler.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Two rugged young individuals, Barney Ross and Tony Canzoneri, are planning some unrestricted competition for the lightweight championship of the world in a 15-round fight at the Polo Grounds Tuesday night.

When Benny Leonard was lightweight champion he was so far superior to most of his rivals that there were some contests in which he seemed to be saving his opponents for future contests by a process which was known as the waltz.

Compliment to Skill.

This was a great compliment to Mr. Leonard's professional skill, and it embarrassed him to have to disagree. Still, he could not accept such praise, because, aside from the immodesty of admitting that he was that good, to do so would have been to admit that he had not inflicted the utmost possible bodily harm on his rivals. That would have meant that he had not put forth his best efforts and that would have constituted a dark blot on the fair escutcheon of the ennobling sport of prize fighting and a stain on the professional reputation of Benny Leonard.

So one had to be very cautious in paying Mr. Leonard such compliments in print lest, in showering him with great praise, one should accidentally violate the libel laws. Leonard is one of the few human beings whom it has been possible to defame with phrases of a generally laudatory effect.

Possibly Had Sympathy.

It was never thought, of course, that Benny swung into a waltz with an opponent out of sympathy for the opponent. If he was guilty of the forebearance which some of his admirers sometimes suspected, his motives were consistent with the purposes of the NRA—live and let live—long before anyone suspected that there would ever be any need for the NRA. The motive ascribed to him was not mere sentimental pity for an opponent, which would be out of place in the heart of a sound business man, such as Mr. Leonard.

The motive ascribed to Benny was future business. An opponent who was knocked out was scratched off the list of eligibles. If they were all knocked out, business collapsed as a pugilist can not draw any customers fighting solo.

15 Rounds Called For.

In the case of Ross, the current champion, and Canzoneri, from whom he won the title by a barely perceptible margin in Chicago earlier in the season, it is hardly likely that developments will bring the spirit of the NRA into contempt. The boys are ruggedly individual and forebearance is not in them, but they seem to be about equally stylish, rugged and efficient. So the probability calls for fifteen rounds of brisk punching, another close decision.

Because Ross is comparatively new to the upper classes in his line of work he has been enjoying more personal exploitation than Canzoneri, who is so well known that there is nothing remaining to be told about him except his exact age. This is a matter of mystery.

Slides Back to 24.

Tony has been fighting in the ring for eight or ten years and has become one of those living links with the past, but he seldom passes the age of 25. At the current writing he has even slid back to 24 years, although he is one of the few ancients who fought in the old Madison Square Garden who is still able to fight today.

It seems his age was lost in confusion during that time when the prize fight commission, in its heyday as the laughing hit of the period, was passing more and funnier rules every day. One of these rules required that a fighter under the age of 21 should not be allowed to fight more than 6 rounds, or if he insisted on fighting 10 or 15 rounds, should lie about his age. Canzoneri wished to fight long bouts and acordingly gave his age as 21 as long ago as 1926. He has been growing younger during the last few years and at the present rate should be back in rompers pretty soon.

Strange as It Seems

—By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Queen Tut, an Indian elephant in the Fort Worth, Texas, zoo, lived around factory whistles so long that she finally became one herself—at least to the extent that she trumpets loud and long each morning promptly at 7 o'clock, again at noon, and again at 5:30 p. m., when it is time to quit work for the day.

Strange as it seems, Queen Tut rarely misses actual time by more than a minute. Mr. Hamilton Hittson, superintendent of the zoo, attributes Queen Tut's uncanny accuracy to the fact that the zoo is located in a factory district, and for 10 years she has listened to factory whistles three times daily, day after day. Employes at the zoo begin work each morning, and quit every night by Queen Tut's trumpet.

The saxophone was invented by Adolphe Sax, Belgian musician, about 1842 when he was attempting to improve the clarinet. The new instrument was adopted for French military bands half a century before it became popular as a jazz band instrument.

Proteins are made up of the various amino-acids (of which 20 are known) in varying amounts. The relative amounts and arrangement of the different amino-acids, according to bio-chemists, are responsible for the different properties of different proteins. By mathematical computation it is possible that 2,432,902,008,176,640,000 different proteins could exist, each containing all 20 of the amino-acids in different arrangement. By varying the amounts an endless number would be possible.

At the Post . . .

with Bill Bennings.

Dear Al: Lincoln Fields, Sept. 10.

I'm going to change my name to Two-a-Day Bennings if I don't shake this jinx soon. However, I'm still the old wake-up kid. Look what I did to Fort Dearborn on Saturday. He was despised by every selector in the country with the exception of Mrs. Bennings' pink-cheeked, male offspring. And paid a $14.56 mutuel. We lost two head decisions on the card.

There are only seven races on the program for tomorrow, giving me one less chance to be wrong. Well, it's Blue Monday, anyway, so stay home and help wifey run the washing machine. But compare these with the charts.

BILL.

First race—LaSalle looks like the goods in the opener. Gets in with only a steadying impost and will be at home with this brand of talent. Broom Shot for the place. Portmanteau has been known to pick such spots for a wake-up. Tomorrow may be the day.

Second race—Jesting Queen gets the Bennings call in this sprint. Tends to her knitting in workouts, I'm told. Para Four could surprise by being as close as second. Miss Flip for a money appearance.

Third race—This race has a lot of possibilities. Allens has a slightly better figure than the rest, but be on the lookout for wake-ups. For instance, there's Ladykin — been waiting for this kind of a heat. Then there's my old buddy, Kingpin.

Fourth race—Spud should keep on running right straight to the glue factory if he fails us in this one. Mrs. Let and Double Date to complete the money picture.

Fifth race—I honestly believe we can make Levaal beat this kind. I was afraid to put him on top of the heap last out, but, after that performance, I'm willing to take my chances. Furthermore I like Princess Camelia to finish ahead of Evergold. What do you think of those eggs?

Sixth race—Velina and Through Omond to do the battling for this purse. I'm about fed up on Dr. Klein. Of course, he don't have to ask me when he can run. May turn on the gas tomorrow but he's labeled third as far as I'm concerned tonight.

Seventh race—Eleidie may run one for the general public tomorrow. Should have brought me a winner the last time. That test showed the gelding to be a mighty fit horse. Black Fool and Haramzada for the rest.

Pirates Split Pair; Drop to 3d Place

Win Opener From Dodgers, 2 to 1, and Then Lose, 3 to 2, in Finale.

Brooklyn, Sept. 10. (AP).—The Dodgers split their second straight double-header with the Pittsburgh Pirates today, winning the second game, 3 to 2, on a ninth-inning rally after the Pirates had taken the first, 2 to 1. The loss of the second game dropped the Pirates into third place behind the Chicago Cubs, who won two from the Phillies.

Neither Walter Beck nor Bill Swift allowed an earned run in the opener, which went to the Pirates in the sixth when Linus Frey, Brooklyn's rookie shortstop, uncorked wild throws on two successive plays, each of which resulted in a run.

Cards Win Twin Bill From Braves, 7-0, 10-5

St. Louis, Sept. 10 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals knocked Fred Frankhouse out of the box in both games of a double-header, and hammered other Boston Braves' pitchers hard for two victories, 7 to 0 and 10 to 5, today.

By their double victory the Cardinals increased their lead over the Braves for fourth place to two and one-half games.

Bill Hallahan was brilliantly supported by the Cardinals in his four-hit opener.

Roddy Davis Is Promised Real Test Tonight in Fight With Koshover at Fort

District Boy Faces K. O. Artist

Wright to Meet Young in Cofeature Bout on Good Card.

Lowry-Clark Booked in Main Preliminary at Six Rounds.

RODDY DAVIS, incumbent of the insecure "best local fistic prospect" office, may become a lame duck in tonight's session of the leather-pushing congress at Fort Washington, in which he meets Maxie Koshover, representative from Ohio, in an eight-round fistic debate. In the past, Davis' campaigning has been mainly conducted along the lines of least resistance, but the gentleman from Ohio also is a candidate for high office in the ring world, and perhaps as able a campaigner as the Washington spellbinder himself.

Both candidates talk with their hands, and, while Koshover's are more emphatic in their delivery, they also are more brittle and subject to crack-ups than those of his opponent. Davis weaves a more flashy spell with his hands, but Koshover's fistic oratory, while less verbose, is inclined to be more to the point.

Wright Meets Young.

Carey Wright, who belongs to the "Frankie Mann-Harry Grove" party, under whose banner Davis campaigns, is faced with a very difficult eight-round session against Pepper Young, a dark horse from Norfolk. Little is known about Representative Young's campaigning ability excepting that he won a victory over the well-known Jimmy (Kingfish) Reed, a rather undependable in-and-outer.

Wright may find that all the spellbinding in which he indulged to reach the runner-up position for the "best prospect" office by virtue of 19 consecutive wins will have gone for naught when he takes the stump against Young.

Others Are Carded.

Bob Lowry will argue it out with a representative from the Army, one Soldier Clarke, in a debate limited to six rounds. The four-round sessions will bring together Doug Swetnam and Soldier Shasburger and Mickey Lewis and Soldier Larkin.

The action starts promptly at 8:30 and the site may be reached either by motor, over the newly paved 15-mile road direct to the ringside, or by boat, leaving Seventh and M streets at 7 o'clock direct for Fort Washington.

Around-the-Ring Selections: Koshover to outpoint Davis. Wright to beat Young. Lowry over Clarke, Shasburger to win from Swetnam and Larkin to beat Lewis.

Nats Down Indians On Rally in Eighth

Schulte, and the Nats had four runs for the inning and a 7-2 lead.

Those were four unearned runs for the Nats, fashioned from Hale's error of commission and Ferrell's error of omission, and the run that the Indians scored in the eighth which should have sent the game into a 3-3 deadlock, served only to reduce the Nats' margin of victory by one.

At that, the Nats lost a half-game in the race to the Yankees who wrestled the Tigers out of a pair of victories and cut what had been Washington's 9-game lead to 8½ games, which still is no margin to view with alarm by the good burghers in the Capital.

The Nats boarded Hildebrand for three runs at the outset with the help of a pair of walks and singles by Goslin, Cronin and Kuhel.

Stewart, and Jack Russell, who relieved him under mild pressure in the eighth inning, would have had a shut out for their efforts except for the intruding presence of Earl Averill, who drove in all three of the Injuns' runs.

Averill struck out on his first appearance to the delight of the 8,000 in the stands, but in his second trip to the plate he banged a long triple into right center to score two runners. He wasted the same kind of a triple in the sixth inning with two out, but he delivered his single in the eighth to score Cissell, who had pinch hit for Hildebrand.

It was then that Manager Cronin extracted Stewart and inserted Russell who celebrated his entry by permitting Hale to drive into a fast double play started by Bluege.

G. W. Coaches Will Stress Speed

Hoyle, His Arm Broken, to Be Out of Practice for Two Weeks.

By Staff Correspondent.

CAMP LETTS, Md., Sept. 10.—The business of whipping George Washington U.'s football team into condition was abandoned, temporarily, today by coaches and players alike. Battered and bruised after a week of intensive training, the players swung aboard the Sister Nell and embarked on a five-hour cruise on the Chesapeake Bay.

Tomorrow the coaching staff plans to start work on the offensive, an important point in football which has been slighted thus far. Head Coach Jim Pixlee and his lieutenants went into a huddle today and emerged with the blue prints of the Colonials' attack under their arms. Forward passing figures prominently in the design, supported on a firm foundation of a hard-running attack.

Although the list of injured is increasing with alarming regularity, there will be no decrease in the terrific pace the squad is making. The casualty roster was increased by one today. A severe pain in "Red" Hoyle's right hand, thought to be a sprain, developed into a broken hand and the stocky half back was sent to Washington for treatment. He will be on the shelf for two weeks.

Fortified with an abundance of backs, tackles and guards, G. W. needs only a few good ends and a capable center to round out a great team. Joe Walsh is expected to grab one of the wing berths, and Bill Parrish is the outstanding choice to be his running mate.

Alexandria Elks Form Fight Club

First Program to Be Staged Next Monday; Irving, Burns Top Card.

A new fight club, staging bouts for the benefit of the Alexandria Elks, is scheduled to open a week from today, September 18. The matches will be held in the Elks Auditorium, Alexandria, which has seating accommodations for more than 1,000 persons.

The first week's card will offer Henry Irving and K. O. Burns in an 8-rounder in the top spot. Kellar Crawford and Phil Furr will travel 6 rounds and Doug Swetnam and Baltimore Kid Groves 4. One other six and a four will be announced later.

Bouts will be offered every week until the charity coffers of the Alexandria Elks have been replenished. Billy Younger is acting as matchmaker.

Mount Rainier Wins.

Mount Rainier defeated the Burroughs, 6—4, 8—6, in a double-header on the Burroughs diamond yesterday.

Dor-A Defeats Federals 6 to 1

Stantons Crush Heights Nine, 21-5; Blue Coal Game Postponed.

ONLY two of the three scheduled Capital City League games were played yesterday, Dor-A defeating the Federals, 6-1, and Stantons walloping Congress Heights, 21-5.

The scheduled game between "Wee Willie" Glascoe's Griffith-Blue Coals and Frank Sinotti's St. Joseph's was postponed by agreement of the two managers, who decided the field was not entirely to their liking.

Long pitched for the Dor-As, holding the opposition to one lone hit, which was made by Xander.

Davidson, Corkins Hurl.

The Stantons used Davidson and Corkins on the mound in an effort to stop the onslaught of bingles from the bats of the Congress Heights aggregation.

No midget games were played yesterday. Play in this class will be resumed next Sunday.

G. U. Gridders Face Heavy Practices

Haggarty and Lieutenants Still Undecided About Forward Wall.

Although the Georgetown University gridders have been in training for a week, Jack Haggarty and his aids are still at a loss as to who will make up the early sure spots along this season's forward wall. Practically all the men were in good physical condition when they reported the first day so that sore muscles were as scarce as safety razors in a barber shop.

Perhaps by the end of this week's work, the Hoya skipper will have formed a tentative nucleus in the line, but just where to look for the men is an enigma. Line coaches Dubofsky and Murtagh have a heavy week ahead of them.

Two practice sessions a day will be the menu again the current week with heavy scrimmages slated for the last three days.

Barney Welsh May Forego Tourney

Painful Infection Might Cause Withdrawal From Wardman Play.

BARNEY WELSH, public parks champion, and one of the District's outstanding entries, may be forced to withdraw from the Wardman fall tennis tournament because of a painful infection. Welsh's withdrawal, if necesary, will deprive the tournament of one of the two local players generally conceded an even chance of defeating Dooly Mitchell, who is seeking the third leg necesary to make the Stimson trophy his permanent possession.

Ralph McElvenny, the other local player, who is believed by many to have an even chance with Mitchell, will play, but his chances of defeating the rest of the field are not so unanimously conceded as they were before he was outplayed in the Washington Grove tournament by Barney Welsh.

Play in the men's doubles opens today, with many of the outstanding local entrants participating. The Mitchell-Latona and Hermann-Hunt duo will see action, as will many other good teams.

Women's Singles Set.

The women's singles will start tomorrow morning, the entry lists remaining open until 6 o'clock tonight. Three outstanding out-of-town players, Frances Grimes, of Morgantown, W. Va.; Miriam Sullivan and Frances Doocette, of Pittsburgh, have already entered the women's singles.

Play in the qualifying draw rounds continued yesterday.

First round—Boyle defeated Goubeau, 2—6, 6—3, 6—3.

Second round—Taylor defeated Yingling, 12—10, 7—5; Cowley defeated Johnsen, 3—6, 8—6, 6—4; Blade defeated Loney, 6—4, 6—4; Trieg defeated Boyle, 6—1, 6—1; Dorst defeated Kimmell, 6—0, 6—4; Siedel defeated Verges, 6—1, 6—3.

Today's Schedule.

Singles, second round, 5 o'clock—Buchanan vs. R. Sherfy, Stamm vs. Phillips.

Doubles, first round, 5 o'clock—Dudley-Dudley vs. Garnett-partner, Krickbaum-Ross vs. Hermann-Hunt, Mitchell-Latona vs. Cowley-partner, Dorst-Blade vs. Suttonfield-Dial, Garber-Goubeau vs. Ritzenberg-Gould, Johnsen-partner vs. Trieg-Stamm, Denton-Allen vs. Hoffecker-Dreschler.

Il Duce Active, Rome Passes Busy Summer

Many Political Parleys Liven Usual "Dead" Capital Season.

Rome, Sept. 10 (AP).—Never since the war has Rome had such a summer of political activity as this one.

The coming and going of statesmen, the holding of meetings and conferences have demonstrated Italy's secretary of state, Benito Mussolini, is playing a big part in European diplomacy.

In the past, July and August were known as "dead months" when Romans gasped under the humid heat and the upper classes fled to the sea or mountains. This year all such precedent was ignored. Even the Vatican diplomats held two important accords.

The hot June days had already begun when the closing negotiations for the Four-Power pact were carried on. Mussolini made his noted speech in the Senate and the pact was initialed June 7.

Diplomatic Negotiations.

Shortly thereafter came Vice Chancellor Von Papen of Germany to Rome to negotiate with the Vatican for a concordat. The negotiations spread over several weeks until the initialing on July 8. Von Papen again came to Rome for the signing on July 20, and while here had a conference with Mussolini.

Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria made two visits to Italy, one for the signing of the Vatican concordat with Austria on June 5 and the other for a conference with Mussolini at Riccione, August 19, with reference to the Austro-German and the Austro-Danubian situation.

Premier Goemboes and Foreign Minister De Kanya of Hungary arrived July 25 to clarify Italo-Hungarian relations and sell Hungary's wheat surplus.

Turkish Foreign Minister Tewfik Bey was here July 11 to discuss conditions in the eastern Mediterranean at the same time that Mussolini was negotiating with the Soviet ambassador a nonaggression treaty. In this connection, Il Duce also talked with King Boris of Bulgaria during his majesty's vacation visit to Italy in August.

Confer on Pact.

June and July witnessed intensive diplomatic negotiations to clear up misunderstandings subsequent to the initialing of the four-power pact, and to lead to its signing July 15.

July and August embraced considerable diplomatic activity between Italy and Germany, wherein Mussolini strove to induce Hitler to discontinue Germany's anti-Austrian propaganda.

The 1933 hot months therefore beheld the initialing and signing of the four-power pact. Signing of two concordats with the Vatican. Partial settlement of Austrian and Hungarian difficulties. Signing of a nonaggression treaty with Soviet Russia and representations to Germany on her attitude toward Austria.

U.S. Asked to Admit Political Refugees

(Associated Press.)

The American Civil Liberties Union yesterday asked President Roosevelt to revise immigration restrictions to admit religious and political refugees, particularly those from Germany.

In a memorial signed by 36 educators, lawyers, clergymen and liberals, the union urged changes to meet the Nation's "tradition of asylum for refugees."

The number of such refugees who would seek admission would not be large, the union said.

Review Board Hears Veterans On Disability

Sessions to Begin Today; Some Cases Have Been Settled.

Hearings by the special review board appointed by President Roosevelt on border-line cases of District of Columbia veterans' presumptive war service disability will open today at the Veterans' Administration.

Isaac Gans, board chairman for this area, said his group already had disposed of several cases where hearings were not requested. The board convened September 1.

Under regulations the President prescribed, the regional board will outline means of examining cases of veterans, origin of whose ailments is in doubt and who apparently are no longer entitled to compensation.

Regulation Pointed Out.

Special review boards are directed to determine whether service connection shall be granted, "notwithstanding the evidence may not clearly demonstrate existence of the disease or any specific clinical findings within terms of or period prescribed * * * and shall in their decisions resolve all reasonable doubts in favor of the veteran, burden of proof in such cases being on the Government."

In weighing claims, special review boards will study circumstances under which veteran served during the World War. Particular consideration will be given to service in the A. E. F. in the zone hostilities.

Provisions of Act Cited.

"A claimant is not required," says the March 20, 1933, act, "to establish service origin of a condition either to a mathematical or moral certainity, but the claim is not to be denied because there is room for a lingering doubt as to whether some statements are true where the same have not been impeached or contradicted."

The act continues:

"An antagonistic, critical or even abusive attitude on the part of the claimant should not influence the board members in the handling of the case."

Serving with Gans on the Washington regional board are Maj. James Stewart Richardson, Joseph C. Fehr, Paul H. McMurray, and Dr. William H. Kable. All are World War veterans and attaches of the Veterans' Administration.

Better Business Bureau To Convene Tomorrow

A three-day convention of the Affiliated Better Business Bureau will open tomorrow at the Shoreham Hotel.

Delegates from 51 principal cities of the United States and Canada will be welcomed at the opening session by Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the Board of District Commissioners. Codes to eliminate unfair competition will be discussed. Strickland Gillilan will be master of ceremonies at a banquet tomorrow night.

Model Plane Tourney Will Begin Wednesday

The annual District model aircraft tournament will begin Wednesday at 9:30 o'clock at Bolling Field. Contests will include those for H. L. scientific, R. O. G. fuselage, scale model, and helicopter types.

Further contests will be Thursday in Constitution Hall. Awards will be made to first second and third point winners in four classes, ace, pilot, junior pilot and champion.

Watch Snatcher Sought After Man Is Victimized

Police last night were searching for a colored man who snatches watches. The complaint was made by Richard C. Jones, 608 O street northwest. He told police he was sitting in front of his home when a colored man asked him for a match. As he reached for the match he said, the man snatched his $75 watch and ran.

Jump by Girl Thought Attempt at Suicide

In what police termed a suicide attempt, a 16-year-old girl jumped from a porch roof last night.

Dorothy Harkness, 815½ I street southeast, was taken to Casualty Hospital with possible internal injuries. The leap was from the second-story level. Police said the girl was despondent.

Love, Not Duty, Need of World, Dr. Smith Says

St. Thomas Pastor Links Good Samaritan Story With Modern Times.

The Rev. C. Ernest Smith called the parable of the Good Samaritan the most loved of all, except that of the Prodigal Son, in his sermon yesterday morning at St. Thomas' Episcopal Church.

He quoted Dean Stanley, of Westminster, as saying it had been "the consolation of the wanderer and the sufferer, of the outcast and the heretic in every age and every country."

"For us," Dr. Smith said, "it asserts the need of a world-wide spirit of benevolence."

Describing the characters of the story, Dr. Smith said the traveler was probably a Jewish peddler, willing to take the risk of the bandit-infested "Way of Blood" to save time.

The priest and the Levite, who left the injured traveler in the road to perform their duties in the temple, he described as not wrong individually.

"Their ideals were wrong; that was all," he said.

Of all people the Samaritan, of a race despised by the Jews, might have been excused most easily for not aiding the injured man, the minister said, adding:

"Here we have a contrast drawn by Christ: The Jew with his legalism is contrasted with a Samaritan and his spirit of love. Once a clergyman asked Christ, 'Who is my neighbor?' 'The question was not merely foolish, but wrong. It was the question of a man who wanted to do his full duty indeed, but not an iota more.

"America today exemplifies what the desire to do one's duty can do. A better and even more potent power is love.

"We must remember that 'He who loveth God will love his brother also.'"

Columbia Heights Supporting NRA

But 150 of 3,000 Refuse to Sign Consumer Card.

Three thousand calls at District homes have been made by lieutenants in the Columbia Heights Unit, NRA drive, and all but 150 signed the consumer's card, Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell, unit captain, announced yesterday.

Among those who refused to sign, several said they would not because Henry Ford had not done so.

The following lieutenants worked with Mrs. Worrell:

Mrs. Vernon Cleaver, Mrs. R. H. Bellman, Mrs. Luther Robinson Maddox, Mrs. Augusta Brown, Mrs. B. M. Dimick, Mrs. Walter Chadwick, Miss Lena Young, Miss Anna Dyer, Mrs. D. M. Saunders, Miss Clara Bogorad, Miss Margaret Rauber, Mrs. L. J. Rauber, Miss Kay Lathrop, Miss Margaret Baer, Miss Lucy Friedell, Miss Mary Baer, and Mrs. J. T. Horne.

Almanac

A Man's Late Decades Needn't Be Decadent, Pastor Says.

"Striving 20's, thriving 30's, fiery 40's, faithful 50's, sober 60's, solemn 70's, aching 80's."

"These fiery 40's are the dangerous years," said the Rev. R. Y. Nicholson in last night's service at the Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Protestant Church. is theme was "That Dangerous Middle Age."

"It is the period of shame or honor, the time when men make fools or seers of themselves. The thrill of life begins to pass. Men become headstrong and mulish. They want to play bell-sheep or not at all.

"It is the period when men begin to think of resting on their oars. That is the way to drift into meaningless old age.

"The man who guards well the years from 20 to 40, finds middle-age the golden age of life."

Community Leader Directs Civic Projects Despite Blindness.

Maryland Woman Active in Neighborhood Relief.

Rising superior to an affliction that might well cause despair, Mrs. Paul V. Rogers, of 206 Rosemary street, Chevy Chase, Md., has become a tremendous power for good in the community.

From her airmchair in her home she wields a modern scepter, a telephone, to open paths of opportunity for those who need aid and to promote community projects.

Mrs. Rogers suffered the loss of her vision several years ago and found herself practically an invalid as a result of arthritis. She did not lapse into despondency, however, but set her exceptional talents to work in the interest of welfare. Her neighbors compare her with Helen Kellar.

Projects Prove Successful.

Few community projects are under taken without her assstance. Calling on her salesmanship and managerial ability that sometimes seems uncanny, she reaches for her telephone and goes into action. Her plans are always successful.

Should a case of unemployment or need be brought to her attention, Mrs. Rogers finds a way to help. Friends in need can find no more powerful advocate.

Despite her blindness Mrs. Rogers keeps informed on the news of the day. She talked understandingly on the NRA and its possibilities. Art and the drama are just as real to her inner vision as though she could view their beauties with her eyes.

Recently, the Silver Spring Gypsy Chorus presented an entertainment to county officials and citizens at the McKeever estate near Silver Spring. The beautiful setting arranged on the natural amphitheater was described to Mrs. Rogers. When Robert Frederick Freund, of Silver Spring, director of the chorus, called on Mrs. Rogers, he found her in full possession of the features of the entertainment.

Freund Offered Services.

Mrs. Rogers conceived the idea of forming a Junior Gypsy Chorus among the children of Chevy Chase. she broached the plan to Mr. Freund and the latter, delighted with her appreciation of his efforts, was glad to offer his services as director.

The children, under direction of Mr. Freund, built their own gypsy camp in the rear of the Rogers home. Tents, a fireplace with a hanging kettle, and two small gypsy wagons were made by the children, who even painted the tents.

At a rehearsal Saturday, the youngsters arrived in gypsy costumes and ready for their lessons in the art of gypsy singing. They will be made part of the adult chorus.

Mrs. Rogers is the mother of two children, Paul V. Rogers, jr., and Margaret, 5 and 7, and the children, Paul V. Rogers, jr., and Margaret Rogers, 5 and 7, and the children are ringleaders in the junior gypsy band. Her husband is a prominent Washington attorney.

Missing Youth Surrenders to District Police

Son of Business Man in Philadelphia Charged With Auto Theft.

Metropolitan police said yesterday they had received a request from Jacksonville, Fla., police to hold Charles A. Stinson, jr., on a charge of stealing an automobile. Jacksonville police said a warrant had been issued.

A man who said he was Charles A. Stinson, jr., of Philadelphia, walked into the Seventh Precinct Station here Saturday and said he was wanted in Jacksonville.

Reports from Jacksonville and Philadelphia said a Charles A. Stinson, jr., son of the head of a Philadelphia engraving concern, had been missing from Jacksonville for several days.

The man was held incommuicado. Stinson, according to Capt. Collins, said he had stolen a taxicab from Jacksonville.

"I wanted to see my father in Philadelphia," the man was quoted by police as saying.

The police official said Stinson told him he had an accident en route and hitch-hiked to Washington, where he decided to give himself up.

Wanted in Jacksonville.

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 10 (AP). City Detective H. B. Bowden said tonight Charles A. Stinson, jr., reported held by Washington police on an open charge, is named in a warrant here charging automobile theft.

Bowden said the warrent was sworn to by Leon Sumpediam, owner of the taxicab driven by Stinson and which, police said, disappeared at the same time as did Stinson.

3-Year-Old Girl Rescued From Reflecting Pool

Mary Marjorie Payne, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Payne, 2422 Observatory place northwest, yesterday became a member of the select company who have fallen in the Lincoln Memorial reflecting pool. She tumbled in reaching for her ball.

A man waded in after her, then left without waiting to be identified or to receive the thanks of Mary's parents.

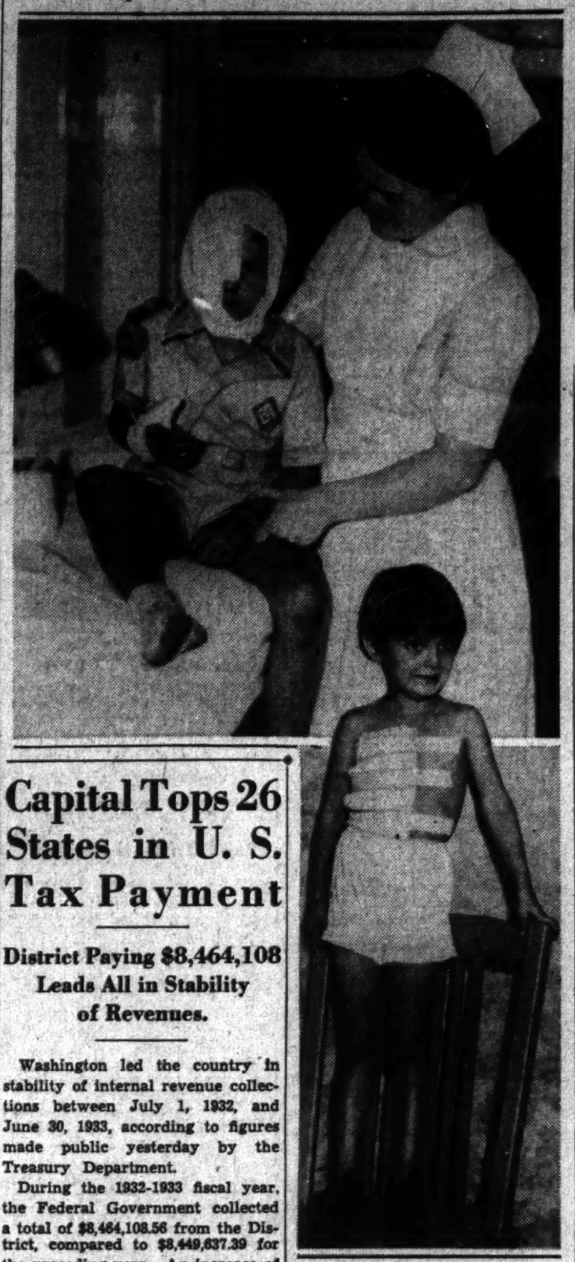
They Learned About Matches



Swathed in bandages and cooling oil, Junior Hurley, 7, upper, 128 C street northeast, contemplates at Casualty Hospital the dangerous mixture of matches and gasoline cans. In the lower picture, Roberta Gordon, 3, is shown at Emergency Hospital, recovering from burns sustained when matches she was playing with ignited her clothes. Her mother rescued her before she was burned more seriously.

Capital Tops 26 States in U. S. Tax Payment

District Paying $8,464,108 Leads All in Stability of Revenues.

Washington led the country in stability of internal revenue collections between July 1, 1932, and June 30, 1933, according to figures made public yesterday by the Treasury Department.

During the 1932-1933 fiscal year, the Federal Government collected a total of $8,464,108.56 from the District, compared to $8,449,637.39 for the preceding year. An increase of less than $15,000, or about one-fifth of 1 per cent, this difference was the smallest of any State or Territory.

Income taxes fell off, while miscellaneous levies showed a sharp increase. Total income collections here were $6,272,880.96, a drop of 16 per cent. Miscellaneous taxes rose to $2,191,227.60. This was an increase of 119 per cent over similar collections in 1931-1932, which totaled $999,715.42.

The revenue act of 1932 is accountable for the substantial increase in miscellaneous tax receipts both here and over the country at large. By its provisions, levies are placed on decedents' estates, gifts, numerous manufactured articles, checks, amusements, telephone calls, pleasure boats, &c.

Capital Leads 26 States.

Washington paid more money into Federal coffers than 26 States, Alaska and the Philippine Islands. Corporations here paid $2,286,283.03 income taxes. Individuals paid $3,986,597.93. Transfer of the estates of decedents yielded $972,101.38 and gift taxes, $28,113.27.

Stamp tax receipts were $66,122.94. In this category, a mere $31.80 was received from the dime-a-pack tax on playing cards. Iowa paid 20 cents, Rhode Island, 40 cents, and Maryland, $2 playing card taxes.

Spiritous liquor taxes totaled $19,137.88. Of this the $1.10-a-gallon tax on nonbeverage spirits yielded $13,574. Retail liquor dealers, assessed $25 yearly, paid in $5,397.20. The balance, $166.68, came from whoesale liquor dealers.

Washington is far down on the list in revenue receipts from beer and light wines, contributing only $136,057.01. Retailers, taxed $20 a year, paid $8,749.77; wholesalers, $50 a year, $1,080.57; brewers, $1,000 a year (there was only one brewery in operation here prior to June 30), $416.67.

The $5 per barrel tax on beer netted $125,810 of the total of $136,057.01.

Internal Revenue Taxes.

Internal Revenue collections in connection with prohibition enforcement yielded $6,452. Ohio, which paid more than a million and a quarter in nonintoxicating liquor taxes, collected $2,750.37 in connection with prohibition enforcement.

Tobacco and tobacco manufactures receipts were $708.24, of which $444.84 came from cigars; $168.60 from cigarettes and $154.80 from tobacco and snuff.

Oleomargarine dealers paid $4,275.21, retailers paying $3,708.54 and wholesalers the balance.

Narcotics revenues here totaled $2,508.97, the largest source being the practitioners whose $1-a-year tax brought in $1,113.75; $225 was received in compromises of violations of the Harrison narcotic act.

Electricity Pays Heavily.

Lubricating oil and toilet articles, candy and radio sets, and sundry other products helped add $254,463.94 to the Treasury in manufacturers' excise taxes. But the biggest single item in this classification was the 3 per cent tax on electrical energy which yielded $202,415.34.

Under miscellaneous taxes—telegraph and telephone, checks, safe deposit boxes, pleasure boats, &c.—$391,354.43 was collected. Theaters, cabarets and miscellaneous admission taxes returned $249,976.22.

Fall Fractures Back Of Washington Man

Mark Watson, 45, was reported injured seriously last night in a fall from a second-story window of his home, 939 M street northwest. Emergency Hospital attaches said his back was fractured.

Boy, 7, Killed, Score Injured In Car Mishaps

Lad Decapitated en Route Here With Mother; Women Hurt.

A 7-year-old child was killed and nearly a score were sent to hospitals yesterday in crowded highway accidents.

Norman Culver, young son of Mrs. Norman Culver, Baltimore, was practically decapitated as a car driven by Mrs. Dorothy E. Whittle, Baltimore, in which he and his mother were riding to Washington, turned over on the Washington boulevard near Elkridge, Md.

Mrs. Lee Helvig, 23, 5723 Fourth street northwest, was injured when the cab in which she was riding collided with a car driven by Frank L. Williamson, 1204 Longfellow street northwest. The cab driver was William A. Crown, 4011 Eighth street northwest.

Crash on Seventeenth Street.

In a collision at Seventeenth street and Constitution avenue, Eunice Templeman, 1444 W street northwest, was injured and taken to Emergency Hospital.

Three Washington women were injured at Halethorpe, Md., when a car driven by Robert A. Bishop, 4105 Wisconsin avenue, struck a trailer on a truck driven by Martin H. Roe, of Baltimore. The injured were Mrs. H. S. Bishop, mother of the driver, his sister, Marie, and his wife, Helen. All were taken to St. Agnes Hospital, Baltimore.

Driver Loses Leg.

Believed to have fallen asleep while driving, Wilmoth D. Evans, 24, Edgewood Arsenal, Md., was seriously injured when his car struck a viaduct near Millersville on the Crain highway. One leg was fractured. The other, badly mangled, was amputated at Emergency Hospital.

John H. Cook, 8, 726 Sixteenth street northeast, was struck by an auto at Fifteenth and Gales street northeast. He is in Casualty Hospital in a serious condition, with a possibly fractured skull. Police reported George P. Fish, 1641 A street northeast, as driver of the car.

Archie Carter, colored, 9, 74 Defrees street northeast, was in a critical condition at Children's Hospital after being run down at First and Defrees streets northwest. Police said the child ran into the street after a ball. William A. Davis, colored, 25 Virginia avenue southwest, was the driver.

Both Legs Broken.

James Forbes, colored, Benning, D. C., was struck at Marlboro, Md., by a car driven by Charles H. Faunce, police reported. Both legs were fractured. He was taken to Casualty Hospital.

Two persons were taken to hospitals and three were reported less seriously injured in a crash on Crain highway, near Marlboro. Drivers were Everett Reid, 504 B street southeast, and F. E. Hodge, 5737 Ninth street northwest.

Reid was taken to Annapolis Hospital in a serious condition, and his brother, Rufus, is in an undetermined condition at Casualty Hospital. Hodge, his wife, Mary, and his daughter were treated by private physicians.

Baby Ad Model Hurt In Fall on Church Steps

Margaret Hampshire, 3-year-old girl, known to magazine readers as a model for baby powder advertisements, was hurt yesterday in a fall on the steps of the Hyattsville Methodist Episcopal Church South.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Hampshire, 15 Sheridan avenue, Hyattsville. She was treated at Sibley Hospital.

Two Children Burned in Play With Matches

Gasoline Can Explodes in Boy's Hands; Girl's Clothing Fired.

Matches—everlasting subject of investigation by children—yesterday sent a boy and a girl to hospitals with painful burns.

An experiment with a match and a small gasoline tank which resulted in an explosion brought severe burns about the face and hands to 7-year-old Junior Hurley, 128 C street northeast, while a like adventure with matches ignited the clothing of Roberta Gordon, 3, of 455 H street southwest, burning her about the body.

Junior and his chum, George Koutsoukos, 7, 315 First street northeast, were playing in an alley nearby when they found a small gasoline can. Inquisitively the two boys ignited the gasoline with matches, and Junior, who was holding the can, received the force of the explosion. He was taken to Casualty Hospital and treated for second degree burns of the face and right hand.

Little Roberta Gordon and her sister, Lucille, 6, were playing in the basement of their home, 455 H street southwest, when a match held by Lucille ignited her sister's clothing. Frightened by what she had done, Lucille ran from her home. Mrs. Harry A. Gordon, mother of the girls, hurried to the basementt and tore the burning clothes from the child.

A police lookout was sent out for Lucille, but she returned to her home three hours later. At Emergency Hospital Roberta was treated for first degree burns on the right side of the body.

NRA Oil Heads To Talk Prices

Independent Dealers Ask Roosevelt to Protect Their Interests.

(Associated Press.)

The next step by the Government in its attempt to stabilize the oil industry code will be considered at a conference today between President Roosevelt, Secretary Ickes, the oil administrator, and Hugh S. Johnson, the recovery administrator.

Dominant in the conference—since the national planning and coordination committee for oil began its work—is the price-control issue.

The Individual Brand Petroleum Association sent to the White House a plea that the position of the small retail gasoline dealer be protected.

This organization is composed of dealers handling petroleum under their own trade names. Richard F. Cleveland, of Baltimore, attorney for the association, asserted it is not connected with any other independent organization.

"The probability of minimum retail price-fixing, due to Secretary Ickes' favor toward such an experiment," Cleveland said, "would, without question, eliminate this group, as no consumer will seek out-of-way stations unless there is a price difference.

"From the standpoint of administration, the oil and other industries have all they can do to put into effective practice the basic wage and hour benefits of the NRA.

"Should price-fixing become a fact it will be seen that this group should be left in their present relative position to the major companies.

"Price-fixing threatens not only to eliminate these dealers but to cost their customers an enormous tax to subsidize the higher costs of the large companies."
